Post Starts Alaska Hop After Delay

Around World Aviator Leaves Early Today From Siberia.

Was Earlier Forced to Come Down; Grazes Trees in Landing.

Moscow, July 20 (AP) —Wiley Post, American round the world flier, took off from Khabarovsk at 5:58 A. M. today for Alaska. The time given is 9:58 P. M. Eastern standard time Wednesday.

Moscow, July 19 (AP).—Wiley Post, American globe-circling flier, came down at Rukhlovo, Siberia, about 300 miles short of his scheduled halting place, Blagoveshchensk, at 2:32 p. m. today, Moscow time (6:32 a. m., Eastern standard time), bad weather forcing him to interrupt his round-the-world flight.

The daring aviator's plane, the Winnie Mae, was slightly damaged in brushing against the treetops shortly before the arrival at Rukhlovo. Clouds and mists forced the American to hug the ground dangerously, but despite this mishap he made a perfect landing.

Flier Near Exhaustion.

(A Reuter's News Agency dispatch received in London from Moscow said tonight that Wiley Post after his forced descen. at Rukhlovo, expected to resume his flight immediately toward the East.)

Post, who left Irkutsk at 7 a. m., Moscow time, was near exhaustion when he brought his ship down at the Siberian town which lies between Chita and Blagoveschensk, having denied himself needed rest along the route in an effort to set a new record for the round-the-world air trip.

His arrival at Rukhlovo set at rest anxieties which had been felt for his safety, since he was long overdue at Blagoveschensk. Soviet air officials at Novosibirsk, where Post stopped yesterday, had sent out urgent broadcast inquiries for the American flier.

Sighted At Three Points.

Post was sighted at three points between Irkutsk and Rukhlovo as he flew eastward in an attempt to regain time which he lost at the former place when unfavorable atmospheric conditions induced him to take a long rest.

On leaving Irkutsk for the sixth lap of his world flight the weary but determined Post was only three hours and 24 minutes ahead of his 1931 record, having lost several hours at Irkutsk because bad weather conditions delayed his departure.

J. P. Morgan to Meet Bankers in England

Southampton, Eng., July 19 (AP).—J. P. Morgan, arriving here today from New York, said that it was likely he would meet many British financiers on his trip here, including Montague Norman, governor of the Bank of England, but no political significance would be attached to any of his talks.

His meeting with British monetary leaders, he said, would simply be friendly exchanges of views on common principles, but, he added, "I shall not rule out the possibility of talks on stabilization."

3 Hawaiians Sentenced In Attack on Army Man

Honolulu, July 19 (AP).—Three Hawaiian youths charged with attacking Corpl. Harry J. Meyers, U. S. A., the night of July 7 were sentenced to ten days in jail today by Judge Francis M. Brooks. Appeals were taken and bond for each was set at $50.

Meyers said the youths attacked him when he challenged alleged uncomplimentary remarks they made about his woman companion. A policeman, summoned by the woman, intervened.

Tropical Storm Due Off Coast of Mexico

(Associated Press.)

The Weather Bureau last night issued the following storm warning:

"Advisory 9:30 p. m.

"Tropical disturbance of slight intensity approaching Coast of Mexico short distance north of Vera Cruz, where it will move inland tonight."

Earthquake in Oporto Throws Town in Panic

Lisbon, Portugal, July 19 (AP).—A violent earthquake lasting one minute shook Oporto today and the people were panic-stricken.

No casualties were reported, however, and the property damage was slight. The quake came after two days of excessive heat.

Alvin M. Owsley Sails For Post in Roumania

New York, July 19 (AP).—Alvin M. Owsley, of Dallas, Texas, new Minister to Roumania, sailed today on the liner Manhattan. Accompanying him were his wife and their three children, Alvin M., jr., Lucy and David.

Prisoners on Mallorca Island

Immediate action in cases of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood, of New York, who with three other Americans are being held without bail on the Island of Mallorca, has been demanded by the United States, with a warning to Spanish government of the possible international complications. They were arrested for fighting with the Guardia Civil in Palma.

Palma Judge Will Free U. S. Citizens Soon

Officer Indicates They Will Be Given Short Terms and Then Released.

Palma, Mallorca, July 19 (U.P.).—The five Americans, including one woman, whose imprisonment here for 43 days created a serious problem for Spanish and American diplomats, will be sentenced to short prison terms when they face trial on charges of assaulting a civil guard, according to a decision disclosed tonight.

In view of the fact that the Americans already had been in the municipal jail since June 4, it was believed possible that they already would have served their probable terms and therefore might be released. This impression—that the prisoners would be sentenced and then freed—was strengthened tonight after the United Press correspondent talked at length with local authorities.

The prisoners are Clinton B. Lockwood, of Springfield, Mass.; Mrs. Lockwood, who has been confined in a cell near that of a demented woman; Rutherford Fullerton, Columbus, Ohio: Roderick F. Mead, New York, and Edmund W. Blodgett, Stamford, Conn.

Altercation With Guard.

They were arrested after an altercation with a civil guard and all efforts of American consular and diplomatic officials to speed action on their case were unsuccessful until this week.

Francisco Vidal, military judge and commandant of the Mallorcan Infantry, has been selected to preside at their trial. He said tonight that the prisoners will be sentenced to short terms.

The case comes under the military because a civil guard was involved. United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers, at Madrid, had interceded again this week with Premier and War Minister Manuel Azana, who has jurisdiction, to speed action on the case.

It appeared almost certain that the local officials would appease Mallorcan public opinion, which has been aroused against American tourists and writers, by formally trying and sentencing the Americans and then releasing them because of the time already spent in jail.

Vidal emphatically denied reports that the prisoners had been made ill by the jail life.

"Prisoners Well Treated."

"The prisoners are well treated," he said. "They could not expect first class hotel life while in jail."

Vidal, who is interested in the National Tourist Agency of Mallorca, said that "there must be a trial even if it means an American boycott of Mallorca."

Theodor Pratt, a New York writer, also is expected to face trial in connection with articles he wrote regarding Mallorca and which the natives considered insulting. Mrs. R. B. Leaman and Thomas B. Leaman, publisher and editor of the Palma Post, an English language newspaper, also are under fire here.

New York Legislature Called to Help Needy

Albany, N. Y., July 19 (AP).—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman issued a proclamation today calling the New York Legislature into extraordinary session next Wednesday at 1 p. m., Eastern standard time, primarily for the purpose of helping New York City raise new unemployment relief funds.

Rich Man Shot; Left in Street By Kidnap Pair

Philadelphian Lured From Office by Ruse; Saves Self by Struggle.

Philadelphia, July 19 (AP)—Frank A. McClatchy, brother and associate of John H. McClatchy, millionaire builder and real estate operator, was shot and seriously wounded late today in resisting efforts of two men to kidnap him for ransom.

Police said they believed the men originally planned to kidnap John McClatchy, who is the head of a large real estate firm which developed the Sixty-ninth street section just west of Philadelphia.

Frank McClatchy was shot outside a sample house in the Sixty-ninth street section by the men after they had lured him there on the ruse they wanted to buy a house.

Wounded in Chest.

McClatchy is in a hospital with a bullet in the chest. Physicians said they feared it may have penetrated the lung and lodged in the spine.

John McClatchy said two men entered the McClatchy office and asking a girl employe to "see the boss." They told her they wanted to buy a house.

The real estate man said the men refused to see a salesman, so the girl ushered them into an inner office to see the brothers.

John McClatchy stated the men asked him to take them to inspect a house and objected after he asked his brother to accompany them. They finally agreed to go with Frank.

The latter told police at the hospital that as he was about to enter the house with the men, they grabbed him and said:

"Listen now, you're kindnaped Keep quiet and everything will be all right."

Fought Kidnapers.

McClatchy declared he struck at one man, striking him on the nose, and kicked the other.

"Give him the works!" McClatchy quoted one of his assailants as stating. Then they opened fire on him.

After he dropped, wounded, the two men fled on foot.

McClatchy lay where he fell, attempting to call for help. He said several cars passed before one driven by A. E. Whitfield, a salesman, of Ambler, Pa., stopped and took him to the hospital.

"I'm certain the men intended to kidnap me and hold me for ransom." John McClatchy said later. "When they couldn't get me with them, they decided to take Frank instead."

Blanket Code To Go Today To President

Cabinet Recovery Board Approves Johnson's Voluntary Plan.

Scheme to Shorten Week, Raise Pay May Separate White Collar Class.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

President Roosevelt is to receive today the broad, blanket voluntary code designed immediately to raise wages and cut down working hours in business and industry throughout the Nation.

Prompt approval of the program is expected from the President, who already has indicated his approval of the proposal in general terms.

Completion of the wage and hour schedules was undertaken yesterday by Brig. Gen Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, following a meeting of the Cabinet industrial recovery board, at the conclusion of which Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper announced the plan had been approved by that body.

Drafting of the code and development of plans to insure its widespread acceptance kept Gen. Johnson at work late at night. He expected to submit the plan to the President by 3 p. m. today, he said.

Provisions Undisclosed.

Provisions of the blanket code were not made public by Gen. Johnson, who said he would not disclose them until the plan had been submitted to and approved by the President.

Speculation, however, divided the schedule into two or three parts, one of which would set up maximum working hours and minimum wages for industrial workers, and the other one or two would provide for white-collar workers. It was thought likely that distinction would be made among the latter, to provide for differing conditions in business and industry generally and the workers in the retail businesses.

Recommendation of the advisory councils of the Recovery Administration is expected to be embodied in the schedules. The councils recommended a 35-hour-work week with a 40-cent per hour wage for industry.

Hours for the white collar groups are expected to be longer and a 40-hour week was reported to have been determined on for these with a minimum wage from $12 to $15 a week.

Rules to Be Flexible.

Owing to the complexity of business and industry and the difficulty of applying a blanket rule throughout the country various provisions for elasticity are to be incorporated.

Preparation of the final draft of the blanket schedules, the most gigantic effort ever made to boost wages and cut down working hours with one swoop, went on through a day of whirling activity in the recovery administration.

Codes of two important industries, electric and shipbuilding and repair, were thrown open to public hearings and preparations were made to launch public hearings on additional codes today. Meanwhile conference followed conference between official representatives of various industries and groups, including oil. There are to be battles over several codes but that of the oil industry already has precipitated a sharp fight.

Weapon of Publicity.

Lacking authority to make any general wage and hour code compulsory, the plan is to depend on a widespread publicity campaign to bring about voluntary acceptance. This campaign will be similar to those which were employed in the last war and several of the men who were active in the wartime efforts have been brought into the growing public relation division of the recovery administration.

Charles F. Horner, who had charge of the four-minute speakers in the Liberty loan campaigns, has been placed in charge of the public relations work. Under him Bert St.

Gov. Laffoon to Plead For Relief Aid Here

Frankfort, Ky., July 19 (AP).—Gov. Ruby Laffoon, accompanied by Harper Gatton, Kentucky relief director, and Dr. A. T. McCormack, State board of health secretary, left by automobile today for Washington to discuss relief with Federal officials.

The Government has served notice that unemployment relief to Kentucky will stop August 15 unless Kentucky approriates $3,000,000 to supplement Federal funds. The Governor and his party probably will spend the night at Ashland, Ky., continuing to Washington tomorrow.

1,000 Candidates Make Ballot of Record Size

Louisville, Ky., July 19 (AP). Unless some of the 1,172 local candidates withdraw, Louisville and Jefferson County's ballot in next month's primary will be 5 feet 2 inches long and 3 feet 4 inches wide.

County Clerk John Grieb says no printing press in the city is large enough to print the ballot, and after folding, only ten of them will fit inside a ballot box. The law requires that both parties use the same ballot box in a precinct.

25 Lifts Halt

Thousands Marooned as Chrysler Elevators Break Down.

New York, July 19 (U.P.). Several thousand persons were marooned for 45 minutes today in the tower of one of America's largest skyscrapers due to a breakdown of elevator service.

The trouble occurred in the Chrysler Building where 25 of the 32 elevators were caught between floors, converting the cars into cells for several hundred passengers. The building is 77 stories high.

U. S. Puts 1,200 On 7-Day Week Banned in Code

Three Shifts Struggling Day and Night on Cotton Contracts.

By Robert C. Albright.

Twelve hundred employes working three 7½-hour shifts every day in the week, including Sundays.

This sounds like "sweat shop" conditions far afield from Washington's government establishment. But the case cited came to light yesterday in the new contract records unit of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Officials admitted that during the present emergency period, brought about by the administration's decision to destroy one-fourth of the cotton crop, the 49-hour week is likely to continue in this unit.

Ironically, the cotton milling industry is discontinuing its own three-shift system under the cotton code just approved, eliminating the old midnight watch and substituting two shifts in place of three. Hours are limited to 40 a week.

Legal Holiday Banned.

Yet several hundred new Federal employes in the cotton contract records unit, women included, come to work at midnight and work until 7:30 a. m. They do not enjoy the Saturday half holiday given Federal employes by law, and Sunday is just another work day.

Of the other two shifts, one comes to work at 8 a. m. and continues until 3:30 p. m., while another comes on at 4 and works until 11:30 p. m.

The mass of these employes work at desks on the concrete floor of the basement of the new south extension to the new Agriculture Building. One employe complained to The Post of the dampness and of the pressure of work.

Advised of this complaint, one official of the cotton division said if the complaining party's name were known he would be replaced immediately by one of 10,000 who are clamoring for the new jobs.

Old Employes Get Jobs.

Following Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's liberal reemployment policy, the cotton contract records unit has recruited mostly civil service workers who have lost their jobs because of economy pressure in a number of the old line establishments. It is comprised principally of employes who need jobs and are glad to work under any conditions.

All of the jobs are temporary in that they may not continue after the 900,000 cotton crop reduction contracts negotiated with farmers are approved and in good order.

These contracts are coming in at the rate of about 60,000 a day. Employes of the new unit are examining and reviewing approximately 35,000 or 40,000 a day, one official said.

Officials pointed out the stress of the present emergency assignment, which must be completed within a few weeks, before cotton picking time, if crop reduction is to be a success. Personnel conditions might be improved once the emergency is passed, it was intimated.

Ousted Federal Attorneys Get Aid

President Tells Emergency Bureaus of Plight of 50 Men.

Col. Louis McH. Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt, yesterday wrote William A. Roberts, president of the Federal Bar Association, that the Chief Executive had called attention of the several amergency administrators to the plight of discharged Federal attorneys.

The association has been gathering personnel data on about 50 of its members who were released from the Federal service for economy reasons and is trying to place them in the newly created bureaus.

Many of the attorneys are highly trained though in a special field, Mr. Roberts said. The work of the association is to find jobs for which they are suited.

Balbo Greets New York With Salute

Bolling Field Is All Set for Their Arrival at 10:30 o'Clock.

Italian Airmen to Be Greeted With Salute of 19 Guns.

Italy's daring conquerors of the treacherous North Atlantic air lanes will swoop down on the Capital today to receive the plaudits of America's first citizen and first city.

Thrilled by the rousing reception accorded to them yesterday in New York, the intrepid Gen. Italo Balbo and his comrades awaited their departure for the Capital. Army and Navy planes will bring the members of the armada to Bolling Field at 10:30 where they will be welcomed by a 19-gun salute.

Then will begin a round of activities, starting with an escort through the heart of the city to their quarters in the Mayflower Hotel and ending with their departure from Bolling Field at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

Opportunity for the public to see the Italian fliers will be best at Bolling Field.

Space at the field will be made available for automobiles and pedestrians, and, while the space is limited, and the old policy of "first come, first served" will be in force, officers believe that a large crowd can be accommodated. The gates of the field will be open from daylight on.

After the brief ceremony at the field, where the general and his pilots will be gathered about the low stand on which the welcoming dignitaries will appear, they will enter automobiles and be transported under escort to the Mayflower. Along this route will be other points of vantage for seeing the transatlantic fliers.

Route Up The Avenue.

The route is up Southeast Eleventh street to Pennsylvania avenue, past the Capitol and down Pennsylvania avenue, south around the Treasury to Seventeenth street, and thence via Connecticut avenue to the Mayflower.

At noon, Gen. Balbo and a few of his high ranking officers will leave the Mayflower and drive to the White House for lunch, and again be visible to the public. In the afternoon, at 4, the general will go to Arlington Cemetery to lay a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

At 4:30, he and all of his party will drive to the Italian Embassy, 2700 Sixteenth street northwest, for the formla reception.

Latest information is that the party will total 53 persons. Previously, the number had been set at 24, and it was assumed that only the commanding officers of the 24 planes would be brought here.

Program for Today.

Following is the program for the day:

8:30 a. m.—Depart from Floyd Bennett Field, New York, in ten U. S. Army, Navy and Marine Corps planes.

10:30 a. m.—Land at Bolling Field. Reception, 19-gun salute, guard of honor and brief welcome and response.

12.15 p. m.—Luncheon to Italian officers by members of Overseas Writers Club, Chinese room, Mayflower Hotel. Brief speeches here will be broadcast over the Columbia system.

12:50 p. m.—Luncheon for the General, Ambassador Augusto Rosso, Lieut. Col. Palo Sbernadori, Italian Air Attache; Brig. Gen. Aldo Pellegrini, Commander de la Compana, Lieut. Col. Cagna, Lieut. Col. Lengo and Capts. Nannini, Recagno, Giordana Biani and Questa.

Trotzky May Settle In South France

Istanbul, Turkey, July 19 (AP).—Leon Trotzky, who is en route to Italy for medical treatment, has received permission to reside in France, Turkish sources said today.

He may continue aboard the Italian ship Bulgaria, on which he and his wife sailed Monday night, to Marseilles, France, it was said, and settle in southern France.

The Russian revolutionary exile intends to spend several months in Corsica after his stay in Italy.

Test Is Sought For Harriman In Washington

Sanity Hearing Put Off; Accused N. Y. Banker Under Observation.

New York, July 19 (AP).—The Federal court hearing on the sanity of Joseph W. Harriman was halted today until an examination of the indicted former banker can be completed in Bellevue Hospital.

The 68-year-old man was committed to the hospital's psychopathic ward late yesterday after he had returned voluntarily, with dripping wet clothing, from his second disappearance in two months.

Harriman's attorneys, meanwhile, began an intensive study of Federal procedure with respect to a defendant whose mental condition is questioned. A telephone call was put through to St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington, which has the same relation to Federal courts as Bellevue Hospital has to the city courts, to determine the legal possibility of having Harriman undergo observation there.

They were told Harriman could be committed to the institution by a Federal judge.

Federal Judge Francis G. Gaffey, hearing motions this morning for and against a delay, adjourned the case indefinitely and postponed action on a request by Harriman's counsel to revoke forfeiture of the banker's $25,000 bond.

Arizona Repeal Victory Is Sure; Drys Default

Prohibitionists' Failure to File Delegates Kills Chances.

Phoenix, Ariz., July 19 (U.P.).—Prohibition repeal in Arizona virtually was assured today when anti-repeal forces failed to file nominating petitions for election of delegates to a ratification convention.

As a result, election of delegates by Arizona voters August 8 will be a mere formality. Secretary of State James Kerby said.

Nominating petitions for the 14 repeal delegates were on file with Kerby when the lists closed today.

Repealists claimed that by failure of antirepealists to act, Arizona became the nineteenth State to ratify the twenty-first amendment repealing prohibition laws.

Lack of time in which to circulate petitions for prohibition delegates was blamed by Riley W. Geary, secretary of the Arizona Prohibition Association.

(By United Press).

With prohibition's Southern stronghold definitely shattered by heavy majorities for repeal of the eighteenth amendment in Alabama and Arkansas, repealists looked to Tennessee today for a clean sweep of the Dixie States voting this week.

Wets expected the victories in Tuesday's elections in the first of the long-dry states of the deep South to consider prohibition repeal to aid materially their fight in Tennessee's election today.

Forces favoring repeal predicted they would win by a majority of 50,000 or so in the Volunteer State, although dry leaders there, their confidence unshaken by the Alabama and Arkansas setbacks, claimed confidence of victory by a small majority.

Repeal leaders throughout the Nation hailed the Alabama and Arkansas votes as assurance that repeal of the eighteenth amendment

Captain Realizes Ambition by Direction of the President.

Abraham R. Ginsburgh, the brilliant Russian-Jewish captain of the Army who wrote wit into the eloquent speeches delivered by the former Secretary of War, Patrick Hurley, is to receive his promised reward. He is going to Harvard University, where he will fulfil one of his greatest ambitions—study law.

Brought to Washington two years ago to serve as an aid to Secretary Hurley, Ginsburgh became literary assistant for the dynamic Oklahoman, and regularly turned out splendid speeches for the colorful Hurley to deliver.

And Hurley, not unappreciative of the help being given him by the newspaper-trained writer, asked him where he would like to go on his next tour of duty.

Cabinet Feud Of Ickes, Dern Flares Anew

(Associated Press.)

The disagreement within the Roosevelt Cabinet over including Army construction in the public works program was emphasized yesterday when Secretary Ickes reiterated the statement that Secretary Dern had withdrawn the estimates.

Mr. Dern said Tuesday such a statement was misleading.

With this dispute still in progress, the Cabinet board in charge of the program worked for two hours over a public buildings program without reaching a decision and it went over to the next meeting.

Organization of the public works administration was almost completed today, however, with the creation of a housing division to study and encourage low-cost housing projects and a planning board to coordinate the public works program with the future in mind.

Prison Program Funded.

Two small allocations were announced during the day, $851,000 for a prison building program, and $675,000 for construction in the Panama Canal Zone.

mates for Army housing and

The dispute over Army construction began three days ago when Ickes told newspapermen Dern had withdrawn War Department estimechanization.

Dern Tuesday issued a formal statement saying the "report" he had withdrawn the estimates was "misleading" and asserting he had asked the board to withhold consideration when he foresaw adverse action.

Contradicts Dern.

When newspapermen called Dern's formal statement to Ickes' attention yesterday, the Interior Secretary and public works administrator replied:

"I repeat, informally, that the Secretary of War said he wanted to withdraw the estimates for further consideration and I expect he will bring them in again when he is ready."

A curtailed program for Federal building construction was submitted to the board yesterday by the Budget Bureau. President Roosevelt has indicated that this part of the public works program would be small, but the original estimates ran into the hundreds of millions.

Ickes announced Robert D. Kohn, of New York, former president of the American Institute of Architects, would head the housing division, with N. Max Dunning, now with the Reconstruction Corporation, as assistant director.

Johnson to Offer Broad Code Today

Clair, who had charge of newspaper publicity of the campaigns, has been placed in charge of that phase. Resort is to be had to every device for attracting favorable attention and widespread and quick acceptance of the general schedules. It is planned to use posters, various insignia and to set up local committees throughout the country to help.

The shipping industry, at its hearing, launched a vigorous attack on the 30-hour work week specified in the recovery act as governing the Navy construction program. A 40-hour week was provided in the shipping code and naval officials joined at the hearing with the industry in opposing the 30 hours.

The builders' code, submitted by H. Gerrish Smith, president of the National Council of American Shipbuilders, provides in addition to the 40-hour week a minimum wage of 35 cents an hour in Southern yards and 40 cents in Northern yards. Homer S. Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipbuldnig Co., objected that the differential was not sufficient to insure the continuance of the Southern yards and asked a 30-cent minimum for those.

Proposed Electric Code.

Labor presented its expected 30-hour week demand at the hearing on the code of the electric industry. The employers propose a 36 and 40 hour week. Representatives of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers propose a shift in the basis of the minimum wage. The code proposes 35 cents an hour for unskilled workers. The labor men want 90 cents an hour fixed as the minimum wage for skilled workers.

Hearings are to be begun today on two more codes, the important lumber industry and the coat and suit industry. Gen. Johnson has described the wage and hour provisions of the lumber code as entirely unacceptable.

A code for the rayon and synthetic yarn manufacturing industry was submitted yesterday, and hearing was fixed for July 27. It proposes a 40-hour week, under a flexible schedule, and a minimum wage of $13.

Gen. Johnson fixed July 26 for hearings on two other codes submitted yesterday. They were offered by the Clothing Manufacturers Association of the United States of America and the Industrial Recovery Association of Clothing Manufacturers. The former proposed a minimum wage of 35 cents in the North and 32½ cents in the South. Cutters would get a minimum of 80 cents an hour. A 40-hour week was prescribed. The Industrial Recovery Association code also proposes 40 hours, a flat 20 per cent increase in wages, with 35 and 32½ cents minimum.

Producers from large nonunion fields of both North and South hope to agree today on a minimum wage scale, understood to be their only remaining difference.

SHELDON WHITEHOUSE.
Minister to Guatemala since, 1929, who was yesterday appointed by President Roosevelt as Minister to Colombia. He has been in the diplomatic service since 1908, and was stationed here in 1920 and 1921.

President Picks Whitehouse for New Envoy Job

Minister to Guatemala Is Sent to Colombia; Other Appointments Made.

Sheldon Whitehouse, Minister to Guatemala, was yesterday appointed Minister to Colombia as President Roosevelt announced four minor recess appointments.

Mr. Whitehouse will succeed Jefferson Caffrey, former Minister to Colombia, who was appointed Assistant Secretary of State last week. The new minister is charged against New York's patronage credit, although he has been living abroad since 1921.

In 1908 Mr. Whitehouse inaugurated his diplomatic career when he became private secretary to Whitelaw Reid, then Ambassador to Great Britain. The next year he became secretary of our legation at Venezuela. He has occupied a similar post at many of the legations and embassies in Europe. He was chief of the Near Eastern division of the Department of State in 1920 and 1921, and was appointed to Guatemala in 1929.

The other appointments yesterday were: Ralph W. Westcott, comptroller of customs at Philadelphia; Peter M. Gagne, collector of internal revenue for New Hampshire; Homer M. Adkins, collector of internal revenue for Arkansas; and Joseph V. Broderick, collector of internal revenue for Rhode Island.

Motorcycle Skids, Policeman Injured

Thrown from his motorcycle while escorting a rescue squad, Theodore D. Lewis, Park policeman, suffered severe cuts and bruises and was taken to Emergency Hospital.

His motorcycle skidded, throwing him heavily to the pavement at Seventeenth street and Constitution avenue, while he was clearing traffic for the Arlington County, Va., rescue squad, which was taking 16-year-old Leonard Buck, 164 Arlington Ridge, Arlington County, Va., to the hospital. Lewis was picked up by the rescue squad and taken to the hospital with Buck.

Payer Lists 10 New Rules for U. S. to Follow

Secretary of State's Aid Hailed in Address to Democrats.

By Harold J. T. Horan.

The new deal received a new interpretation yesterday. Assistant Secretary of State Harry F. Payer, speaking before the Democratic Club at a luncheon in the University Club, summed up the psychology of the new administration in striking fashion. The Assistant Secretary has been connected intimately with some of the architects of the new deal through his personal friendship with Dr. Raymond Moley, the President's adviser. Dr. Moley also is Assistant Secretary of State.

Mr. Payer is a striking figure, resembling Beethoven in appearance, and is known to be one of the most eloquent orators of Cleveland, where he was member of the bar for a score of years. He summed up the President's objectives in the homily of the Ten Commandments. The new international decalogue is as follows:

"First, thou shalt not live, my dear country, beyond thy means.

"Second, thou shalt not lose confidence in thyself.

"Third, thou shalt not make Mammon thy god.

"Fourth, thou shalt not forget that when thy price level is achieved, stabilization is the next layer.

"Make Gold Thy Servant."

"Fifth, thou shalt make gold thy servant.

"Sixth, thou shalt not permit unemployment.

"Seventh, thou shalt not fail to rationalize thy industry.

"Eighth, thou shalt not suffer the paradox of poverty in plenty.

"Ninth, thou shalt not indulge the fallacy of neglecting thy own domestic economy since thy interests are paramount; but neither does this commandentment signify that thou shalt isolate thyself like a hermit.

The address of Mr. Payer was hailed with great enthusiasm.

In a further development of his thesis, the Assistant Secretary reviewed the present schism which divides the world's economists into two camps, each one heretofore jealous of the principles of the other. On the one side, he pointed out, are the champions of cheap money. Their leader is John Maynard Keynes, and their object is devaluated money.

Bankers in the Camp.

The other group is the conservative elements, composed chiefly of the banking forces of the country, who fear for the sanctity of contracts and the inevitable results of a constantly declining dollar.

The gap between the two camps, however profound, was bridged by the explanation of Mr. Payer.

He said:

"These two schools of thought are much closer together than they believe; in a large measure they are unconsciously in accord. Their greatest difference existing in the emphasis that each places on certain phenomena. On the one hand, the monetary school does not underestimate the transcendent importance of stimulating industry and increasing consumptive power in order to raise the price level; on the other hand, the conservative school does not deny the importance of credit reflation and open market operations and employment in public works to take up the slack when necessary."

Indictment Accuses Officer of Robbery

The District grand jury yesterday indicted Policeman John F. Patton, of the Tenth Precinct, on a charge of robbery. Two colored men, James Mason and William Wood, were indicted with Patton in connection with the same allegations.

Patton, now on a suspended basis, is alleged to have driven Mason and Wood to the vicinity of the Dome gas station, Sixteenth and Taylor streets northwest, June 21. The manager of the station was robbed of $185.

'Peggy,' 3, Waits With Police For Some One to Claim Her

A flaxen-haired little miss, hardly 3 years old, swung her chubby legs from a desk in the Police Department Women's Bureau last night and evidenced only slight interest to all the attention being paid her.

Perhaps an ice cream cone, presented by a reporter, had something to do with it. And then again, she was experiencing something new in the line of adventure, which apparently was making a great hit.

The tot was found by Policeman D. H. Davis, of the Second Precinct, wandering near New Jersey avenue and M street northwest. This was about 3:30 p. m. She was turned over to the Women's Bureau, and it was late last night when her mother, Mrs. Edith D. Anthony, of Alexandria, Va., came to claim her.

If there is a law pertaining to bribing small children, the reporter and photographer are in for it. First, it took a shiny five-cent piece to learn her name is "Peggy." Next, it took an ice cream cone (double size) to obtain her consent for a picture.

The afternoon was spent in asking "Peggy" questions. This, according to her answers, or lack of them, was all very foolish. Her name was "Peggy" and that was that. What did mama call papa? Papa, of course.

"PEGGY"

And that's all that could be learned. She remained silent, and had everybody worried, until Mrs. Anthony made an appearance. Peggy, she said, wandered away while they were visiting friends at 43 M street northwest.

Old Liquor Laws Dusted Off as Repeal Vote Swells

Arkansas and Alabama May Stay Dry Despite Law's Defeat.

(Associated Press.)

A lot of old liquor control laws that have been buried under the eighteenth amendment will be brought out and put into use again if national prohibition is discarded.

Although Alabama and Arkansas voted for repeal yesterday, liquor could not be sold in either State legally even if the eighteenth amendment were already out of the Constitution. The two States were dry before the Volstead Act became effective. Dry they will remain after it has gone—unless they change State laws.

Repeal would leave to the individual States again the question whether they want liquor sold. While they are making up their minds, those that were wet would remain wet; the dry States dry.

The Federal laws affecting liquor shipment and taxes that were in effect before prohibition would go into effect automatically if the dry law were repealed, since they never have been taken off the statute books.

Dry States Protected.

Among them is the Webb-Kenyon law, prohibiting the shipment of liquor from wet to dry States. Under this, the Government cooperated with the States in its enforcement.

The old internal revenue laws would become operative again if the amendment is repealed. James M. Doran, the commissioner of industrial alcohol, said yesterday that the denatured alcohol law, governing the manufacture, sale and distribution of that product, and the distilled spirits law, governing the manufacture, sale and distribution of liquor, would be in force again if the eighteenth amendment were removed.

The laws providing penalties under the preprohibition period still are in effect and some of them have been used frequently to punish violators of the national prohibition act who could not be reached as easily under the Volstead act.

If prohibition were repealed, however, officials here said they expected Congress would enact new laws to meet changed conditions.

More Liquors Urged Now.

Meanwhile liquor dealers have urged Doran and the Treasury to authorize an increase in the amount of liquor that may be distilled now. Under the present regulations only about 1,000,000 gallons of liquor a year may be distilled for medicinal use, but the consumption before 1919 averaged about 130,000,000 gallons a year.

A. V. Dalrymple, chief of the Prohibition Bureau, urged additional liquor manufacture after learning the results in Alabama and Arkansas.

The repeal of the eighteenth amendment would become effective when 36 States have ratified the twenty-first amendment, but the Government would not formally announce the result until the Secretary of State proclaimed that the necessary number of States have accepted the amendment.

Courts have ruled, however, that the validity of amendments do not hinge upon the proclamation, but that they are in effect after ratification by the required number of States.

Political Role In Reopening Banks Denied

U. S. Comptroller Says That Democrats Are Not Being Favored.

(Associated Press.)

Assurance that politics had not entered into the question of which of the Nation's closed banks should be granted licenses to reopen was given last night by J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency.

In an address to the District of Columbia division of the Young Democratic Club, he asserted that "no discrimination has been made between Republican dollars and Democratic dollars in closed banks."

"My department has assumed that the Republican depositor, although probably much less in need of his money than his Democratic friend, is just as anxious to get his share of the remaining 5 per cent now in closed national banks.

"Of the many hundreds of depositors, creditors, stockholders and officers with whom I have discussed plans of reopening I have never inquired and do not know the politics of any of them."

Deposits on July 6.

The comptroller said that on July 6 deposits in unlicensed national banks, exclusive of banks in the District of Columbia and in Detroit, amounted to $1,058,902,000, slightly more than 5 per cent of the total deposits last December 31.

He presented figures to show that approximately $17,443,000,000 of deposits in national banks had been released through reopening of the institutions.

Mr. O'Connor said that on March 3 there were 5,938 operating national banks in the United States and of that number 4,509 had been licensed to resume normal banking business by March 15, leaving 1,429 national banks unlicensed.

Seventy-one New Charters.

Since then, he continued, 390 old banks were licensed, 71 new ones chartered through which funds from unlicensed banks were made available and 320 plans of reorganization approved.

He said work of reopening other banks is being accelerated and that unopened banks are given every consideration.

"Of the closed banks 364 have not submitted plans for reorganization," Mr. O'Connor added. "Fifty-three of these banks are located in western Pennsylvania.

"The depositors should insist upon plans being submitted by those in charge of the closed institution. The responsibility rests there. In the event of an arbitrary refusal on the part of the conservator to submit plans, the Comptroller of the Currency will remove him."

Tentative Sugar Code Submitted

(Associated Press.)

A program for regulating the sugar industry, calling for the establishment of a powerful stabilization committee, for fixing quotas and licensing domestic refiners, was submitted yesterday to Secretary Wallace by Dr. John Lee Coulter, member of the Tariff Commission.

Dr. Coulter, recently appointed by Mr. Wallace to work out a trade marketing agreement for the industry, asked for an early public hearing on the plan, which, he explained, was in "tentative form."

A committee representing many of the sources of the American sugar supply assisted Dr. Coulter in the drafting. Most of the members said they "agreed with reservations" with none committed to the quotas establishing the share of each in the American market.

New Preferred List of Ousted Clerks Is Asked

Secretary Roper Moves to Harmonize Ideas on Rehiring of Workers.

Secretary of Commerce Roper, chairman of a special Cabinet committee on personnel problems, yesterday moved to harmonize the Civil Service Commission's preferential reemployment registers with the President's own ideas of rehiring Civil Service workers ousted from old line Federal agencies.

As the first step in the administration's effort to put back to work all "honest to goodness" Civil Service jobless, Secretary Roper will notify the Civil Service Commission to compile a new preferential list, using only the names of workers who have qualified by competitive Civil Service examinations. The President has indicated workers "blanketed" into Civil Service will not be given preference.

At the same time, the Commerce Secretary saved the Government approximately $185,000 and the labor of 79 employes by transferring to the American Standards Association in New York tasks formerly performed by the divisions of simplified practice, building and housing, specifications and trade standards and the section of safety standards.

Actuated by Economy.

He said he was actuated by "economy requirements and the desire to place the responsibility for a unified standardization program in a single national organization representative of both Government and private interests." In a letter to Mr. Roper, President Howard Coonley, of the American Standards Association, agreed to accept the responsibility.

The heads of the several Commerce Department divisions, whose funds already have been cut down by Bureau of Standards retrenchment, will continue their duties at the bureau during the transition period and will act in a liaison capacity with the American Standards Association.

Meanwhile, the Commerce chief made known that $450,000 has been asked of the Public Works Administration to finance testing of materials at the Bureau of Standards under the public works program. He said that if all of this amount is granted, about 330 employes, released from the bureau by economy pressure, will be brought back to duty.

He reiterated this is only a part of the departmental reemployment expected to be made possible by public works funds, a substantial part of which already has been approved by the Public Works Administration. Some of the scientists ousted from the Bureau of Mines may find work to do in the National Recovery Administration, he intimated.

Skeleton Staff.

So far as the divisions of the Bureau of Standards transferred to the American Standards Association are concerned, Mr. Roper pointed out that only a skeleton staff had been maintained in each of them since Congress severely slashed appropriations.

The American Standards Association is a federation of trade associations, technical societies and Government departments.

The Civil Service Reinstatement League, which first announced that liberalization of the economy act's married workers' clause is on the administration's calendar, last night called off a meeting scheduled for Saturday, pending action of the National Industrial Recovery Board on proposals to rehire discharged married workers. The board is scheduled to call up Monday a decision of the Attorney General clarifying the issue.

Radios to Describe Arrival of Balbo

The arrival of Gen. Balbo, commander of the Italian air fleet, and his officers and crew in Washington at approximately 10:30 o'clock this morning will be broadcast by WRC and WJSV.

Gen. Balbo's reception at the White House will be heard over the same stations, the former at 12:50 o'clock this afternoon and the latter at 12:45.

Following the White House reception WJSV will broadcast the greeting to the officers and crew of Gen. Balbo at the luncheon given by the Overseas Writers. There is a possibility this may also be heard over WRC or WMAL.

F. R. McNinch Heads Federal Power Board

Smith Out as Chairman, Desiring "Cooperation With Roosevelt."

(Associated Press.)

Acquiescing to the desire of President Roosevelt to have a man of his own selection as chairman of the Federal Power Commission, George Otis Smith vacated that post yesterday to make way for the appointment of Frank R. McNinch.

Mr. McNinch, a Democrat, who has been vice chairman for several months since the Democratic victory, said shortly after his appointment by President Roosevelt that "no honestly administered power company has anything to fear from this commission, but crooked ones would do well to make straight their paths."

Mr. Smith made public simultaneously with a letter from President Roosevelt announcing the change, a copy of his letter of resignation to the White House, in which he said:

"I am prompted to take this step by my sincere wish to cooperate and my full agreement with your natural desire to have the head of the commission one of your own selection."

His resignation was only as chairman, but it was expected in authoritative circles that he would leave the commission entirely within the next 90 days.

President Roosevelt's letter to the commission follows:

"In view of the resignation of George Otis Smith as chairman of the Federal Power Commission I hereby designate Hon. Frank R. McNinch as chairman and request the immediate concurrence of this commission."

McNinch's designation as chairman was confirmed promptly by the commission by a unanimous vote with McNinch not voting. The commission then selected Basil Manly, who was appointed in May by President Roosevelt, as vice chairman.

Smith, who for months was the center of a controversy with the Senate over his right to the seat, in his letter of resignation to Mr. Roosevelt said that while he remained on the commission his change in duties would in "no wise affect my continued endeavor to promote the movement toward the better regulation of business which is so outstanding a policy of your administration."

McNinch, who became a member of the commission early in 1931, is a native of Charlotte, N. C., and is 60. Once a member of the North Carolina Legislature, his only other political office was as Mayor of Charlotte for two terms during the World War.

Ginsburgh Takes Course at Harvard

"I want to go to Harvard to study law," was Ginsburgh's answer.

And although this involved the transfer of the officer into the Judge Advocate General's department from the Field Artillery, in which he was originally commissioned, the Secretary, in a generous mood, promised that his wish should be granted.

Hurley Pulls "Boner."

Everything looked very promising until one evening Mr. Hurley pulled a "boner." Following an unusually successful speech, the Secretary received more than the usual amount of congratulations. Feeling very enthusiastic over his success, he introduced Ginsburgh as "the man who really wrote the speech."

With that remark a cloud was cast over the future of Abraham Ginsburgh's life. The story reached the ears of an enterprising newspaperman who published it. It was copied and recopied. Hurley was then chided for allowing an officer to write his speeches. Then he was criticized for letting the story out. And not knowing just who to blame for it all his friendship for Ginsburgh cooled materially.

The officer was detailed to act as an escort for the pilgrimage of mothers and widows to the cemeteries of Europe. He saw his chances for a law course at Harvard fade into oblivion.

And then the Republicans were defeated, Hurley was to leave office and a new secretary with a new literary assistant would come into the War Department.

Philosophically Ginsburgh packed his bags, took his wife and three children to Paris. He might as well have a good time abroad if he couldn't become a lawyer. It had been very nice planning to go to Harvard anyway.

Red Letter Day For Captain.

But yesterday was a red letter day in the life of Capt. Abraham Ginsburgh. "By direction of the President" he was transferred to the Judge Advocate General's department, relieved from assignment and duty with the war mothers' pilgrimage and ordered to report for classes at Harvard in the fall.

Ginsburgh at 37 is recognized as one of the most brilliant of the officers of the army. He was born in Warsaw, Poland. He holds an A.B. from Harvard, from which school he was graduated magna cum laude and as a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He holds another degree from the University of Louisville and still another from the University of Missouri, where he studied journalism. He became editor of the Army's Recruiting News before coming here, and has been a regular contributor to a number of national magazines.

Ginsburgh and his friends are a little baffled at all the consideration he has received from the generals at the War Department. But he is willing to write speeches for the Democrats and guarantee they will be good. He is all for the new deal.

One explanation is that Dern appreciates the lesson he learned from the Hurley-Ginsburgh relationship. He refuses to have an officer detailed as his literary aid, and the regular press relations officers at the War Department swear that he writes his own copy.

"HI" DRIVING COST

When you get off the CONCRETE, HIGH DRIVING COST gets in. Repair bills on your car go up. You buy more gasoline, use up more tires. Depreciation is faster.

And that applies to any type of road that is LESS THAN CONCRETE!

Prove it? It's been proved—by government and state engineers who have been making impartial road tests since 1917. They have measured—in dollars and cents—what it costs to drive on each type of road. They've proved that it costs less to drive on CONCRETE than any other type of road.

That's why "cheap" roads are really expensive! For the real cost of a road is the cost of building and maintenance PLUS the cost of using it. CONCRETE ROADS save money. They cost less to maintain. They lower the cost of automobile operation. Insist on CONCRETE for economy, permanence and driving comfort.

HERE'S HOW
Less-Than-Concrete Roads Increase Driving Costs

IT COSTS, on the Average:

3/4¢ ½¢ more per mile to drive on bituminous macadam than on concrete.

1 1/4¢ 1¼¢ more per mile to drive on gravel than on concrete.

2¢ 2¢ more per mile to drive on an earth road than on concrete.

Silver Scheme Encouraged at London Parley

Subcommittee Accepts Part of Proposals by Sen. Pittman.

London, July 19 (AP).—Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, received some encouragement for his silver revival plans today as the World Economic Conference moved steadily toward adjournment July 27, one committee after another deciding to postpone consideration indefinitely on their problems.

The Nevada senator achieved the acceptance by a subcommittee of part of his proposals for increasing the use of the white metal in subsidiary coinage and preventing further debasement of silver money.

The silver agreement, however, is finally dependent upon conclusion of an agreement between the chief producers and holders before April 1, 1934.

As the small divisions of the parley's organization laid aside their tasks until a more convenient season, talk of the time for reconvening the sessions revolved almost wholly around developments in the United States.

Virgil Madgeru, Roumanian finance minister, told news correspondents that "resumption and completion of the work of the conference will undoubtedly depend upon the development of the economic and monetary situation in America."

Balbo and His Men Arrive Here Today

as guests of Secretary of the Navy and Acting Secretary of War.

8:30 a. m. Friday—Departure from Bolling Field.

Army and Navy's Guests.

During their stay in Washington, the Italians will be guests of the Army and Navy.

Discussing the flight of the 24 giant seaplanes across the Atlantic, Maj. Gen. B. D. Foulois said yesterday:

"The flight of Gen. Balbo demonstrates to the world the efficiency of the Italian air force in being able to utilize the most up-to-date equipment and technical methods in carrying out a mass flight under varying, and, at times, most difficult weather conditions.

"The success of the flight reflects the thorough preparation of personnel and material therefor. It was carried out in a systematic and scientific manner. It represents a great step toward linking Europe and North America permanently by regular passenger and commercial service by air, which we will all see in the not distant future."

The Lido Civic Club will participate in the official reception tendered to the Italians when they arrive today. Dr. Raphael N. Manganaro, president, will welcome the men on behalf of the club.

New York, July 19 (U.P.).—Their giant motors droning an imperious salute to America's first metropolis, Gen. Italo Balbo's 24 Italian fighting seaplanes swept down the Hudson Valley late today, veered across the flatlands of Brooklyn and came to rest on the waters of Jamaica Bay.

A nineteen-gun salute and a deafening roar of acclaim from a crowd of 75,000 greeted Gen. Balbo and his air adventurers as they dropped from the hazy sky to complete a 1,000-mile flight from Chicago.

In addition to the 75,000 persons concentrated at Floyd Bennett Field and along the bay shore, police estimated that fully 500,000 more gathered along the Coney Island boardwalk to watch the armada, flying in triads, move majestically through giant fingers of sunlight which filtered from the clouds.

Seven Hours From Chicago.

Gen. Balbo brought his lead ship to the water at 3:56 p. m., and 23 minutes later the last of the 6½-ton planes was cutting gracefully across the bay toward its moorings.

The Balbo fleet reached Jamaica Bay 7 hours and 14 minutes after its departure from Chicago, having flown eastward via Toledo, Cleveland and Niagara Falls, veering southward to pick up the Hudson near Poughkeepsie, and following the water route down to the tip of Manhattan.

Thousands gathered on the tops of skyscrapers and apartment buildings in New York to watch them sweep down the river.

Carnera in Crowd.

A committee of 800, headed by Generoso Pope, Italian-American publisher, greeted Balbo and his men as they were brought ashore in speedboats. The commander of the fight was escorted by Admiral Yates Stirling, jr., and Maj. Gen. Dennie E. Nolan.

In the crowd privileged to mass at the shore near the flight base could be discerned one towering figure—the immense Primo Carnera, the first Italian ever to become heavyweight champion of the world. Others present included Amelia Earhart Putnam, Frank Hawks, and Al Williams, all noted American fliers.

From the landing base Gen. Balbo and his men were carried by automobile to the hotel which is to be their headquarters during the eight or more days they will be here, while their ships are being prepared for the homeward journey to Rome.

Blind Street Foils Theft.

Miami, Okla., July 19 (AP).—Motor car thieves who took Bert Wall's sedan will study a city map next time. Speeding away with the car, they struck a blind street ending in a gully and the machine toppled over an embankment.

Senator Sheppard's Daughter Has Her Marriage Annuled

Surprise Wedding of Last Fall Ends on Rocks in Los Angeles.

JANET SHEPPARD GRAVES.

The marriage of Janet Sheppard Graves, daughter of Senator Morris Sheppard, of Texas, to William A. Graves, New York real estate broker and former dramatic art student, which came as a surprise to many of her friends in Washington last November 25, was annulled in Superior Court in Los Angeles yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Mrs. Graves, who is in Hollywood seeking a screen career, said in her petition that before she and Mr. Graves were married they agreed it would be desirable to rear a family. She charged that after they were married Graves refused to allow her to become a mother.

Their romance began when they were students at the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York City. She went West shortly after the marriage. Graves remained in the East. He did not contest the annulment action.

Tennessee Wets Expecting Victory

Oregon Votes Tomorrow.

Oregon will vote on the issue tomorrow. Fifteen other States have set elections for before November 8. If all should vote wet, it would bring to 35 the number of States favoring repeal, just 1 short of the 36 required for ratification of the repeal amendment. Repealists expect that needed State to come from among Montana, Oklahoma, Utah, Virginia or Louisiana, which have projects afoot for elections possibly before the end of the year.

Tabulations of returns from Tuesday's elections, still incomplete, but regarded by both wets and drys as decisive, showed repealists leading by a majority of nearly 9 to 5 in Alabama and by 5 to 3 in Arkansas.

In Alabama returns from 1,691 of the State's 2,115 ballot boxes, gave 96,801 votes for repeal and 59,997 against.

Results from 1,311 of Arkansas' 2,100 precincts showed 58,602 votes for repeal and 38,272 against.

Early End Forecast.

The overturn of traditionally dry sentiment in the South, as indicated by the Alabama and Arkansas votes, was considered by even many dry leaders as forecasting the early end of the eighteenth amendment.

Tennessee is the nineteenth State to consider the repeal amendment. None of the 18 States which have voted so far has cast a decision for retention of national prohibition. The States which have approved repeal are: New Jersey, Indiana, Rhode Island, Delaware, Michigan, Wyoming, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, New York, Illinois, Nevada, New Hampshire, Iowa, West Virginia, California, Alabama and Arkansas.

Capital Man, Wife Seized in Gunplay

Couple Accused of Trying Gas Station Holdup at Chambersburg.

Chambersburg, Pa., July 19 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, of Washington, D. C., who, police said, flashed pistols freely, were under arrest today, charged with an attempt to hold up Lehman Ebersole, gasoline station owner.

Ebersole reported that Clark drew a pistol after buying gasoline, but fled when Ebersole called to the attendant at a neighboring station.

As the couple drove away, Ebersole said, Mrs. Clark pointed a pistol at the man who came running to his aid. The Clarks, he said, drove toward Shippensburg, but were arrested by Corpl. C. W. Grein, of the State highway patrol, as they doubled back on their trail.

Grein said as the fleeing car rounded a curve Mrs. Clark pointed a pistol at him, but did not fire. He said Clark stopped his car after the patrolman fired a warning shot.

Noted Welfare Worker Dies.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 19 (AP). Dr. Charles E. Jackson, 55, native of Boston and dean of St. Mark's Episcopal-Pro-Cathedral, here, for 11 years, died today after a brief illness. He was widely known for his interest in welfare work. The widow and three daughters survive.

President's Son And Mrs. Dall At World Fair

Ruth Googins Is Not Along, as Elliott Says Nuptial Rumors Are "Wet."

Chicago, July 19 (AP)—Among those who mingled with World's Fair crowds today were Mrs. Anne Roosevelt Dall and Elliott Roosevelt, daughter and son of the Nation's Chief Executive.

Mrs. Dall, smiling and genial, stepped off the New York Central's Commodore Vanderbilt train shortly after noon and was met at the platform by her younger brother.

Unabashed by the small knot of curious onlookers, the strapping son of President Roosevelt swept Mrs. Dall into his arms and planted a vigorous kiss.

"Always Been Good Pals."

"We've always been good pals," Mrs. Dall said. "We're going to have several days of fun together during the fair."

And that, she emphasized, was her sole purpose in making the visit. She hadn't come to offer Elliott any advice concerning his matrimonial plans—if he had any.

"I really don't know anything about it," she said. "It's none of my business—purely Elliott's personal affair. I don't even know Miss Googins."

Then she and her brother, accompanied by the latter's attorney, Samuel Platt, took a taxicab to a Southside hotel for luncheon. From there, after Mrs. Platt had joined the party, they went to the Century of Progress grounds.

Reticent About Girl.

Elliott showed a disinclination to discuss Miss Googins, preferring to talk about other and assorted subjects.

He did not see her today, he said, in fact, hadn't visited her since early last night.

"Then," he said, "I just went to apologize for the annoyance she has suffered on my account."

Rumors that he contemplated marrying her he branded as "all wet."

Elliott arrived in Chicago by plane yesterday from Nevada, where his marriage to Mrs. Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt was ended by divorce. It was matter of considerable surprise to him, he said, to learn that Miss Googins, who has been here several days, was staying at a hotel just two blocks away from the one he chose.

George F. Sheer, 52, B. & O. Agent, Is Dead

Columbus, Ohio, July 19 (AP).—George F. Sheer, 52, assistant general passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, with headquarters at St. Louis, died early today in a hospital here. He had been under treatment for uremia for five weeks.

In the service of the B. & O. for 35 years, he was a brother of E. W. Scheer, of Philadelphia, vice president of the Reading Railroad.

Chicago Gang Guns Riddle Saloon; 1 Dead, 3 Wounded

Children Flee Bullets as Hoodlums Raid Place Twice in Day.

Chicago, July 19 (AP).—Gangland guns today fired a new barrage into a West Side saloon, wounding another man and sending the casualties in the attacks of the last 24 hours on the place to one dead and three injured.

Scores of children and pedestrians screamed and scampered to safety as an automobile drew up in front of the building and revolvers riddled windows of the place.

The saloon keeper and two of his cousins, one a policeman, dropped to the floor to escape the pistol slugs. Frank Tiritilli, an iceman, was struck by bullets as he left the saloon.

Last night hoodlums killed Emil Onesto and wounded two others in front of the same saloon. Clemento Cozzi, the saloonkeeper, professed to know no reason for the shootings.

Tactics in both attacks were similar. That convinced police the same gang was responsible for both. Today the hoodlums' automobile careened around the block three times. Suddenly, brakes screamed, the car halted and from six pistols slugs spattered. Then gears clashed and the car darted away.

Volcano Crater Keeps Arctic Explorer Warm

Seattle, July 19 (AP).—Prof. Roderick Chisholm came back from Unimak Island, in the Far North, to tell how he climbed the ice-coated sides of a 45-degree mountain during a Bering Sea gale—so he could get warm. The mountain happened to be the famed volcano, Shishaldin, and he knew that if he reached the top and climbed inside the crater it would be plenty warm.

New National Forest Lands To Be Bought

Order by President Will Set Aside $20,000,000 as Purchase Price.

An extensive program of expansion of national forests will be initiated by an executive order now before President Roosevelt for signature, it was learned last night.

The order will earmark $20,000,000 of public works funds for the purchase of new national forest lands. The land is being bought at this time in order that it may be developed by members of the Civilian Conservation Corps. It is estimated that the public domain can be increased by several million acres through use of these funds.

The President also has issued an executive order giving the Secretary of Agriculture authority to set up new national forests. Sites for 12 new forests have been selected and others are being considered.

Location of Forests.

Establishment of one or more forests in the eastern part of North Carolina is being considered. Two forests will be established in southern Illinois, five in southern Missouri, and four in Mississippi.

One or two others will be set up in Texas. This will establish national forests in three States which do not now have any.

The order allotting public works funds to land purchases is the third attempt which has been made to secure these funds. On May 20 an order was signed earmarking $20,000,000 of the Conservation Corps appropriation for the purchase of national forest land.

The Budget Bureau had difficulty in assembling corps funds, so this money was not made available.

Order for $20,000,000.

On June 7 the President signed another order directing that $20,000,000 for land purchase be taken from "unobligated moneys appropriated for public works." This order did not state the exact appropriation which was to furnish the funds, so they were not forthcoming.

It was pointed out that the new forests, particularly those in the Southwest, could utilize the reforestation workers when they are driven out of the mountain camps by autumn snows. Enlistment of many of the men will not expire until the latter part of November.

U. S. Bridge Team Threatens British

Half Way Point Reached; Americans Are 320 Points Behind.

London, July 19 (AP).—The American team led by Ely Culbertson staged a spectacular comeback to advance within 320 points of the English team as an international bridge match of 300 duplicate boards for a trophy posted by Charles M. Schwab reached the half-way mark tonight.

The scores at the conclusion of 150 boards were: England, 46,050; United States, 45,730.

The third day's play fluctuated widely, the British team at one time reaching a lead of 3,390, but the Americans, hammering away with daring offensives, reduced the figure.

Directors Named To Aid Jobless

Emergency Set-Ups Listed for States Under Recovery Act.

(Associated Press.)

The administration yesterday announced its emergency set-up for placing hundreds of thousands unemployed on jobs to be created under the national industrial recovery act.

Secretary Frances Perkins in making public the names of reemployment directors in each State said the entire organization was already on the job and that W. Frank Persons, director of the United States Employment Service, would handle the new service.

The reemployment service, an emergency organization, will last only five months. Some of the directors are voluntary workers, interested in seeing to it that as many persons as possible are given jobs quickly.

The State directors named include:

Maryland—Oliver C. Short, State employment commissioner, 22 Light street, Baltimore.

Virginia—George W. Guy, 1909 Fourth avenue, Richmond.

R. F. C. Gives Loan to Open Northwest Banks

(Associated Press.)

The Reconstruction Corporation directors have authorized a loan of $3,750,000 to rehabilitate the old National Bank & Union Trust Co., of Spokane, Wash., and its 16 affiliates in the Northwest.

Although the corporation has authorized the loan from its funds, the deal can not be consummated until the Comptroller of the Currency gives his approval of plans for reorganization of the bank and its affiliates.

At the office of the Comptroller it was said consideration was being given to reopening the banks, but that developments had not reached the announcement stage.

Scripps, 78, of La Jolla, Calif., died suddenly at a beach cottage north of here today while visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pierce, of Yuma, Ariz. She was the widow of W. Dies in Canal

Youth Drowns; Ignored Ban On Swimming

Emmett L. McNeill, jr., 18-year-old Central High School junior, was drowned before the eyes of his sister, Miss Elizabeth McNeill, 20, and a companion, Chester Clark, 17, of 1604 Park road northwest, also a student at Central.

According to the story told Policeman John Butts, of the Montgomery County Police headquarters, at Rockville, Md., the trio had gone to the swimming place yesterday for a picnic.

While the sister remained on the bank, the two youths started to swim across the 100-yard expanse. They crossed the water and started back. Clark made the return trip safely, but McNeill suddenly halted and then slipped beneath the water without an outcry about 30 feet from the far bank.

Clark, John Panetta, 19, of 120 R street northeast; James Cornett, 18, of 515 Taylor street, and Jerome Cecchini, 16, of 52 H street northeast, failed to find McNeil. The Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department rescue squad had not found the body last night.

Widewater is on the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal, about a mile below Great Falls. Its icy waters have cost scores of swimmers their lives. The Montgomery County Commissioners recently adopted an ordinance prohibiting swimming in the canal at that point. The road leading to the canal was closed and a barrier erected, as well as signs warning against trespassing, but these have been ignored by swimmers.

She Still Loves Mate, Mrs. Hutton Declares

Los Angeles, July 19 (AP).—In a copyrighted article based on a wireless interview with Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton in mid-Atlantic, the Examiner said today the homeward bound Evangelist made another effort to sweep aside difficulties between her and David L. Hutton, jr., and reiterated the hope they can continue their lives together.

"I am still completely in love with him," one of her messages to the Examiner said. "I console myself with the faith that when the business tangles at Angelus Temple are adjusted, the clouds will roll quickly away and we will live happily ever after."

Mandates Bar Peoples' Union, Says Teacher

Head of Girls' School at Bagdad Speaks Before Women's Congress.

Chicago, July 19 (AP).—Charges that the great powers in directing mandates were preventing the union and development of Arabic peoples were made today by Miss Alice Kandaleft, head of a girls' school at Bagdad.

Referring specially to the French mandate over her homeland, Syria, Miss Kandaleft said "the new imperialism over the mandated regions is merely a new form and technique of the old historic atrocity of confiscation and exploitation of one people by another."

She spoke at the International Congress of Women, which has called itself the first international women's economic conference in history.

Her remarks prompted a ready defense of the French mandate by Mme. Marthe Oulie, French writer, who said the reason the mandated countries had been placed under protection of the powers was because they so far had not demonstrated that they could govern themselves.

"Since France has had the mandate over Syria," she said later in an interview, "my country has built schools, hospitals, roads. No longer are the black people from the Sudan taken into captivity as slaves, as they were before the French came."

Mme. Oulie said she had been assured by Arabic chieftains that should the French leave, wars among themselves again would break out and that they "would kill the Christians."

"As far as Syria is concerned," she said, "the natives do have a voice in their government. Members of their parliament are elected by themselves. Even in the French-controlled schools, natives, if qualified, may teach."

New U. S. Oil Laws Praised by Texan

State Conservation Order Safeguard Described as Operating Well.

(Associated Press.)

Ernest O. Thompson, a member of the Texas railroad commission, yesterday informed Secretary Ickes that "not a barrel of hot oil" moved out of Texas Tuesday for the first time in months as a result of Federal regulations prohibiting interstate movement of petroleum produced in violation of State conservation orders.

Mr. Thompson, smiling broadly as he left Mr. Ickes' office, said:

"I came by to thank Ickes, and anybody else who had anything to do with this Federal regulation. It provides what is necessary to control the situation as it goes after interstate traffic while we were limited to intrastate control."

Remarking that Monday about 500 cars of illegally produced oil moved out of Texas, Mr. Thompson said that Tuesday's report of no movement of illegal oil was "because the Federal order closed the gap that we could not."

Farmer, Wife Hold Up Bank, Wound Three

Fennville, Mich., July 19 (AP).—A 45-year-old farmer and his wife, who told the sheriff's deputies they were "nearly starved all the time," were in jail today after wounding three men in a daring daylight hold-up of the old State bank here. The $2,000 cash they obtained was recovered.

The pair, Edward Austin and his wife Grace, also 45, are awaiting arraignment, which was held up pending the outcome of injuries to the three men. Austin also suffered wounds which physicians said are not serious.

Canary Saved From Cat By Deadly Golf Swing

Chicago, July 19 (AP).—The story of the cat and the canary as it came out in court was like this:

Adolph Schnidzel, owner of Gwendolyn, the canary, had the bird out in the sunny back yard of his Evanston home, whle he practiced golf strokes.

Rosalie, Roy M. Lecy's cat, had a felonious paw on the door of the bird's cage when Schnidzel swung his niblick.

Rosalie died suddenly.

Mr. Schnidzel was fined $10 by Judge Harry Porter.

Freedom Act Acceptance by Filipinos Seen

Nacionalista Faction Heads See Accord if Quezon's Objections Are Met.

Manila, July 19 (AP).—Members of both factions of the dominant Nacionalista party predicted tonight that eventual Philippine independence tendered by the United States would be accepted after a plebiscite or through a national convention.

They also expressed the opinion that reorganization of the Legislature would be followed by formation of rival parties, displacing the Nacionalista, with its shibboleth of "immediate, complete, absolute independence." The congressional act would grant insular freedom after a ten-year transitional period.

The Manila Tribune asserted a survey showed a majority of the legislators favored aceptance with provisos for meeting objections by Manuel Quezon, president of the senate. These objections are to retention of naval bases by the United States and to limitation of Philippine imports into the United States during the decade.

Meanwhile, Senor Quezon remained in the saddle politically with rejections of his resignation as head of the Nacionalista party by its executive committee yesterday, and his adherents prepared to seize political plums.

The Federal Diary

By George D. Riley.

Federal Diary Code for U. S. Employes

1. Restoration of Federal employes' basic pay.
2. Abolition of present efficiency rating system (graphic rating scale).
3. Voice for civilian employes to eliminate unfair practices.
4. Restoration of 30-day annual leave.
5. Franchise in the District.
6. Five-day week for all Federal employes without loss of pay.

LET us hope that out of the slough of ill-advised assaults on Civil Service some constructive measures will ensue.

The whole rating system, in the opinion of The Federal Diary, is deserving of a thorough revision or replacement. After all, efficiency ratings are only the opinions of what one man or woman thinks subordinates merit. This thing of running ratings into decimals and two points is comedy.

Look at all the grief the rating system has brought this year alone. Consider secret hearings, charges that unfairness has played a big hand, all because of efficiency ratings handed out and resented as unjust. Figures can be made to "prove" anything but they do not always prove anything.

You will find one bureau thinks in terms of 100 per cent. Another decides no one is perfect, therefore, no one deserves a 100 per cent rating.

WE know of the case of a man who for years had been given a 100 per cent rating. Things changed (and don't they?). His incoming superior decided it was all wrong. Nothing personal, of course, but "no one is entitled to a perfect rating." Then the task of finding how to knock down the score. The man was accurate, he was fast, his health was good, he was not tardy. What to do? At last it was decided he was not "energetic" enough. There was the loophole and, bing, went his perfect score. He is energetic but how much is "enough?"

Twice he has been credited with two years extra on retirement, something he felt he could rely on. The administration changed. Off went the four years.

"Attitude!" Ah, there's a word for reflection. Attitude. Some do not have the "proper attitude." So off go some points.

Jimmie Durante would make a perfect record in Federal service, no doubt. Jimmie always keeps his "attitude."

If you can keep your "attitude," if you can be "energetic," if you can balance your budget and not unbalance your mind and then report to work the next day filled with the joy of what have you, you surely will fulfill the prescription formulated by Rudyard Kipling when he outlined the pattern of a man in his forceful lines of "If."

"I AM too young a man to quit yet."

JOHN W. DE GRANGE.

It is an answer hundreds of other competent workers hit by 30-year compulsory retirement are making.

Untrained for a profession, like the mass of Civil Service employes, specialized in the routine of Government, Mr. DeGrange is canvassing the outside world of business for a niche he is determined to find.

"Perhaps I will sell insurance," he suggested.

We here cite his case as typical of hundreds:

Mr. DeGrange has worked under eight Secretaries of Interior since he came to Washington from Berkley Springs, W. Va., in 1899 to take service with his Government.

During most of that time he has served in the busy section of mails and files. There never has been any question as to the high caliber of his work. When he was retired last Saturday, against his will, his efficiency rating stood at 88.10.

Out of 14 released from the Secretary's office, 13 were let out under the 30-year involuntary retirement provision—one under the so-called married workers' clause. Yet, when these were released, there were six married workers, whose mates also are employed in the Government, who were allowed to remain.

Mr. DeGrange has been active in civic endeavors, is a member of the Knights of Pythias, plays a prominent role in the activities of the Episcopal Laymen's Service Association and of the Church of the Advent.

He lives at 25 U street northeast.

Sorry Miles A. Furnas, Federal Trade Commission, will be away from Washington when we leave for the salt water rodeo Saturday.

PRESIDENT Roosevelt is urged to continue extensions of the classified competitive service made by his predecessors by executive order, in a letter addressed to him by the National Civil Service Reform League, signed by W. W. Montgomery, jr., chairman, league's executive committee.

The President is asked not to approve a proposed repeal of executive orders of Presidents Coolidge and Hoover, extending the competitive services to some 4,600 positions in Federal service and which positions are now proposed to be thrown open to spoilsmen.

"Any attempt to undo extensions of the classified service made by any of the Presidents for the mere purpose of turning out incumbents and replacing them with persons whose political affiliations coincide with the administration in power," states the letter, "would be a deplorable backward step and could not fail to call for widespread public condemnation."

The league points out that there would be no objection if the 4,600 positions were to be filled as the result of open competitive examinations as required by the civil service law.

Thanks to William C. Hull, acting secretary, C. S. C. Corporation from the Federal Diary is assured.

Entrance salary for assistant messenger is $1,080 a year, and junior messenger $600 a year, less 15 per cent and retirement deduction of 3½ per cent.

As of Maryland, Virginia, Iowa, New Hampshire, Vermont and the District of Columbia have already received appointments in excess of their quotas under apportionment, residents of these States and the District of Columbia will not be admitted to this examination unless they submit documentary proof of military preference.

Information may be had at the Civil Service Commission, Seventh and F streets northwest.

50 Years—50 Roses.

THE postmaster's office, City Postoffice, recently was the scene of a wonderful tribute, well deserved, to Robert W. Fowler, 55 M street northwest, foreman foreign inquiry division. Mr. Fowler had just rounded out 50 years' service in the department, having started in the low grade work and climbed rung by rung till he reached his present level.

Mr. Fowler was summoned to the office of Postmaster Mooney. There he was greeted by employes, all of whom had a minimum of 35 years each to their credit. Mr. Mooney told Mr. Fowler the department wished to pay its respects to a man who has labored faithfully for a half century and extended congratulations. W. H. Haycock, assistant postmaster, then presented Mr. Fowler with a basket of 50 golden roses from the supervising division and made some fitting remarks of tribute.

It was one of those rare occasions. A man had rounded out 50 useful years in Federal work in a branch of Government service where long-term records are customary.

Mr. Fowler is only 68 years old, with all his years in official service. He probably will be retired in two years.

Firemen of 2 Counties Join Labor Day Fete

Montgomery and Arlington Men Vie for Trophies in "Biggest" Parade.

Montgomery and Arlington Counties have officially indorsed and entered the eleventh annual National Firemen's Labor Day parade. Other counties nearby are expected to follow this week.

A letter from John L. Imirie, secretary of the Montgomery County Association of Volunteer Firemen, to Noble F. Rushe, vice president of the National Firemen's Association, tells of the indorsement.

Secretary Imirie stated the executive committee of his organization went on record as pledging to do everything possible to make this year's Labor Day celebration the biggest in its history.

It is the desire of the Montgomery Firefighters to parade as a unit, with their own bands, marchers and floats. Already they have planned to take off several of the cash prizes and trophies.

Will Attend Convention.

The Arlington association, at a meeting Tuesday night, voted to attend the parade and to take part in the national firemen's convention in Washington on Sunday preceding Labor Day. A convention delegate from each company in the Arlington association will be selected shortly.

A desire to parade as a unit was expressed also by the Arlington firemen. Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, parade marshal, is working out details along this line.

Meanwhile, the trophy committee of the parade continues its work. The Burlington Hotel, at which a number of fire fighters stop each year, has donated the Burlington trophy, one of the prettiest cups yet included in the group. Manager Nash of the Burlington gave the trophy yesterday.

The trophy committee has set a total of 45 cups as the goal this year. When a majority of them have been pledged or secured, they will be exhibited at a prominent downtown location.

Merchants' Aid Invited.

Merchants in Washington, or elsewhere, or persons interested in helping the firemen make this year's parade the most successful in its 11 years are urged to communicate with Sergt. Bargagni if they desire to help the committee with trophies.

Meetings are being held almost nightly by the parade committee and visits are being made to fire companies in Maryland and Virginia as they plan for the September celebration.

Many bands and drum corps have been reached with invitations, but Sergt. Bargagni feels there are some he has missed. All organizations with music desiring to enter the parade are urged to communicate with the parade marshal through the District Fire Department. Early entrants are assured of better positions than those which enter at the last moment.

The bicycle and roller skating sweepstakes, which will immediately precede the parade, is going along at great speed in it preparatory plans. Chief George S. Watson of the District Fire Department has issued a challenge to Police Superintendent Maj. Ernest Brown to race down Pennsylvania avenue on cycles. The head of the constabulary is expected to answer the fireman's challenge with an acceptance.

Naval Academy Plans To Fete Desta Demtu

District Auto Plates Cause Virginia Arrests

As a result of a drive being made by the Fairfax County police against residents of Virginia who are operating automobiles on District of Columbia license tags, ten persons have been summoned by Officer Louis L. Finks to appear in the trial justice court at Fairfax to answer charges of operating cars on improper tags.

All of the motorists were caught early yesterday on the Telegraph road, in Mount Vernon district, following complaints that a number of motorists who had recently moved into this part of the county had failed to get State license tags for their automobiles.

Old Capitol Replica to Be Built At St. Marys, First State Seat

Special to The Washington Post.

Leonardtown, Md., July 19.—At the first capital site of Maryland, at St. Marys City, 16 miles below here, where in 1934 Maryland will celebrate her 300th anniversary, plans have been completed to erect a Statehouse. It will cost about $25,000 and has just been authorized by Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, it was learned today.

It will be a replica of the one built at St. Marys City in 1676. It will be a permanent memorial to the early colonists who founded Maryland at that place.

This will be the only building built there by the tercentenary commission. It will be surrounded by a beautiful park and two avenue approaches, one from the lower part of St. Marys County and the other from Leonardtown and the upper part of St. Marys County.

This building will be used as a museum and in which to keep old records, and in its various rooms will be found heirlooms of great historical value.

One room will be set aside as a map and chart room, while another will contain a 10-foot mural of the original seat of Government in colonial times.

Patriotic and historical societies and D. A. R. chapters will have memorials placed there in the building, the grounds and at each gateway.

The building will be built of hand-made brick, white trim wood, and will be two stories.

It will follow to the letter the exact reproduction of the original Statehouse that was authorized to be built by the Colonial Legislature of 1668.

Old Trinity Episcopal Church, at St. Marys City, was built out of the bricks of the original Statehouse when it was torn down and the capital moved to Annapolis in 1829. This church is considered the most beautiful rural edifice in the United States, and is covered with ivy grown from a sprig brought over from Kenilworth Castle, England.

The land on which the memorial Statehouse is to be built was given by Mr. and Mrs. James Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. Spence Howard, who own St. Marys Manor, at St. Marys City, the former home of Leonard Calvert.

A number of works of Washington poets will be read anonymously. Selections from the classics will be interspersed with local poems. The audience will be asked to indicate their favorites. At the conclusion, the name of each author will be announced. Several will be present personally.

Police Guard Dying Victim Of Gun Battle

With a police guard at his bedside in Emergency Hospital, Charles McAvoy, 27, of 635 Eleventh street northwest, lies critically wounded with bullets of a policeman's revolver in his side.

A murder charge was placed against him after Frank Snow, 30-year-old bricklayer, of 907 H street northwest, succumbed early yesterday to wounds received in a Ninth street poolroom shooting affray Tuesday night.

Threatening to "get" Snow, police reported, McAvoy went to the Academy Poolroom, 744 Ninth street northwest, and before any one could interfere, fired five shots, four of which struck Snow in the abdomen and chest.

The fifth bullet went astray and felled Charles Neil, 27, of 1223 Twelfth street northwest, who was standing nearby watching a pool game. He was reported near death in Emergency Hospital last night.

McAvoy, it was alleged, first threatened to "shoot up" the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pope, 917 H street northwest. He went from there to the pool room.

Policeman U. M. Gale, of the First Precinct, investigating a complaint from the Pope apartment, followed McAvoy and entered the pool room just as he opened fire on Snow.

As Snow fell to the floor and the stray bullet struck Neil, McAvoy whirled and shot twice at Gale. The policeman returned the fire when McAvoy's shots went wild and struck the door behind him. Gale wounded McAvoy in the side.

New Post Comic Strip Series On Air Tonight

Justin Winkle to Portray Role of Joe Palooka for WOL Program.

Tonight the Northern Dramatic Company goes on the air with Joe Palooka, the new comic which is appearing in The Post. WOL is the station.

C. M. Roach, who is writing the series around the famous prize fighter of the comic strips, is one of Washington's leading radio playwrights. He first won recognition in a contest about two years ago, and since that time has contributed many excellent scripts for the air. He is the author of the radio plays "Paste," "The Upward Shot" and "On the Corner."

Justin Winkle, who will portray cartoonist Ham Fisher's Joe Palooka, is one of the best known radio dramatists in national circles. He has an exceptionally fine voice, which is especially adapted to emotional and comedy roles.

"Knobby," in the comic strip will be done by Palmer Brink, a good actor, too, but one who prefers to give his principal attention to radio sound effects. He is the sound technician of the company.

Ronald Dawson, one of the most widely known radio dramatists, will do the part of "Hype." He also is director of the company. He has won the plaudits of scores of radio columnists for his handling of dialect roles.

John Gant, assistant to Dawson, will supervise the technical production.

THE MASTERPIECE OF TIRE CONSTRUCTION

EVERY FIBER EVERY CORD EVERY PLY IS BLOWOUT PROTECTED BY Gum-Dipping

BLOWOUTS are caused by frictional heat generated in the fibers of the cotton cords in a tire. Firestone is the only tire built with every cotton fiber saturated and coated with pure rubber—to prevent destructive heat. This is one of the reasons why Firestone Tires have been on the winning cars in the 500 mile Indianapolis Race for 14 consecutive years—the world's most severe blowout test.

Rubber has gone up 242%, cotton 115%—substantial tire price increases must follow. We will give you an attractive allowance for your old tires on new Firestone High Speed Tires.

The Processing Taxes.

Paradoxical as it may seem, the rise of farm commodity prices has given the Agricultural Adjustment Administration an intricate problem. The purpose of the farm relief act is to raise prices and increase the farmer's purchasing power. But advancing commodity prices already promise the farmer more than he can expect from the special taxes levied by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The agricultural adjustment act was designed to give farmers purchasing power equivalent only to that which they enjoyed in the pre-war period. But in some instances farm crops are believed to be selling above that level. For example, wheat is selling in Chicago as high as $1.28 per bushel. The so-called parity price of wheat, as calculated on June 15, was 89 cents on the farm, which would mean about $1.09 in the grain pits. In other words, the basis on which this tax may be levied seems to be rapidly diminishing. The same is true with respect to cotton.

Under the law the Secretary of Agriculture is required to adjust the processing tax "at such intervals as the Secretary finds necessary to effectuate the declared policy." If the present high prices are maintained, Secretary Wallace may be faced with the problem of reducing the cotton and wheat processing taxes. No parity prices have been calculated since June 15.

The probable results of such action are giving Secretary Wallace and his associates cause for grave concern. The Agricultural Adjustment Administration is making plans to accept offers of more than 700,000 cotton growers to destroy portions of their crops in return for benefit payments from the Government. What will happen when these contracts become binding upon the United States, when farmers actually have destroyed one-fourth of their cotton crop, if the Department of Agriculture should find it impossible to collect the processing tax?

The farm relief measure permits the Department of Agriculture to make definite commitments without any certain source of revenue to meet them. Farmers would not reduce their acreage on uncertain promises. The cotton growers, for example, have agreed to take 10,000,000 acres out of production. In return they demand concrete promises of reward from Uncle Sam. If prices continue to rise, or even maintain their present level, there seems to be a grave probability that the Government will have to dip into the regular funds of the Treasury to make these payments.

The law provides that the Secretaries of the Treasury and Agriculture shall jointly estimate the amounts required to carry out the farm plan. If the fund in the hands of the Secretary of Agriculture is insufficient to supply current needs, he may draw upon the Treasury. This situation leaves Department of Agriculture officials face to face with the dilemma of diminishing returns from the processing taxes, while they are making contracts with farmers for the payment of approximately $250,000,000. But, in the end, it is the Treasury that must hold the bag.

The Plague of Starlings.

Washington is not alone in its vexatious experience with the ever growing flocks of starlings. Entire States are complaining of troublesome and destructive invasions. It is difficult to realize that the millions of these birds which now infest half the United States sprang from the sixty pairs brought from Europe and encouraged to live and multiply in Central Park, New York City.

Imported, like the English sparrows, to combat insect pests, they have failed to confine their diet to the caterpillars, grasshoppers, weevils and crickets they were supposed to devour. As their numbers increased to thousands and millions they have spread as far west as Texas and north into Canada. They are not so destructive to grain and young crops as to fruit. Michigan reports their invasion of every county in the State. Descending upon orchards in vast flocks, they do serious damage in a very brief visit.

The starlings have other bad habits. They drive out other useful birds from field and sanctuaries, and their flocking propensities, particularly when they invade cities to roost, make them a veritable nuisance, as the business section of the National Capital can testify. They have frequently so infested the Metropolitan Museum in New York that it has been necessary to keep men stationed on the roof at nightfall with great flags to drive them away. The cornices of many buildings in the metropolis are favorite roosting places, and it has been found as difficult to dislodge them there as it has in Washington.

The starling is supposed to be one of the few birds that eat the gypsy moth and the Japanese beetle, but these insects by no means satisfy the appetites of the millions of starlings that are here today. The only encouragement from the naturalists is that in time the starlings, like the sparrows, will adjust themselves to differing conditions found in America, and lose some of their most annoying traits.

Funds for the Army.

The controversy between the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Interior over an allotment of public works funds for Army purposes is no longer concealed. Secretary Dern is bent upon obtaining funds with which to improve Army housing, to motorize cavalry regiments, and to build up the Air Corps equipment to 1,800 planes. Secretary Ickes, as public works administrator, seems to be determined to confine public works funds to river and harbor and public building projects, so far as the Federal allotments are concerned, although an allocation of $238,000,000 for naval construction has been approved.

Secretary Dern points out that the United States Army is seventeenth in the list of the world's armies, and that he is not planning to enlarge it; but he wishes to make it as efficient as possible. Plans for housing are completed, and workmen could be employed at once in many sections of the country. The new housing would save money now paid out for rent. As to motorization and mechanization of the Army, Secretary Dern says:

> Motorization and mechanization would not only modernize the United States Army, but would furnish employment for skilled mechanics in the large centers of unemployment. Moreover, it is work that can be done in the winter, when many other activities must stop. An item for ammunition would save several thousand highly skilled and trained mechanics in the government arsenals from being thrown out of employment. The construction of airplanes, besides enabling the Army to complete its five-year program, would give work to a great many highly specialized workers in an industry that is vital and that has been having a hard time to keep going.

As a whip-snapper to his statement Secretary Dern adds:

> There can be no legitimate objection to this class of public expenditures except from those who do not believe in maintaining an army at all.

Secretary Ickes has not made a specific reply to this statement, but in his radio address Tuesday evening he said:

> In the case of Federal works the entire cost will be borne by the Federal Government. But with respect even to Federal works the principles that I have already outlined will be invoked (that is, that a project must be economically desirable and must contribute to the revival of business and industry.) We will not authorize the expenditure of a cent unless we are convinced that it will contribute toward the economic recovery and the social welfare of the country.

It is rather difficult for the common citizen to understand why large expenditures for naval construction are approved as economically and socially desirable, and similar expenditures for Army improvements opposed. It might not be a bad thing for Army morale to provide better housing and for modernization of equipment. The country would have something to show for this expenditure of public works money.

Repeal Half Ratified.

One-half of the 36 States required to repeal an amendment to the Constitution are now definitely in the anti-prohibition column. This result has been accomplished in a remarkably short time. It seems apparent that the eighteenth amendment will be supplanted by the twenty-first before the end of the year.

In spite of the preponderant sentiment for repeal that had been manifested in the East, North and West, the drys still entertained considerable hope of winning in the South. Arkansas, especially, had been allied with the fanatically dry States. Routed from Indiana and Iowa, the drys realized that Arkansas was their last stand so far as any possibility of blocking the new amendment is concerned. Present indications are that the vote in that State will be about 3 to 2 for repeal. Alabama promises a considerably larger margin against national prohibition.

The effect of Tuesday's balloting is to raise a question as to whether any State will vote against the twenty-first amendment. Tennessee will vote today and Oregon on Friday. No one seems to doubt what the returns from these States will be. The fight against national prohibition is ending. The chief interest in the selection of delegates to repeal conventions in the future will lie in the race to ratify the twenty-first amendment in record time.

Transport Rivalries.

The task of coordination is only one phase of the complicated and growing problems which confront the various transportation systems of the United States. While the great railroad network carries the preponderant bulk of American freight, and must of necessity continue to do so, the expansion of trucks, inland waterways and pipelines, in addition to the inroads of the passenger automobile, have patently combined to take business from the rail carriers. In addition to the work of Coordinator Eastman an important committee has been named to consider the inter-related problems of the various transportation systems with a view to reconciling changing conditions and recommending new legislation where necessary.

This committee, named by the President, will be under the chairmanship of Secretary Roper of the Department of Commerce, who will be aided in the investigations by nine members including representatives from the Departments of Agriculture and War, the Attorney General, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the related congressional committees and Coordinator Eastman. No formal program of procedure has been issued, but it is understood that this representative organization will consider thoroughly the probable necessity of a general revamping of the transportation act of 1920, with a possible loosening of railroad regulations and a tightening of highway motor traffic control. While motor competition offers perhaps the most pressing problem for the railroads, any general readjustment of the regulatory machinery will take into consideration the development of all forms of modern transportation.

Out of this comprehensive inquiry may evolve a new method of control, not only for railroads, but a central authority covering all public carriers. In all future hearings the motor interests will be found more thoroughly organized than ever before. The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and the more recently organized National Highway Users Conference are active champions of the motorists' cause. Gathering the statistics from all parts of the Nation, a strong case can be made to show the heavy burden of taxation, direct and indirect, that is being carried by the motor cars of the country, and a determined fight will be waged against any effort on the part of railways to overcome some measure of highway competition through added taxation of any kind. Truck traffic undoubtedly will be subjected to greater regulation, and in that direction motor organizations are cooperating, but highway users are united in their opposition to higher taxation and the growing tendency to divert motor taxes to other uses than highway extension and maintainance.

Calvert Street Bridge.

The hearing yesterday on the Calvert street bridge project revealed a preponderating sentiment in favor of an arched masonry structure, in harmony with the adjacent Taft bridge. Senator King, chairman of the Senate District committee, favors a masonry bridge in preference to a steel structure, and advised the District Commissioners to ask for additional funds from Congress if the present limitation of $1,250,000 should prove insufficient.

The choice of design and material will depend largely upon the Fine Arts Commission, whose approval must be obtained under the law authorizing construction. The commission has stood firmly for the maintenance of esthetic values and harmony of design in all monumental structures in the District. The result of this policy is seen in symmetrical and beautiful development of this Capital. It would be a pity to mar this symmetry by erecting a steel span bridge within bowshot of the massive Taft bridge.

The urgent need of a new bridge may be emphasized at any time by a disaster at the old bridge. Engineer Commissioner Gotwals has testified that it is unsafe. Traffic congestion makes it still more unsatisfactory. A new masonry bridge three times as wide as the old structure can be completed in about a year, if Budget Director Douglas can be induced to give his consent to the expenditure by the District of its own funds for its own welfare.

Maj. Dalrymple, prohibition administrator, warns his fellow citizens that if they don't make up a lot of whisky beforehand, foreign dealers will have a great advantage when repeal comes. But won't the tariff protect us against a flood of pauper liquor from abroad?

Gen. Johnson is looking for a loud speaker to put over the propaganda for the blanket codes. Why look further, when Harvey Couch, director of the R. F. C., wins a hog-calling contest in the Ozarks?

Hotel men will present a code shortly, and then we'll get F. D.'s idea as to what constitutes a minimum tip to a bellhop.

If the worst comes to the worst Uncle Sam might try kidnaping a few of those wealthy underworld chieftains.

The forest lads had a fine lot of radio greetings, but they had to sit up till 10 o'clock to hear 'em.

Russia 50 Years Behind.

By William Henry Chamberlin, in the Atlantic Monthly.

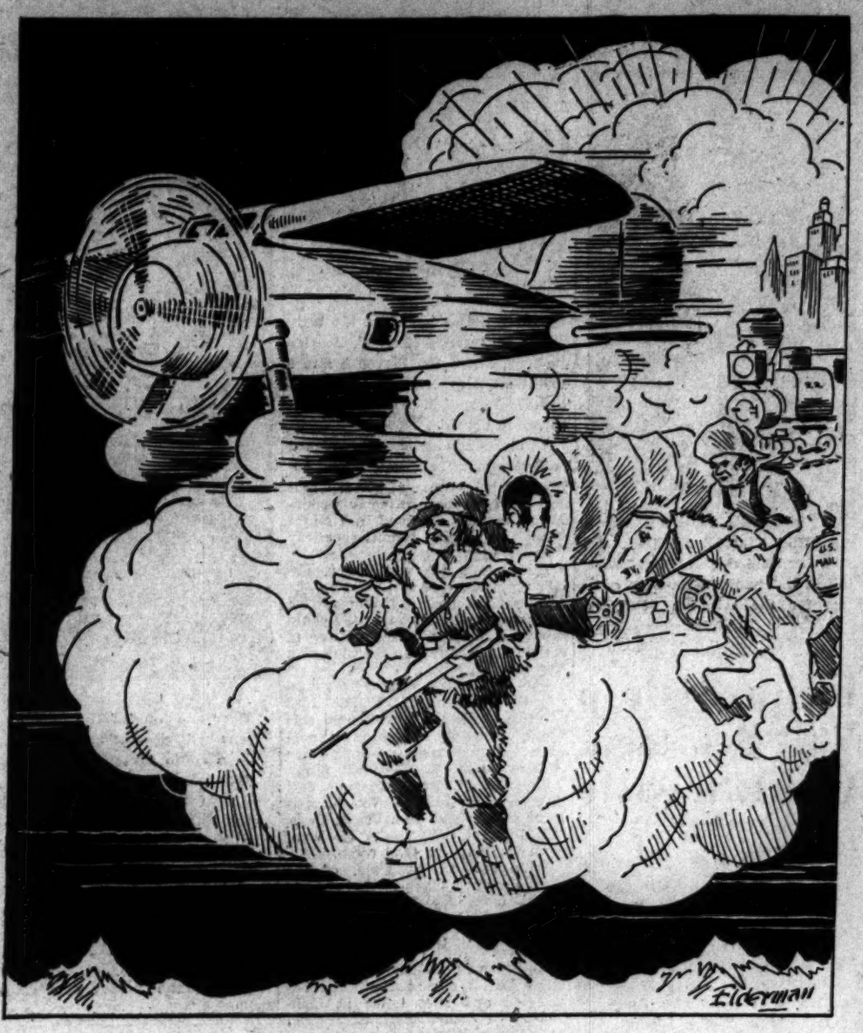
It is frequently said that Soviet Russia represents either a challenge or a menace to America's political and economic order. I am inclined to be very skeptical of this theory. In every field of life and thought the two countries are as far apart as if they were on different planets, and where comparison is impossible the element of challenge scarcely enters in.

In economic development Russia is 50 years behind the United States. It will have to do an enormous amount of road building, of housing construction, of steady work in mining, in manufacturing, transportation and communication, before comparison can be anything but grotesque.

Soviet leaders have constantly stressed the goal of "overtaking and outstripping America" in the fairly near future, and in this it is quite possible that they have done more harm than good, for they have tended to promote overambitious schemes of industrial expansion which have worked out badly and have clearly put too heavy a strain upon their resources, both technical and human.

The social differences between the two countries are even greater. America was colonized and has been built up on the principle of every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost. The underlying principle in Russia is that an omnipotent state shall plan and supervise the country's growth, regulating not only the working habits of the people but their thinking as well, with a relentless and efficient organization of spies (the G. P. U.) weeding out those individuals who do not fit into the regimented scheme of things.

It may be debatable which of the systems involves more human suffering, but certainly they foster psychological differences so fundamental that one can hardly regard either as a challenge to the other.



The Spirit of Progress.

Post Haste.

Repeal is at the halfway mark, with nothing off a perfect score.

Director Douglas is doing his best to elucidate the double budget system as painless arithmetic.

From the array of official talent which addressed the conservation woodsmen they now know they are destined to be Cabinet makers.

Prof. Moley's quick deal with the Soviet at least resulted in a prompt adjustment of British differences through the versatile Litvinoff.

It looks as though cocktails might soon be declined without fear of offending friend host's bootlegger.

The Federal stars and stripes enter the campaign against crime. May the kidnapers see stars and the racketeers wear stripes.

It is a question whether a campaign to get every one to eat another slice of bread and wear two handkerchiefs might not have been more effective and less difficult than crop reduction.

As we understand him, Gen. Johnson doesn't want men about him who will have their "pants traded off" when confronted with industry trying to save its shirt.

It is not hard to appreciate the difficulties of fashioning a blanket code so that it will be a feather comforter to cover both capital and labor.

The stock market is becoming so expert with the new deal that the play begins to look suspiciously like the old game.

The ardent argent efforts of Key Pittman in London may have advanced the white metal cause, but he missed the support of the seven silver States which, if only counting 3 per cent of the population, boast nearly a 15 per cent vote in the Senate.

The impudent commodity prices, that are already well above the level to which it was proposed to boost them, precipitate the problem of how to stop the overproduction of farm profit and leave some credit for the processing tax.

Chairman Sanders has gone to Europe to remove himself from the temptation of talking political policies before it can possibly be known what they will be.

Gen. Johnson forsees the time when the bouquets may give place to a shower of defunct felines, but he is a feller who would utilize the appendages to make cat-o'-nine tails.

What is hire education? That's what the young white-collared mortar boards, just graduated, wonder as they contemplate their minimum $15 a week and the same rate per day for plasterers.

PAUL MUDSON.

Just Folks.

By Edgar A. Guest.

The Price.

Into the court he came. Beyond a doubt
A thief—convicted by a jury of his peers!
So from the world the law must shut him out
For fifteen years.
Thieves prey on men and women; therefore they
With their own outcast kind must dwell,
Marching in step and robed in garments gray,
A number and a cell!
Nor spring, nor summer, nor the autumn rich,
Nor the white glory of the winter's snow
Brings any difference to the dull round which
Is theirs to know.
There must be safety for the lawful throng,
But still whene'er thief is led away
I pity him the bitter price of wrong
Good men ask him to pay.

Blind Men Couldn't Describe the Elephant After Feeling Its Trunk and Tail

By Robert Quillen

WHEN an Englishman crosses the Atlantic, travels west as far as Buffalo, and then goes home to write a book explaining America, the usual result is several hundred pages of unintentional humor. The critics hoot.

Yet millions of Americans have a mental picture of their country that is no more accurate than the casual visitor's.

It is natural for all of us to assume that the whole country is much like the portion of it that we see. If we attempt to describe America we describe our home town, and the typical American is our neighbor.

Those who have lived in all sections and those who read local papers from every State may see America as it is, provided they are blessed with imagination and the ability to interpret signs; but the ordinary citizen, in town or country, has little understanding of what lies beyond the horizon.

Magazines of national circulation could do much to overcome this provincialism, but few if any have outgrown the influence of their environment. Their writers, for the most part, live in the metropolis and unconsciously form their opinions of local material. Their verdicts seem absurd because they miss most of the evidence.

One such writer recently bewailed the passing of the old-fashioned Sunday. Back in the '90's, he said, the whole family welcomed Sunday as a day of relaxation. Everybody dressed up. There was a big Sunday dinner, with guests to share it. And everybody went to church and then sat around and enjoyed the quiet.

All of that, he said, is history. Now everybody plays golf or takes a long automobile trip or remains at home to mix cocktails for a procession of noisy callers.

How much information did the article contain? Merely the fact that the writer, sometime about 1895, moved from a rural environment to an urban environment. And he thinks the country has changed because he changed.

Half of our people still live in the sticks—a number equal to the population of France. There are 60,000,000 church members, and a lot of them still go to church. And people in the sticks still dress up on Sunday and have a big Sunday dinner. Few of them take long trips and fewer still play golf.

America is a big land, with many interests. One section thinks and plans in terms of wheat, another in terms of cotton, and others in terms of oil, lumber, grapes, codfish or coal.

Each section has its peculiar problems, and these make the people distinctive in habit, viewpoint, standards and terms of speech.

But all of these people are Americans, and you can't understand America until you know how they live and what they think and why they think it.

Political Comment

New York Herald Tribune.

William L. Ward, of Westchester County, was the last of the line who held political leadership over long periods of years in this State by reason of dominating personalities. Thomas C. Platt, Benjamin B. Odell, George Aldridge, Francis Hendricks, William Barnes—all have gone. They comprised the "old guard." There will never be another. It is not the custom now for political units to retain their leaders for any such span of years as the thirty-seven which comprised the Ward rule. He was in every sense a benevolent despot. He played the game because he loved it, because of its human appeal and because of his pride in achievement There were no other rewards.

When Mr. Ward became leader in Westchester in 1896 the county was normally Democratic. In time he built an organization which could be depended upon to turn in Republican victories with much regularity. Like so many leaders of the individualistic type, he did not develop any one as a logical successor.

But the passing of Mr. Ward will be deplored by residents of Westchester of all political faiths, because it releases the firm hand which through many years kept the government of the county up to that high mark of efficiency and integrity which made it known far and wide.

The Forgotten Consumer.

Topeka Capital.

In the conferences of varied interests with Gen. Johnson the Chicago News notes that "capital and labor do not hesitate to state their desires." But "from the point of view of the consumer, the relative silence of the committee chosen to argue against excessive price increases may be a bit ominous." The Chicago paper expresses the hope that "the consumers' representatives will not be negligent of the public's interest."

No Smooth Road.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

They are spending millions to improve the highways, but the road to success will always remain the same old rough going.

Slight Error.

Toledo Blade.

A Londoner squandered his entire fortune because he understood the world was coming to an end June 20." It is possible he got his dates mixed. June 15 was the time France was supposed to pay.

Convict Gets Damages.

Brooklyn Eagle.

For four fingers of a convict injured in Auburn prison's unguarded machinery, the Court of Claims awards $7,500 damages against the State. He was not a free agent. What happened was no part of the penalty for his crime.

Catching Kidnapers.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Three men working an extortion and kidnaping plot were caught in New York on Saturday by a combination of courage and confidence in the police on the part of the intended victim and exceptionally good detective work by the force itself. A physician was threatened three weeks ago. He told the police. Detectives went to work at once, posing as patients, chauffeurs, grocery clerks, janitors. The time came for the payoff. As dummy packages were handed over, the detectives closed in. The plotters were captured.

There is reassurance in the record of this case. The man threatened kept his head and asked for qualified help—the police. The detectives did their job perfectly. The criminals were captured. Yet there might have been murder, and there certainly would have been successful extortion had the victim remained silent, overawed by the threats.

"Flip" Spencer, owner of the Excelsior Laundry and Wet Wash, has refused to accept the 32-hour week, on the ground that the employes can't really do a complete job in ripping all the customers' shirts in that time. "It don't even allow us time to tear off all the buttons," complains "Flip."

GERMAN LULLABY.

Hushaby baby, don't tremble or quake—
Hitler is giving you, darling, a break;
Adolph declares with manner quite grim
Nobody can name you, kid, after him.

Mr. J. B. Eastman, Federal Coordinator of the Choo-choo lines, warns railroad presidents that they must work for less money. "A railroad presidency is a job which ought to have much attraction quite apart from the money it pays," reasons Mr. Eastman. Just look at the service he gets when he demands that a window be opened!

An automobile company is manufacturing beer. The time to get nervous is when you hear that a beer company has started making automobiles.

The candy makers have submitted their code and it is to be deplored in all families that nothing was done about putting some of the walnuts on the chocolates in the second layer of the box.

Add similes: As difficult as it is for a kidnaper to get arrested.

In forbidding German parents to name babies after him Herr Hitler feels that the children of Germany are entitled to start life without a handicap.

Small Industries Still Following Cut-Throat Policies—What Is the Program?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Being unable to consult the "brain trust," I wonder if my old friend, The Post, can inform us what the President really intends to do to bring the recalcitrant industries in line with his recovery program. After reading so many contradictory stories in the daily press, I am greatly puzzled and am losing confidence in the so-called miracle men in power at Washington. One day the papers say that Mr. Roosevelt will use the "big stick" to force his plans on all industries; the next, the same papers say, "President uncertain what course to follow in dealing with rebel industries."

Meanwhile, a few major industries are announcing higher wages and shorter hours. Thousands of smaller industries are following the same old cutthroat policies, cutting wages to prewar levels, forcing their workers to labor 10 and 12 hours a day. The "brain trust" should look into that phase of the industrial situation instead of devoting their time trying to think up some plan to help Europe.

L. D. E.

What Is Gained by Dismissing Employes and Then Reinstating Them Under "Emergency" Budget?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial, "Juggling Federal Works," your last paragraph is particularly to the point and well taken: "What advantage may be gained by eliminating the expenditures in connection with the unjust and unnecessary dismissals and furloughs, and then reinstating or reemploying them as emergency items?" In fact, the entire program is a deep, dark mystery and Chinese puzzle.

Running a Republic.

Topeka Capital.

Americans, who have run a republic for 144 years, can not understand how a German administration can abolish all parties but the "ins." If any administration tried it in this country it would be jerked out of office in record time. The Germans apparently haven't found out yet what a republic is all about.

Old Leadbeater Collection Goes Under Hammer

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

After 7 hours of bidding on individual articles of the collection of the Leadbeater Drug Co., sold at auction in Alexandria yesterday, bids were asked on the entire lot as a unit. It had been announced previously by Thomas L. Carter, auctioneer, that after all articles had been bid in individually, they would be offered as a lot and, if the lot price exceeded the total of the individual bids, the latter would be accepted.

The total of the individual bids was $1,481.10. The final bid on the lot was $1,525 and the lot was sold to J. C. McClelland, of Baltimore, representing the American Pharmaceutical Association.

It is understood the collection will be permitted to remain in Alexandria, provided the Association for the Preservation of Alexandria Antiquities, recently formed, will acquire the original Leadbeater store building in which to arrange the collection as a museum. Mrs. Robert M. Reese, representing the association, stated last night there probably will be no difficulty in arranging this, and the association will act at once to obtain necessary funds.

Auction Goes on Air.

For more than an hour the auction was broadcast over Station WJSV, of the Columbia Broadcasting Co., the articles being described by William A. Moncure, trustee for the Leadbeater Co.

A large crowd attended the auction, but the bidding was confined to only a few persons.

Among the interesting documents in the collection, which dates back to 1792, is a letter from Martha Washington, dated at Mount Vernon, ordering a quart of castor oil. The letter was bid in for $51. A batch of 14 letters written by George Mason, of Hollin Hall, brought a bid of $35 from Judge L. C. Barley, acting for Mr. and Mrs. Harley P. Wilson, present owners of Hollin Hall.

There were daybooks from the opening of the store, in 1792; ledgers, books of invoices, orders from customers, letters from Dr. Dick and Dr. Craik, contemporaries of George Washington, ordering medicines, wines and liquors; a bill of sale for a slave known as Angel Harris to William T. Stabler and witnessed by Gen. Robert E. Lee; six deeds to lots in the old Quaker burying ground, now used as a playground for children, and many other quaint and interesting documents.

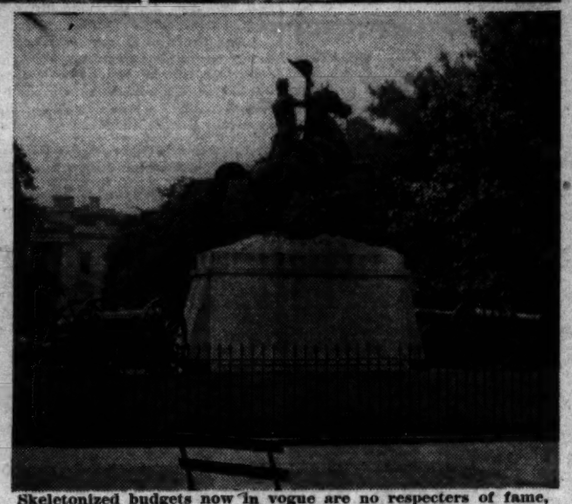
Ancient Flasks Included.

There were demijohns by the dozen and bottles of various shapes and sizes by the hundreds, many of which had apparently been in the store since its founding, 140 years ago.

There are four buildings comprising the Leadbeater stores, two facing on Fairfax street and two on King street. In one of the Fairfax street buildings are the original fixtures, the labeled bottles which contained drugs and chemicals for the compounding of prescriptions; mortars and pestles of every size, and crude apparatus of many kinds, some of which has been out of date for a century.

It is understood the American Pharmaceutical Association will make a selection of the articles desired for a museum and then will get in touch with the persons who bid in the other articles and offer them for sale.

Statues of Three Great Men Must Go Unbathed



Skeletonized budgets now in vogue are no respecters of fame, so the effigies of Baron von Steuben, Gen. Lafayette and former President Andrew Jackson will go unwashed this year. Police Guard Asked in Bank Holdup Scare

Upper Marlboro Cashier Reports Suspicious Acts of Two Men.

Police protection was asked yesterday for the Farmers & Merchants Bank at Upper Marlboro, following what bank officials believe was an attempt to hold up the establishment.

Sheriff W. Curtis Hopkins, to whom the report was made, was in conference with William Brooke, cashier, last night in an effort to determine what procedure should be followed in protecting the bank.

Uneasiness was first experienced by employes of the institution Tuesday afternoon. While Brooke was attending a director's meeting a mysterious telephone call was received by Mrs. R. C. Bolling, one of the three employes.

Talks to Employe.

"Have you a conservator?" demanded a gruff voice on the other end of the line.

When informed the bank had not, the voice—that of a man—demanded to know how many employes were in the bank, the whereabouts of the cashier, and other details about the bank's operation.

Startled, Mrs. Bolling asked who was calling. The man stammered and replied "a Mr. James." Asked where he was from, he quickly hung up the receiver.

Yesterday, shortly after noon, two men, whom Brooke described as "rough-looking customers," walked in the bank, eyeing the place carefully as they entered.

Acted Suspiciously.

One of the men asked for change for a $20 bill. When informed that his request would be granted, he told the cashier that "there are three of us who would like to be accommodated."

But only one other man came forward to present a bill. When this was changed they stepped quickly to a corner and began a whispered conversation.

"As they left the bank," Brooke said, "I caught the words, 'this is the place all right.' I immediately followed them outside and saw them drive away in an automobile."

Election Fraud Charges Passed To Grand Jury

Two Annapolis Men Deny Mayor's Accusation of Violating Law.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 19.—Arrested on charges involving violation of the corrupt practices act at the Annapolis municipal election, July 10, William U. McCready, treasurer of the Democratic campaign committee, and Chester White, fourth ward Negro, today were held for action of the October grand jury of Anne Arundel County.

Arraigned before police Justice Louis M. Hopkins, McCready and the Negro waived preliminary hearing. Each was held under $500 security.

The arrest was made during the forenoon of election day upon a warrant obtained by Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, Republican, who was elected for a third term, over Charles E. Chance, Democrat.

McCready is alleged to have given White $25, in $1 notes, to influence Negro voters to cast their ballots for Chance. The mayor said he saw McCready, Chance, and Thomas G. Basil, a local police magistrate, and Third Ward Democratic worker, enter a cafe and followed them.

The mayor said he found McCready and the Negro in an anteroom, and that the Negro, when questioned, promptly surrendered the money and told the mayor the purpose for which it was given him.

Mr. McCready, prominent in business circles here, served two terms in the city council and for a number of years has been treasurer of Democratic campaigns in both county and municipal elections.

Bath Refused City's Statues To Save Money

Famous Persons' Effigies Quoted on Loss of Annual Ablution.

Money talks and it has told the Capital's generals and admirals their faces must go unwashed for another year because there isn't enough to go round. Money, that is, not faces.

The office of Public Buildings and Public Parks, which is to be blotted up by the Interior Department in a few weeks, simply hasn't the funds to give Gen. Sherman, Commodore Jones et al. their perennial bath. Maybe there'll be action when the parks problem is straightened out, but right now prospects are dim for a Von Steuben rub-down and fresh curry for Gen. Thomas' steed.

Unless an appropriation is forthcoming, Washington's sculptured elite won't go to the cleaners before October, 1934. Rather, the cleaners won't come to them. Interested in learning their reaction, The Post interviewed a few of the 50-odd effigies affected. Their statements follow:

Commodore John Paul Jones (foot of Seventeenth street)—"Our Saturday night came only once a year and they're taking that away from us."

Gen. Andrew Jackson (Lafayette Park)—"Without rain we are lost."

Gen. Winfield Scott (Scott Circle)—"We'll have to grin and bear it."

Gen. John A. Rawlins (Eighteenth street and New York avenue)—"My beard will be beyond succor if we have to wait another year. I shall report immediately to President Grant."

Gen. James B. McPherson (Fifteenth and K streets northwest)—"Tennessee won't stand for this."

Commodore John Barry (Franklin Park)—"Couldn't someone even give me a going over with an eraser or something."

Dante (Meridian Hill Park)—"Sic transit gloria."

Gen. George H. Thomas (Thomas Circle)—"It's not myself I'm thinking of, it's my horse."

Admiral David G. Farragut (Connecticut and K)—"I went through the War of 1812 and the Mexican and Civil scraps without hot and cold running water, but migosh! this is the Twentieth Century."

Gen. Nathanael Greene (Stanton Square)—"Surely they will make my statue, called one of the best equestrians in the Capital, an exception."

Gen. Lafayette (Lafayette Park)—"Am I to interpret this as retaliation against the French debt default?"

Gen John A. Logan (Logan Circle)—"I designated May 30 as Memorial Day. Won't someone reciprocate and set aside a wash day for us?"

Gen. Bochambeau (Lafayette Park)—"Nuts!"

Gen. William T. Sherman (Fifteenth and Pennsylvania)—"Hell! Won't some Georgians take up a collection?"

Gen. Philip H. Sheridan (Sheridan Circle)—"Chirping of the birds is to my ears as the chant of doom."

Gen. Von Steuben (Lafayette Park)—"Hitler shall hear about this, yah woh, just as sure as my name is Baron Friedrich Wilhelm Augustus Henry Ferdinand von Steuben."

Gen. San Martin (Judiciary Park)—"Has Dr. Rowe, of the Pan-American Union, been informed of this unspeakably embarrassing turn of events?"

Delegates for Silver Spring.

Maj. Howard W. Cutler and Lauman T. Faulconer have been elected delegates by the Cissell-Saxon Post, at Silver Spring, to the annual State convention of the American Legion, at Hagerstown, the latter part of August. Alternates are George W. Davis and John J. Geary, commander of the post.

Alexandria Relief Head Tells of Plans

The Alexandria United Charities held a meeting Tuesday evening and conferred with the new welfare official, Albert W. Boehringer, who with an assistant, Mrs. Nettie Garner Thompson, will handle relief work in Alexandria, superceding the charities body. This organization which has served for years, without pay, will not disband, but will be inactive while the welfare work is being handled by the new head.

The United Charities pledged cooperation with the new official, and the Rev. Percy Foster Hall, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, said he had called a meeting of the ministers of the city for tomorrow morning to get definite ideas as to the work being done by the respective churches, and arrange for full cooperation with Mr. Boehringer.

THE NEW Jelleff's
1216-1220 F STREET

"WHY should I buy my fur coat in Jelleff's ANNUAL SUMMER SALE OF FURS?"

Jap Mink, now $335. Later, at least $395.

SAVINGS

Long before the present rise in the price of fur, we went into the market and bought all the fine, raw skins we could lay our hands on! As soon as Paris determined the 1933-34 fur styles, we chose the most successful, and had them copied, or adapted, by a famous maker who was glad to assist us in keeping down costs, in order to set his idle factory to work. The result, a group of magnificent, fashion-right fur coats which we could hold until later and sell for more—were it not our policy to share our savings with our patrons—IMMEDIATELY!

CONFIDENCE

For years Washington has accepted Jelleff's as its expert furrier—has placed unqualified credence in Jelleff's knowledge, reliability and integrity. We have earned their confidence and kept it! Our patrons know that our claims are one hundred per cent justified—that we prefer understatement to exaggeration. But never, in all those years, have we so brilliantly justified that confidence as in this Annual Summer Sale of Furs.

FASHION

As all women who study fashion know, fur styles are determined in the early Summer, at the first Paris openings. No smarter models will appear this season than those we offer now. Indeed, some of the very "high styles," which are not duplicated in quantities, are frequently not to be had later in the year. But even if they were, it could not be within many dollars of the low price at which they are offered now!

FIT

Fit, so important a part of this year's fashion, is assured at Jelleff's. Our furriers are expert in the difficult art of fur alteration. And, if we do not have a coat which can be altered to fit you perfectly, we will make one to your measure, with the same artistry, from skins reserved for that purpose. And this without additional cost, up to size 40. In larger sizes, we charge the exact cost of the extra skins necessary.

CONVENIENCE

If you have no charge account, upon payment of a moderate deposit, we will hold the coat of your selection until November 1. And we will store it for you during that period free of charge!

THIRD FLOOR FUR SALON

"What Kind of Fur Coat Should I Buy?"

Smart women give preference to these furs:

JAP MINK Later, at least $395 . . . . Now $335
Because of its beauty—its refinement—its luxury. Because it wears magnificently, and is just as smart, over your evening gown, as it is with your daytime costumes. Because the quality we offer has all the lovely color of real Mink, is made on the same lines, with the same care, and though its cost is a fraction of Mink's, it requires an expert to distinguish between the two furs. And because there is no more flattering fur in the world.

CARACUL Later, at least $95 to $345 . . Now $75 to $295
Because its sleek, flat fur is infinitely slenderizing and adapts itself magnificently to the "cloth coat tailoring" fashion insists upon its 1933-34 fur styles. Because its elastic price range provides a beautiful coat for every purse. Because, as well as in black, it may be had in "Kaffee," a lovely deep brown, and "Blue Fox," exactly the shade of real blue fox skins.

$95 Caracul Coat, now.. $75 | $135 Caraculs, now.. $110 | $175 Caraculs, now.. $145 | $275 Caraculs, now.. $235

HUDSON SEAL Later, at least $145 to $425 Now $125 to $350
Because for general durability, all-around wear, and smartness at moderate price, no fur in the world is superior! Choose it in the swagger three-quarter length, with the "cats whiskers" bow—in one of our luxurious Ermine or Persian lamb trimmed models—and remember, that Hudson Seal is now every bit as smart for Mademoiselle as it is for Madame—and equally flattering to both.

MUSKRAT Later, at least $79.50 to $195 . . Now $59.50 to $110
Because it's probably the smartest, best-wearing, and most all-around serviceable of the practical, inexpensive furs. Because it will wear, in all weather, for seasons and seasons. And because it's youthful and flattering as can be. Do see our swagger models—$59.50 (later, they'll be $79.50, at least) and we've Silver Muskrat, choice variety, with enormous collars of real beaver, for as little as $110. Later, you'll pay $135, and think them a bargain!

$135 Muskrat Coats, now..... $110 | $79.50 Muskrat Coats, now.. $59.50 | $95 Muskrat Coats, now $75

Her Mood Isn't So Expensive, Shopper Finds

$30 Perfume Turns Out to Be Cut to $4.50; Summer Hats Low.

By the Meanderer.

The Meanderer followed her nose. It led her down aisles, around corners, to the perfume counter of a large department store. Tall, slender bottles—pagoda bottles—black and silver boxes—gilt tassels—mirrors—the scent of jasmine—gardenias — musk — exotic — alluring. She was about to give in to a luxurious mood when the unsung muse of practicality descended. It bade her look beyond the oriental splendor of a bottle to the price tag underneath. What? She reached for her lorgnettes, her horn-rimmed specs, and a pocket magnifying glass. Thirty dollars reduced to four-fifty! The muse of practicality crept silently away.

A famous perfume artist retired to a lonely tower in the wilds of anywhere you like. He studied birthdays. He drew charts. He broke test tubes by the dozen. An assiduous worker, he. One hundred and forty-four years from the day he started he knew the time had come for success or failure. The wind did blow, and the lightning lit. A blue blaze, a cloud of smoke.

Fame was his. He had found the key to a myriad of personalities. He had created an astrological perfume.

The prosaic Meanderer feels bound to tell you this is now on sale for half-price.

Toward the last of the season, summer hats have a way of looking very sad and woebegone. Don't stand for it, shoppers. A hat's a hat all right, but it has no business spoiling your outfit. Snap your fingers at the old thing and replace it with a smarter model. You've no idea how economically this can be done. A downtown department store is showing a variety of types in striped seersucker, linen, pique and braid—brims, turbans, and Apache models. Prices range from $1.00 to $3.95. The Meanderer was intrigued with a white linen featured by a zip-on crown.

Evening bags are refusing to yield to the fluffy, frilly trend of evening styles. It's all right, though. Their conservative lines bring out the beruffled frock, and the beruffled frock reciprocates. There's nothing like good fellowship between accessories and clothes. The Meanderer saw a particularly companionable bag in black silk crepe, trimmed with cut steel beads, with a zipper top opening. Another was oblong shaped of bugle beads in several contrasting shades. Both on sale for $1.98.

Dotted swiss, checked silk gingham, striped shirtings, pique, take your choice in summer frocks to finish out the season. And then dash out to a well-known shop and buy a smart little compact to match exactly! They're half-price now and come in almost every conceivable color and design. They resemble little pancakes and will fit your new slender purse!

If it's too hot for heavy reading, try a light, sweet story. Turn on the fan, and pull the easy chair close to the window. Let's see now, a pitcher of ice water, some cigarets, oh yes, and another cushion. There now, settle back to enjoy a lazy afternoon. Open the covers of the "Scottie" book—what—butterscotch candy! That ought to suit your taste. Vol. I, 75 cents.

Not content with entering homes in the usual way, science is now coming in through the window. Proof of this accusing statement are the new Venetian blinds. They are devised to regulate both light and ventilation, to reflect and deflect in an admirable fashion. Their way of evenly distributing the lights and shadows adds to the atmosphere of any room. These blinds serve a twofold purpose by taking the place of window shades and outside shutters. They combine both simplicity and elegance, service and decoration. Any color, any size. Could you ask more for $10?

Old Father Knickerbocker is here again. With his feet stretched out in front of him he sits in a high-back Dutch chair in the corner of his library. His short knee breeches are somewhat wrinkled and they seem a little tight. His colonial slippers, with their square buckles, beam from an oily rubbing. His bald head merely beams. Belying his studious attitude is the expression of curiosity in his eyes. He wonders just who we are and why we interrupt his studies. His presence needs no explanation. He's the aristocrat of book-ends.

Shrimp and Cucumber Salad, Serving Three.

2-3 cup shrimps
2-3 cup diced cucumbers
1-3 cup diced celery
2 tablespoons chopped pimientos
1 tablespoon chopped sweet pickle
1-8 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon paprika
¼ cup salad dressing

A Century of Progress

By Mary Brook Lucas

"Chicago for over six months will be the Mecca for the world," muses Judy. "What an unforgettable sight! It's overpowering in its magnificence!"

For a warm day in July, Judy selects this tailored suit of navy and white striped organdie with matching gloves. The hat, vest, and wide revers are of white pique.

A panorama of color sweeps along the lake front and across a bridge to a "Man Made" island. Chartreuse, dark red, Chinese red, ebony, silver, brilliant blue, turquoise, white, bright canary yellow—these are the predominating colors used in the startling buildings, tea gardens and boats. Beyond this the blue-green waters of Lake Michigan!

And when you grow tired of walking, select a cushioned wheel chair or a 'rickshaw! These are operated by college boys, who also serve as guides. Buses as long as train coaches also furnish transportation through the grounds. Judy calls them giant caterpillars. Notice the printed sheer crepe frock with satin trimming?

Several Ways To Solve Meat Problem for 2

Shoulder Chops Baked in Casserole Offers Diversion From Steaks.

"I never knew what meat to buy for two." It always is easy to buy other foods in small quantities, but regardless of whether the shopper is experienced or otherwise, meat buying for two always seems to present a problem.

Steaks and chops, of course, are the standbys of the small family, and we have found that if the chops are cut four to the pound they are a good thickness and a pound will be sufficient for two. The amount of steak needed for two depends on the thickness desired.

The choice of meat need not be confined to steaks and chops. Chopped beef can be utilized in a small meat loaf or in patties. Wrapping a slice of bacon around the patty makes it more attractive and adds to the flavor.

Some meats that are particularly adapted for serving two are liver, kidneys, sweetbreads, sausages of all kinds, dried beef, ham slice, tenderloins and stews. Shoulder chops are one of the less expensive cuts and they are delicious baked in a casserole. The next time you want something different, get as many shoulder pork or lamb chops as you need and bake them in a creole sauce for 45 minutes.

Flank steaks are a good choice, too, and they can be prepared in any number of attractive ways. Mock duck is a popular way. Spread the flank steak with a well-seasoned bread dressing and roll the steak so that when served it will be cut across the fibers. Then tie or skewer and place in a baking dish. Sear in a hot oven and when the meat is nicely browned, lower the temperature to 350 degrees Fahrenheit, pour one cup tomato juice or one cup of water over the meat, cover and continue cooking for one hour.

If a small roast is desired, buy loin chops, as many as required and have the retailer separate the bones at the joint, but do not have him cut the meat through. Bake as you would a standing rib roast.

Tuna Souffle.

3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
2-3 cup tuna
2 egg yolks
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 teaspoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon chopped pimiento
½ teaspoon chopped celery
2 egg whites, beaten

Melt butter and add flour. When blended add milk and cook until creamy sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add yolks and beat one minute. Add rest of ingredients and pour into buttered baking dish. Set in pan of hot water. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Unmold and surround with egg sauce.

Culbertson on Bridge

The Dangers of Big Hands.

THERE is scarcely a Bridge player in the world who, when he has picked up a hand of freakish distribution, does not unconsciously ask himself the question, "How much will this hand cost me?"

With goulash distribution, with unbalanced holdings in the various suits, the extraordinary becomes the ordinary, and the unusual, the usual. One freakish hand usually means other freakish hands. Hence, ordinarily this type of hand, even though its longest suit is the highest ranking in the deck, invites a cheap sacrifice by opponents. Granted, however, that you avoid the dangers of opposing bids, that you can successfully outcall any sane declaration the opponents may make, there still remains a greater hazard to your partner. If your partner is like most Bridge players, he will probably contribute to the disaster which faces you, especially if your suit is so long and strong that he cannot have adequate trump support. Many Bridge players in this situation take out an Opening bid with a Jump bid in a new suit, disregarding the obvious lack of fit in the hands, and continue to bid and rebid until a losing contract is assured. Then opponents step in and double, and the result is disaster, when more sane bidding would have brought success.

South, Dealer.

South	West	North	East
1♠(1)	Pass	3♡(2)	4♣(3)
4♠(4)	Pass	5♡(5)	Dbl.(6)
5♠(7)	Pass	6♡	Dbl.
6♠(8)	Dbl.(9)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—Obviously a sound Opening bid.
2—Equally obviously an unsound Forcing Takeout. The hand contains 3 honor-tricks and entirely lacks a fit with partner's bid suit. This suggests caution in the bidding.
3—Perhaps slightly venturesome in view of North and South's strong bidding, but, after all, the hand should produce 7 tricks, and any loss, if doubled, would be in part balanced by the honors held.
4—Were it not for North's Forcing Takeout, South at this point would show the diamond suit, but, misled by the Forcing Takeout, he desires to assure his partner of the rebiddability of the spades, visioning a possible Slam. In view of North's overbidding proclivities, South might well pass.
5—Of course, North should pass. The hand was overbid when the Forcing Takeout was made, and if North is to bid again, it must be on the basis of information furnished by his partner disclosing a fit somewhere else in the hand.
6—From a purely technical standpoint, not a sound Double, as, for all East knows, South has a perfectly safe escape. Of course, as the cards lie, the five-heart contract can be defeated 2 tricks.
7—This bid is based on the fact that South knows his own suit is practically solid. The Double of five hearts by East indicates that his partner's is not.
8—South, of course, might stop and let his partner take his medicine, but, after all, all things point to the probability that, regardless of whether or not North is void of spades, spades are the safest suit for the partnership. It is, of course, evident now that the contract is one too high.
9—This comes as a matter of course, in view of his partner's previous Doubles of the heart bid.

In the play South lost two tricks—a club and the Ace of trumps. In view of his honor holding and in view of the fact that he knew his partner was the type of player who forced without sufficient values and who could not bear to see a hand played in a suit in which his holding was a singleton, his loss was much less than he had reason to anticipate.

Tomorrow's Hand.

What is the best contract for North and South on the hands below and what should be the successive steps in the bidding?

North, Dealer.

Skating Vogue Leads to Added Popularity of Divided Skirt as Play Apparel

By Amos Parrish.

New York, July 19.—Society debs compete in a roller-skating contest in Central Park. And the police are forced to rule skating mothers off the sector alloted to their children.

A flock of bicyclers successfully and mischievously tie up motor parkway traffic on a bright Sunday morning until a cruising officer takes pity on the honking motorists and shoos the pedalling party into a single-file parade.

There's news for thought—as well as for the newspapers. The "come out and play" movement is gaining ground every day. And creating fashions, too.

Take the divided skirt, for instance (and you'll surely take it if you own a bicycle.) There's a costume which despite the efforts of Paris designers during the past two or three summers hadn't taken hold in America.

Until now. Feminine wheelers prefer it to slacks (because it looks more graceful)—to shorts (because they want coverage)—and to undivided skirts (because it's more comfortable.)

With a sweater or mannish shirt-like top, it's keeping the speedometer running up the miles while the girls exercise.

Skirts on Skates.

It doesn't hesitate to try a figure 8 on two-wheel roller skates, either. Though for skating most women prefer an undivided skirt, just as they do for ice skating. There's something about the way a well-cut skirt swings and sways to the skating motion that's more pleasing to an audience.

But slacks have their devotees among the skaters, and if you're going in for the very masculine end of these play costumes, better stick to slacks. Safer for the knees than shorts if you happen to take a tumble.

Shorts for Tennis.

Shorts get their play on the tennis courts, though, and with shirt tops are giving the regulation tennis dress a run for its money. You'll find them a help in badminton, too, or even at ping-pong.

If you prefer to do your playing less strenuously, you can still have plenty of fun in your chiffons and organdies.

We have a leaflet full of all sorts of games guaranteed to keep a house full of week-end guests amused with little exertion. A self-addressed, stamped return envelope and the filled-in coupon brings it to you.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

IF July 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:50 a. m. to 10:15 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 9:45 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 12:10 p. m. to 1:30 p. m. and from 3:15 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

It is probable that you will feel weary on this date. It will be difficult for you to "carry on" in the face of difficulties that beset you. This is more of a testing period than anything else, and it is not at all unlikely that life will soon take on much rosier aspects than you had thought possible.

The child born on this July 20 will be a frolicsome little one. Constantly on the go and full of life, he is likely to prove wearing on his parents. You will find him intelligent, quick to grasp and understand what goes on about him and generally advanced for his years. He may bring you one or two major disappointments during his early years, but all in all should prove a satisfactory child.

If July 20 is the date of your birth, you will probably be faced with success, without trying for it or really wanting it. You would seem to be that type of person who gets drawn into doing things by a current that carries you "over the top" in every venture that you land in. You think well of yourself, but you have no illusions about your abilities. People generally overestimate your good qualities, and unwillingly you will on at least one occasion be forced into accepting a position of importance and great responsibility. You will never find yourself left in the lurch by those who have shown confidence in you. People always rally to your support. You are quick to wade through a mass of detail and once you get your goal firmly in view your march toward it will be uninterrupted.

Born on July 20, peace of mind, contentment and friends are your measuring sticks of success; you care not one bit for power and money. Yours is a judicious mind. You are a fair judge, and you can reach a decision that is just and impartial. You will often find yourself acting as a "go-between" in the settlement of disputes. Devoted to your mate and to your children, you nevertheless have a tendency to neglect them due to the press of other matters.

Successful people born on July 20:
Victor Dowling, New York judge.
Amos Tuck, French banker.
Alfred Owen, educator.
Augustin Daly, dramatist.
Josiah H. Penniman, educator.

Headgear for Fall Designed With Wings

Paris (AP).—Airplane toques have made their debut as advance fall hats. They are designed to fit closely to the head with two small fabric wings perched on each side of the top crown.

Ensemble Fashioned Of Blue Jersey

Paris (AP).—The Princess Sixte de Bourbon Parme wears a Schiaparelli ensemble of navy and light blue checked jersey. It is designed with a slender skirt and three-quarter-length coat and is worn with a blouse of light blue linen.

Summer Riding Less Expensive

Hat and Jacket May Be Left Off; Johdpurs Replace Boots.

If you summer in Arizona or Wyoming, then you know the joy of "dude ranching" and "corraling." If you ride frequently, you know why horseback riding and racing is called the "sport of kings."

Because one lives in the city is no reason to forgo the joy of horseback riding. Even for the tired "business girl" there is little that can equal the pleasure of a twilight canter through the parks. Or an hour's gallop at the first crack of dawn. If you have the stamina to get out in the wee hours of the morning, once or twice a week, for a gallop, you'll find it thrilling and exhilarating as well. It serves as a tonic. Yes, even on a very warm day, far from being enervating it peps one up.

In Hollywood the screen stars ride daily on nearby mountain sides. Johdpurs are worn more frequently these days than boots. In the summer the expense of an outfit is minimized because one can be hatless and jacketless, unless on a formal ride with others when there is a definite rule of propriety in dress.

Gloves should be warn, even in summer, to prevent calloused hands.

New Velvet Berets.

For this in-between season * * * getting late to buy a real summer hat and a bit early for a fall felt * * * the velvet beret is an idea. Velvet is a flattering material and there are enough different types of berets to find a flattering style. And inasmuch as the beret is staging a fall comeback, you can keep right on wearing it.

Black Satin Dresses.

Maybe there's no rhyme nor reason to it, but the fact remains that with the arrival of midsummer you can count on the arrival of black satin. It's true again this year and many a well-tailored black satin may be seen on smart avenues.

Black Glass Plates.

Milk Drinks Refreshing During Hot Weather

Milk drinks are both healthful and refreshing in hot weather. The Bureau of Home Economics offers many delicious recipes that will be welcomed on a hot day. Sirups blend better than grained sugars, and may be made by boiling 1 cup of water and 1 cup of sugar together for 5 minutes. Honey or maple sirup make a delicious variation. Coffee and chocolate make the so-called "mocha" drink. A little mint is as tasty in milk as in iced tea, vanilla, almond, or cinnamon are appetizing flavorings.

To make a milk shake, all ingredients should be cold. Add the desired flavorings to the milk and beat or shake until foamy and pour into tall glasses. Shake cinnamon or nutmeg on top, or add a little marshmallow cream. A caramel float is made with 2 or 3 tablespoons of caramel sirup to a glass of milk. Add a few grains of salt, and beat until foamy, add a scoop of vanilla ice cream and garnish with a sprig of mint.

Hats Point to Smartness.

There certainly is a point to many of the new hats which are making their early appearance. They are cut and draped to extend upward in a point—or two points. Or feather fancies, ribbon cocardes, bows or ornaments are applied to give a pointed look.

Satin Oxfords.

Remember how dresssy you used to feel in the satin oxfords that were fashionable some seasons ago? They are coming back again in one-eyelet tie style for wear with afternoon dresses.

Wooden Fruits.

Alibi.

By Katherine Smith.

When I had ceased to love you in
The way I used to do,
I thought it best to separate,
So gave the gate to you.
But when I saw you suffering
Through my inconstancy,
I let you think, for kindness' sake,
You gave the gate to me.

Good Kitchenware Cuts Home Budget

Accurate Measuring Spoons Important in Saving on Foods.

Heavy tin is good for bread pans, cake and pie pans, muffin rings, and small kitchen ware like measuring cups, strainers, cookie cutters, egg beaters, cake coolers and drying baskets. Contrary to the best practice with utensils of other materials, tinware should not be scoured until it is bright. Tarnish protects the surface, which if exposed to the iron core or foundation, may rust.

Good sharp paring knives, preferably of stainless steel, will save considerable food when it comes to peeling potatoes, apples and other vegetables and fruit. Of course, a sharp knife makes the work go faster, and a sharp point makes it more effective in taking out potato and pineapple eyes and specks, and so forth.

Accurate measuring spoons and cups are important in saving food materials, even though these are handled in relatively small amounts. Careful measurement also produces uniform results. Large spoons for beating and mixing are most comfortable to hold if they are made of wood or have wooden handles. Wooden stirring spoons with shallow flat bowls are light in weight, do not scratch, and are noiseless. A spoon with a metal or enamel handle may bruise the hand and make stirring hard.

Double boilers, asbestos mats, racks to go under meats and other devices to prevent scorching also save food and produce uniform products.

In choosing mixing bowls be sure to pick out those that are heavy enough to stay on the table while you stir. A lightweight bowl turns with every movement. For batters and eggs, bowls with sloping rather than straight sides are preferable.

Old-fashioned Fabrics.

Old-fashioned weaves in soft, new-fashioned textures are being featured for early fall dresses. These include the bengaline, ottoman and faille silks that were popular 1890 materials.

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

AGAIN Washington is faced with the perplexing problem of what to do with the neighbor who turns on his radio too loudly or allows it to blare all hours of the night. With windows up these summer nights the latter becomes particularly annoying. At times it is the cause of extreme irritation and occasionally results in complaints to the police.

There are a half dozen police regulations which may be applied to loud radio reception in the District, but most of them have to do with advertising in public places.

One regulation does say, however, no person shall "knowingly or wantonly" play "any mechanical device, machine or apparatus for intensification of the human voice" so as to "disturb the peace or quiet of a neighborhood."

Another prohibits loud or unusual noises at late or unusual hours. This has been applied to radio reception in the celebrated case of Budd's, the confectioner, at Eighteenthth street and Columbia road.

Here a loud-speaker device furnished dance music for a roof-garden restaurant. Residents of Lanier place complained about it and finally took the case to court, with resulting restrictions as to earlier closing hours at night.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward W. Thomas said yesterday that present regulations are adequate to prevent unusual radio reception in residential as well as commercial zones, but that as a matter of practice four complaints have to be made against a residential offender before the court will consider that he is creating a public nuisance.

One or less than four complaints have to resort to civil action.

WHILE it has never been so applied, another regulation might, in the opinion of the Assistant Corporation Counsel, be used to require police permits for the operation of radios in automobiles on public streets.

Representative Louis Ludlow, of Indiana, introduced a bill in the last session of Congress requiring a permit to have a short-wave set which might pick up police calls in an automobile. However, the regulation which Mr. Thomas refers to could be applied, he believes, if a test were made of it, to long-wave sets carrying broadcast programs.

The regulation, however, was not intended for this purpose, but was written some time ago as a protection against portable loud speakers which were carried on automobile trucks amplifying phonograph records.

The invasion of these sound trucks threatened to occasion considerable annoyance.

Although there has been considerable development along the line, notably a sound truck which could furnish band music for a marching regiment, and another in Huey Long's compaigns where he could put on a whole show as he passed through a village, little seems to have been heard of them lately.

Howard S. Frazier, communications engineer of the Amalgamated Broadcasting System, Ed Wynn's proposed chain, was in Washington recently testing out WOL's outfit. Everything is all set to go so far as Washington is concerned, according to LeRoy Mark.

JOE PALOOKA, "His-self," will come to life tonight over WOL at 6:45 o'clock. Joe has quickly sprung into popularity as one of the new comic characters in The Washington Post. Played by the Northern Dramatic Company, directed by Ronald Dawson, the skit promises to have plenty of punch.

There will be a broadcast a week from Saturday night of the first New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra summer concert to be directed by Hans Kindler, as guest conductor.

George C. Perry, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Virginia, will endeavor to gather in a few votes over WJSV tonight at 7 o'clock.

Governors and former Governors Winant of New Hampshire, Pollard of Virginia, Blackwood of South Carolina, Green of Rhode Island, White of Ohio, Connor of Mississippi, Allen of Louisiana, McNutt of Indiana, Cross of Connecticut, Herring of Iowa and Schultz of Florida will be presented over the air from Chicago this afternoon by Gov. Horner of Illinois (WMAL, 3 o'clock).

The Columbia Dramatic Guild will return as a regular weekly feature tonight (WJSV, 7:30 o'clock), with Edgar Allan Poe's "A Cask of Amontillado."

ANOTHER in the series of notable English plays, written for radio and broadcast with success by the British Broadcasting Corporation will be heard over WMAL at 9:30 o'clock tonight. It is entitled "Edmund Kean," and in addition to recalling the great Irish star, it present the elder John Barrymore and other stage figures well known to American theatergoers.

Paul Robeson, Negro singer and actor; Ann Butler, radio and Broadway comedienne, and Mitzi Green, child film star, will join Rudy Vallee for his variety show over WRC at 7 o'clock tonight.

"Casey Jones," with Frank Westphal and his orchestra providing the instrumental background for "The Railroaders," a male chorus, will be one of the novelties of tonight's presentation of "World's Fair Invitation," over WJSV at 8:45 p. m.

"Radio Joe" will substitute for H. P. Sommerville, manager of the Willard Hotel, tonight at 8:15 o'clock over WJSV in "Fish Stories," broadcast each week. The question has arisen as to whether Mr. Kaufman shall stick to Mr. Sommerville's style of telling true fish stories or switch to a few of his own well-known whoppers.

STARS and familiar planets of the summer months will be the subject of several short talks in which Dr. Robert Horace Baker, professor of astronomy at the University of Illinois and research associate at Harvard Observatory, will be heard beginning tonight over WMAL at 10:15 o'clock. He will attempt to make listeners familiar wth planets and constellations most prominent during the summer. "Venus, the Evening Star," will claim his attention tonight.

Strickland Gilliland, one of the galaxy of stars on the All-Star After Dinner Club over WJSV, now appears without a manuscript. The reason is, he says, that his fan mail jumped 50 per cent when he ad libbed the last show.

Sergt. J. E. Fondahl, the crack pistol shot of the Metropolitan Police Department, made his radio debut over WJSV Monday night. He returns to the air tonight at 10:30 for a description of the National City Fair to be held in Washington September 3 to 9.

He spent the few minutes awaiting program time explaining the fine points of pistol marksmanship to the WJSV staff. And then he made a steady talk to prove he couldn't be made nervous.

THE patter in real Southern dialect, of a rapid-fire auctioneer at Leadbeater's historic apothecary shop in Alexandria yesterday, heard over WJSV, must have been a novelty to younger listeners who had probably never heard such a "line." All "ladies" were "ma'am"; all gentlemen, "sir" with a strong suggestion of "suh"; one or two young bidders were paternally addressed as "son." The whole scene might have been lifted from one of Irvin Cobb's Judge Priest stories.

Walt Mason, Himself

The World's Most Famous Rhymester

The Cave Man.

THE cave man knew no grief or care, so that he drew his bill of fare. He fished the ponds to earn his salt, and had no bonds that might default. He didn't save, nor yet invest; he had his cave in which to rest, and nothing more did he require, he wasn't sore with vain desire. On tireless shanks he used to fly; there were no banks to blow sky-high, and so his mind was free from strain, no beastly grind disturbed his brain. He had no boss to say, "You're fired," no foreman cross to make him tired. No agents came to sell him goods; he hunted game through all the woods; he led his life nor thought it strange, and beat his wife just for a change. Perhaps she rose and raised a duke and bashed his nose as a rebuke. He lived his days, the cave man bold, he went his ways in heat and cold; and he was free from many woes we moderns see, from biffs and blows; from wiles of knaves, from fakes and snares, from early graves brought on by cares. And yet no doubt he had some care when he went out to kill a bear. He may have feared some deadly jinx, when he appeared to chase a lynx. He may have known some fretful ache, when forth alone to catch a snake. There never was a mortal gent who had no cause to make lament.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York, July 20.—Arch Selwyn has been pestered persistently by an irrepressible dramatist who has written a mystery play. Despite continual arguments the scribbler found no success in peddling the opus to Selwyn, although he thought he had a clincher when he referred to his work as "another 'Dracula.'"

"Well, it's like 'Dracula' in this way," Selwyn wryly retorted, 'it certainly gives me the horrors."

Perusing a new book on dramatic criticism, I came across this observation: "The best performers are those who forget completely there is ever an audience and play at make-believe, with the hearts of children imitating their elders."

Business being what it is this summer, this would indicate that all the "best performers" are working. One look into the orchestra seats certainly helps them to "forget completely there is ever an audience."

Then there was the taxi driver cruising up Lenox avenue who was complaining of the lack of fares. "If I don't pick up more trade," he threatened, "I'll have to join the House of David to save barber shop money." (Not very good, but it's true.)

Whoopee!

Recently a New York club prepared, for visiting out-of-towners, a program of merry-making which would permit them to tear the town wide open for $25 weekly. The schedule was salted with free sights, though occasionally the visitor might hold out six-bits for a cut-rate show ticket. Otherwise most of his time was spent looking at museums, tall buildings and park statues.

One fellow who tried out the program, a daring lad from Portland, Ore., abandoned it after a week for a more expensive but livelier plan of his own.

"You can say this about that club's idea of how to see New York," he commented. "True, it only costs $25, but it is also a most persuasive campaigner against life in the big city."

Joie de Vivre.

This is an old one, but it's my favorite Frank Ward O'Malley legend. Late one evening Frank and a group of pals were engrossed in a round table of bon vivant philosophy in the old Rector's.

They were interrupted by the entrance of a boisterous blond, who was slightly high from an extra beaker of oolong. In loud tones she was shouting her intention of marrying the Crown Prince of Afghanistan.

"Wherewith," O'Malley said, "we arose as a man and showered her with flowers. But in our enthusiasm we neglected to detach them from the earthenware flower pots."

Grocery Trade Renews Climb To Prosperity

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, July 19.—Strengthened by advancing commodity prices, which have influenced forward buying to a considerable extent, readjustments, which have been under way for the past two years, now are showing pronounced results in the grocery trade. Output in nearly every division is larger than it was a year ago at this period, sales have broadened almost uninterruptedly during the last three months, while the outlook is more encouraging than it has been in the past three years.

Both wholesalers and retailers are looking forward with confidence to greater profits through increased prices and volume during the next six months.

The entire grocery and food products trades, in fact, now are on a much more stable basis, having been helped by the rising inventory values and the growing volume that has resulted from wider employment. All factors now indicate ground for expectation of general improvement in both volume of trade and collections during the present quarter. While consumers are offering no resistance to the many price markups, retailers have not been laying in stocks so heavily as wholesalers, as they feel that the public will be unable to stand the advance in prices, if purchasing power is not soon enlarged to a greater degree, according to a survey of the grocery trade, which has just been completed by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

Sales Broadening Steadily.

"Output of the major products is running to a larger volume," the survey continues, "with canners well employed, and important cereal manufacturers operating to a considerable part of capacity. The flour mills are on three-shift basis, presumably because of the new Federal enactments soon to become operative, and the imposition of the processing tax of 30 cents a bushel on wheat, which went into effect at midnight on July 8, automatcially raising the price of flour about $1.38 a barrel.

"In contrast to the situation during the early part of the year, when sales were confined largely to the cheaper lines of staples, consumers now are extending purchases to the better qualities of merchandise. The best-selling items appear to be staples and bulk commodities, canned fruits and vegetables, sugar, coffee, cereals, soap, seasonable food, salad dressings, fruit juices and provisions.

"In addition to the better demand for regular items of merchandise, which has resulted from increased spending power, beer distribution has helped to lift general retail sales volume from 8 to 12 per cent above the 1932 comparative total. Stocks are indicated to be about 7 per cent larger than they were at this period last year. Most of the retailers now are aligning operations in order to produce profits rather than volume.

Advance Ordering Heavy.

"Wholesale grocers report volume for the last six months above that of the same period in 1932, with the outlook far better than it was at this time a year ago. Heavy groceries, such as flour, beans, sugar, rice and lard, all have been advanced in price, and increases are appearing in other items almost daily. Sales of pickle products, salad dressings and kindred condiments have jumped ahead each month since March, with the June showing the best in years. Canned fruits have advanced about 30 per cent, with an average advance of nearly 20 per cent in canned foods generally. Sales of preserves are up 15 to 20 per cent over the total of last year.

"It is daily becoming more difficult to secure confirmation of orders, because spot stocks are sold entirely and because prices are rising so rapidly. There seems to be a better feeling in all branches of the trade, although retailers are resisting the heavy purchase of spot stocks, claiming that the public is not in a position to buy freely, and that they fear higher prices will curtail volume further.

"On the other hand, a number of stores that apparently are in a better financial position, with ready cash available, are purchasing beyond normal needs, in the belief that prices will be higher. During the past three weeks, wholesale grocers have done more future business, that is, they have sold more food products for delivery next fall on the arrival of this year's crop than at any period in more than five years.

Prince Index Up 15.7 Per Cent.

"Prices have advanced continuously since March," the survey points out, "due chiefly to the broadening demand, with the increase most noticeable in flour, cereals, grain products, sugar, rice, lard and packing house and dairy products.

"Teas, spices and all imported articles have been marked up because of the depreciated dollar. Canned goods and condensed milk have advanced around 20 per cent, and some of the dried fruits as much as 30 per cent. The general price trend still is upward.

"The index number of wholesale grocery prices, compiled by the National Wholesale Grocers Association, stood at 72.9 at the end of June, as compared with 67.3 a year ago, a gain of 8.3 per cent. From the all-time low of 63.0, which was touched in February, there has been a gain of 15.7 per cent, the current figure being the highest reached since November, 1931.

Collection Ratio Improved.

"Frozen deposits, lack of employment, and decreased incomes are among the major causes retarding collections, although, as a whole, they are much improved over those for the same period of 1932. This applies to both wholesalers and retailers.

"Based on the regular credit terms period, the established leading suppliers have about 119 per cent in receivables today, as compared with 133 per cent at this time last year, which is indicative of the marked improvement in collections. More stores now are going on a strictly cash basis.

"While failures have continued numerous among wholesalers of groceries and produce during the first six months of the current year, there has been an encouraging decrease in the number of defaults in the retail division of the trade. The complete insolvency record of the grocery trade since 1929, including the first six months of 1933, as compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., shows:

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Flour—Prices have been lowered all through the market as a result of the sharp decline in wheat quotations since the start of the week.

Steel—Structural sales last week for the country as a whole were 6,000 tons against 25,500 tons in the preceding week, according to official estimates.

Beet Sugar—Distribution of refined beet sugar in the United States during the first six months this year, according to the domestic Sugar Bureau, amounted to 13,357,889 bags of 100 pounds each, an increase of 6 per cent compared with the distribution in the first half of 1932.

Chemicals — Carbonate potash sales have been consummated at the higher prices recently put into effect, according to trade reports.

Molasses—West Indian products have been advanced 2 cents a gallon. Demand is said to be active with many consumers showing a willingness to contract forward shipments.

Hawaii Begins Return to Goal For New Era

Sugar, Pineapples, Tourists Gain on Wave of Price Increases.

Honolulu, July 19 (AP).—Hawaii, comparatively unscathed by depression, apparently is picking its way back toward the prosperity of former years, as sugar, pineapples and tourists, its three most important industries, respectively, gain momentum on the wave of current better prices.

Sugar, heaviest island producer of revenue, and the industry felt in the economic life of almost every Hawaiian home, has climbed from below 3 cents a pound early this year to 3½ cents. At 3 cents sugar is considered profitable.

To a lesser extent, island business depends on the pineapple industry, which, after a depression of its own, is steadying with a cooperative organization which plans to limit the pack, or total harvest, in order to prevent overproduction.

Pineapple Yield Fixed.

Meeting recently in San Francisco, the Pineapple Producers Cooperative Association fixed the production of canned pineapple for the year beginning July 1, 1933, at 8,000,000 cases, about 2,000,000 cases under the ordinary pack of former years.

Tourists, who in the last year have kept to their own firesides, are again filling the hotels, and added inducements are planned by the Hawaii Tourist Bureau cooperating with business circles to bring visitors.

Compared with mainland conditions, unemployment has been and is of little extent in the islands. The peak number of men applying for employment who had not been given work of some sort was only a few hundred.

Men Given Employment.

Last year 7,900 men registered with the governor's committee on unemployment, and virtually all were given work through Federal aid projects, highway building and other sources.

The Social Service Bureau was able to care for families where direct aid was necessary.

The employment situation was somewhat complicated by the discharge under retrenchment of about 300 territorial employes, but these jobless were expected to be taken care of by expenditures under the Federal public works program. More intensive operations in the pineapple industry helped, but this aid is seasonal, sloping downward from August until the end of the year.

Curb's Prices Collapse With Wet Nose-Dive

Losses Up to 20 Points Cut Recent Gains; Sales, 1,474,000 Shares.

New York, July 19 (AP).—The high flying "wet" shares took a nose dive today, suffering losses up to 20 points before recovering partially in the late trading. The general list gave way in the late trading for losses of 1 to around 5 points.

Hiram Walker opened at 58 and touched a low at 38 before rebounding about 6 points at the close. Distillers Corporation-Seagrams closed at 27¾ for a net loss of 11¼ points. Catnadian Industrial Alcohol sold down to 18 from 32 and recovered slightly at the close.

In the industrial category General Tire & Rubber broke 16 points, then regained about 5 in the last-minute rally. Other shares off 2 to around 5 included Parker Rust Proof, Aluminum Co. of America, Sherwin Williams, Swift & Co., Newmont, Lake Shore and National Sugar.

Oils were moderately lower, Humble lost 3 points, but other principal issues eased fractions to a point. Utilities held up well until the late afternoon, when substantial selling in such issues as Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric caused losses of 1 to more than 2 points. Transfers approximated 1,474,000 shares, compared with 1,502,000 yesterday.

Distillery Stocks Head Heavy Market Losses

One of Worst Relapses in 1933 Advance Clips 4.8 Points From Prices; Sales Volume Mounts to 7,463,480 Shares.

New York, July 19 (AP).—Stocks and staples tumbled today in one of the worst relapses of the 1933 bull market as "overloaded" traders rushed for the heavy profits that had been accumulating in the past three months.

Alcohol shares fell into a tailspin in the early hours, following their weakness of yesterday, and finally extended their losses to around 7 to 25 points. Other categories of stocks—including many of the fast-moving specialties of recent sessions, joined the avalanche after displaying early resistance and finished with declines around 1 to 7 or more.

It was the wildest day in the share market since the upswing began last April. Sales totaled 7,463,480 shares, the largest turnover since May, 1930, and the average for 90 selected stocks fell 4.8 points, to 92.1.

Some market observers had been warning that a sharp "corrective reaction" was a distinct probability in view of the almost unabated advance in equity prices. Commission houses had advised customers to shorten their commitments.

But an important factor apparently was a report that the large banks were tightening up on speculative credit, partly owing to fears that the feverish trading of the past several weeks was unhealthy especially as it might affect the progress of the administration's National recovery plans. At the same time a number of brokers jumped their margin requirements to as much as 50 and 60 per cent in some instances, while several were said to have insisted on wholly cash transactions in a few of the more volatile alcohol issues.

The dollar seemingly was not a motivating influence. While it showed gain of some 2 cents against the British pound sterling, it was only a trifle higher in terms of the leading European gold currencies.

The downfall of the so-called "wet" stock was an entirely anomalous response to the prohibition repeal votes of Arkansas and Alabama, but in their case the feeling was that they followed the old-time market rule of "selling on the good news." Also, it had been pointed out recently some of them had shown extreme advance of more than 100 points from their low levels of the year.

Among the principal casualties in the alcohol contingent were National Distillers, off 25½; American Commercial Alcohol, off 21¾; United States Industrial Alcohol, off 17; Commercial Solvents, off 13⅛; Standard Brands, off 6; Owen-Illinois, off 7½; Crown Cork, off 5¼, and Liquid Carbonic, off 6⅜.

U. S. Steel Is Expected To Vote 50-Cent Return

New York, July 19 (AP).—Dow, Jones & Co. said today that directors of the United States Steel Corporation will probably vote another 50-cent dividend on the preferred stock when they meet on Tuesday of next week.

Wall street has heard rumors of an increase in the rate, even to the extent of reestablishing the old $1.75 quarterly payment, but the agency said "such action would not be justified by results of operations and the thought of such a disbursement never has entered the minds of those directing the affairs of the corporation."

Stocks.

One of the worst relapses in the 1933 bull market sent stocks hurtling 4.8 points lower. Distillery issues led the slump. Sales increased to 7,463,480 shares, the largest turnover since May, 1930.

Bonds.

The market provided the only bright spot in security sales. It advanced two-tenths of a point and recorded new highs for the year. Profit-taking was defied. The turnover increased to $20,847,000.

Curb.

High-flying wet shares took a nose-dive and the curb's recent gains were trimmed from 1 to 5 points. Some losses were up to 20 points. Sales totaled 1,474,000 shares.

Wheat.

Stop-loss selling drove wheat down as much as 13¼ cents at one time. It closed 9⅞ to 12¼ cents off. Rye and other grains joined the slump. July wheat sold at $1.05; May, at $1.13.

Cotton.

A break of $2.50 per bale in cotton prices resulted from realizing and liquidation. The general market was down 40 to 43 points, July sold at 11.18; October, 11.48; December, 11.66. Liverpool reported prices 5 points lower.

Rubber.

Crude futures closed irregular. July sold at 8.85; September at 9.20.

Sugar.

Coffee.

Silver.

Gold.

Bar gold sold in the United States at $20.67 per ounce; in London, at 124 shillings and 4 pence.

Dollar.

The United States dollar recovered slightly after a new drop. It stood, in New York with reference to other currencies, $4.82 to the English pound; 5.69 cents to the French franc, and 34.70 to the German mark.

Goods Markets.

New York, July 19 (A.P.).—Most of the gray cotton goods groups have revised prices on an upward scale in keeping with new costs. Finished goods prices are also being rearranged on higher levels. Women's wear coatings and dress goods are being bought moderately for fall at higher prices. Silk goods are selling in small lots. Rayon fabrics are in better demand, but price uncertainties are holding back business. Burlaps are firm at top levels for the year thus far.

Bonds Provide Bright Spot in Security Sales

More New Highs Recorded as Turnover Rises to $20,847,000.

New York, July 19 (AP).—The bond market today felt the backwash of the slump in stocks and commodities, but in spite of heavy losses in some secondary issues, its closing tone was fairly firm.

There was no wavering of support in the prime obligations and some of the semispeculative varieties managed to save a part of the substantial gains compiled in the early trading. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced .2 point on a turnover of $20,847,000 compared with $19,757,000 yesterday. The average at 83.5 was at another new high for this year.

Reflecting concern over the wide break in some of the widely exploited equities, traders showed a sudden desire to cut down commitments in a considerable number of issues which had been matching the fast pace of the stock market. This liquidation lopped off several points in some of the more speculative communications, rail and industrial descriptions.

In the same categories, however, were many issues which, though off from their highs, ended with sizable net advances. Gainers in the carrier list included some loans of the Chicago & North Western, Cleveland Union Terminal, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, Nickle Plate, New Haven, St. Louis Southwestern and Wabash. Among utility and industrial bonds the best improvement was scored by such issues as American Water Works 6s, Republic Steel 5½s, and International Mercantile Marine 6s.

The foreign sector was highly irregular with many South Americans off sharply on profit-taking inspired by their recent spurt. U. S. Governments were slightly easier.

London—Owing to investment buying, gilt-edged securities and home rails were the best sections in a quiet and cheerful session of the stock exchange. Speculative, oil and rubber shares eased on profit taking, but Transatlantic issues especially nickel stocks, were steady. The market closed steady.

Paris—The tone of the bourse was generally heavy with trading inactive as traders showed reluctance to follow the Wall street boom too far. The closing was irregular.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse improved and closed firm.

Capital Silent As Dollar Sinks To Pound Par

(Associated Press.)

The drop of the dollar in London below the old parity rate to the pound, $4.86 3-5, was watched with interest by Government officials, but comment was withhheld, as usual.

Officials had previously expressed the opinion that the weakness of the dollar abroad was due to thin speculation and future purchasing of foreign exchange by American importers of foreign goods.

When the United States went off the gold standard, President Roosevelt's attitude was set forth as intending to permit the dollar to find its own level, without any Government action.

Efforts of Gold.

Efforts made by gold standard countries at the London conference to have adopted a temporary stabilization plan were rejected by the President.

The opinion prevailed that the President felt that any effort at stabilization would halt the upward trend of prices sought by the domestic emergency program.

While the administration still stands on its rejection of stabilization at this time, the President has a powerful weapon at his command in the authority conferred in the Thomas amendment to the farm relief bill to reduce the gold content of the dollar as much as 50 per cent. The dollar now contains 25.8 grains of gold, 0.900 fine, and gold is worth $20.67 an ounce.

Reserve Bank's Gold.

The Federal Reserve system holds $3,400,000,000 of gold and the Nation's supply is more than $4,000,000,000, the largest amount held by any nation in the world, the total stocks of which amount to $11,300,000,000.

While official comment was lacking on the drop of the dollar today, officials of the Treasury, Federal Reserve and State Departments have been watching closely the change from day to day. It has generally been understood the President was ready to act whenever he deemed the proper time had come, but what form this action would take has not been divulged.

The old parity of $4.86 3-5 stood from 1925 until the United States went off the gold standard in April. The exchange rates have been in that neighborhood since the gold standard was adopted in 1900. The postoffice rate of dollars was set at $4.87 to the pound on July 12.

Business Notes.

Litchfield, Ill., July 19 (AP).—Raises are ahead for 650 employes of two local factories. The American Radiator Co.'s plant notified its 250 workers they will receive a 10 per cent increase, effective at once. Monday the Brown Shoe Co. factory will give its 400 workers 5 per cent increase, the second in a month. Whether the raises are restorations of previous cuts was not announced.

Des Moines, Iowa, July 19 (AP).—Streets Commssioner John MacVicar today announced a million-dollor public improvement program planned for Des Moines.

MacVicar would use the funds for paving and other street improvements. His plan calls for issuance by the city of $200,000 in bonds, a grant from Federal Government of $300,000, and payment from the benefited district of $50,000.

Capital Credit Men End Year With Meeting

Annual Dinner Is Attended by Board and Officers; Office Is Leased.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Conclusion of a successful fiscal year was celebrated last night by Associated Retail Credit Men of Washington, D. C., Inc. The association held its annual meeting at Congressional Country Club. The meeting was preceded by a dinner attended by all officers and directors of the association.

Past President Mark Lansburgh of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association and Milton W. King, general counsel of the association, were in attendance, and John W. Tallentire, credit manager of the Hecht Co., and president of the association, presided at the meeting.

Officers and directors of the association are Mr. Tallentire, president; Adolph Weyl, Lansburgh & Bro., vice president; Stephen H. Talkes, secretary-treasurer; Leo Baum, Goldenberg's; Benjamin Blanken, Charles Schwartz & Son; Wilhelmina C. Bullock, M. Philipsborn & Co.; A. Coonin, William Hahn & Co., Charles M. Keefer, S. Kann Sons Co.; Sylvan King, King's Palace; Elsie M. Lee, Frank R. Jelleff, Inc.; Harry V. Ostermayer, Woodward & Lothrop; Herbert J. Rich, B. Rich's Sons; E. Emerson Snyder, Raleigh Haberdasher; Ben Stein, Grosner's; Messrs. Talkes, Tallentire and Weyl, Martin M. Watson, Dulin & Martin Co., directors.

Mr. Blanken, chairman of the financ committee of the association, presented the annual reports to the board of directors. These indicated that the association which operates its credit bureau in the Printcraft Building at 930 H street northwest, had passed one of the most successful years in the entire history of the organization.

The association also announced that its directorate has approved a 5-year lease for space on the ninth floor of the Earle Building at Thirteenth and E streets northwest and that it will be established in its new quarters there on Monday, July 24.

These commodious and more modern quarters will enable the association to render even greater service than it has in the past. The new quarters are located in the center of the downtown business district. Officers and directors of the association expressed themselves as being well pleased with the outlook for better business during the new administrative year.

Exceptional improvement in sales volume of all three of its divisions household, commercal and air conditioning, was reported yesterday by Frigidaire Corporation, subsidiary of General Motors Corporation, for June in comparison with June, 1932, and May of this year.

The improvement is national in its scope and only a few of the 44 districts of the company failed to produce increased volume, according to H. W. Newell, vice presdent.

Contrary to normal seasonal volume, Mr. Newell said, dollar volume of household sales in June has shown an increase over May, the month in which peak volume has been reached in former years. This year June dollar volume was 15 per cent over May and 53 per cent over June, 1932. May of this year showed a 42 per cent gain over May, 1932.

The company's commercial refrigeration sales showed an excellent upturn, reflecting the way in which retail merchants are beginnng to purchase long needed equipment and indicating a development of modernization programs by store owners and operators, Mr. Newell said. Much of the new volume in the commercial division came from sale of beer cooling equipment, he stated.

Copper Is Holding Out for 9¼ Cents

New York, July 19 (AP).—Copper, though quotably unchanged at 9 cents a pound in the domestic market, can not be bought in substantial quantities at that figure, trade interests said today.

Most of the larger producers were said to be asking 9¼ cents, anticipating the early establishment of that level throughout the trade. Reports that resale copper was available at 9 cents a pound could not be confirmed, according to some brokers who were seeking metal at that price.

The market's strengthened tone is attributed to a further advance in the export market and to prospects of increased domestic buying for all requirements.

Wheat Tumbles On Stop-Loss Selling Drives

Rye, Oats, Corn Dragged Down in Hurricane; Speculators Blamed.

Chicago, July 19 (AP).—Struck by a hurricane of stop-loss selling, all grain markets suddenly collaspsed late today, wheat as much as 13¼ cents a bushel.

Nine days of incessant general public speculative buying, reckless of elementary marketing conditions, sowed the wind, and reaped the whirlwind. The markets snapped under the strain of mountain-like overbought conditions after wheat had shown an unprecedented vertical rise of 40 cents a bushel without a substantial reaction.

Most of the smash in grain values came in the final quarter hour of trading, with prices at times falling faster than a cent a bushel a minute.

Views of Traders.

To seasoned traders, the storm of stop-loss selling meant that the wheat market especially had been filled to suffocation with buying orders from speculators with insufficient capital, who sought to protect themselves through selling out at certain specified limits on downturns in prices.

Such selling instructions, however, once they started into mass operation, acquired the force of an avalanche.

After wheat prices had excitedly smashed down more than 13 cents and rye nearly as much, with corn off 5 cents and oats 7 cents, wheat rallied 1 to 2 cents, closing flurried 9⅛ to 12¼ under yesterday's finish; rye, 11¼ to 12¼ lower; corn, at 3½ to 4¾ decline; oats, at 2¾ to 6¾ loss, and provisions showing setbacks varying from 2 cents to 52 cents.

Among Danger Signs.

Among the red-light danger signs which enthusiasts for higher prices had disregarded was the fact that wheat available for immediate use had stopped following the upward sweep of prices for speculative future deliveries.

This condition became acute today with reports that there had been a big falling-off in purchase of flour at Minneapolis. Other simultaneous reports told that Ohio mills had completely stopped buying wheat, whereas until recently the mills had taken all country offerings.

Greatly disturbing to wheat traders, too, were reported possibilities that foreign wheat imports into the United States were threatened because of over-rapid advance of prices of future deliveries as compared with quotations abroad, Argentina in particular.

Barriers Cited in Vain.

It was in vain wheat trade authorities pointed out that orders already issued by the Treasury Department at Washington provided for barriers in the shape of compensating tax equal to the domestic wheat processing tax, and that imported wheat or wheat products would also have to pay 42 cents a bushel tariff duty.

From the outset, wheat prices here were shaky and although during most of the day new wholesale public speculative buying came forward intermittently, market rallies failed to hold well. Then came the cloudbursts of stop-loss selling.

Corn and oats were relatively steadier than wheat and rye owing to indications of a possible return of damaging high temperatures over the corn belt.

Provisions weakened with grains.

Cherbourg, France, July 19 (AP).—Gold valued at 157,000,000 francs ($8,964,700) arrived on the Olympic today from the New York Federal Reserve Bank for the Bank of France.

Wool Market.

Boston, July 19 (A.P.) (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—A fair demand is being received on average French combing 64s and finer territory wools at mostly 74-75 cents scoured basis for original bag lots. An occasional odd lot can be had at around 73 cents while clothing staple and defective or inferior wools bring 69-72 cents scoured basis.

London, July 19 (A.P.).—Of the 9,320 bales of wool offered at the auction today, 7,360 were sold. The miscellaneous selection placed on the market met with a brisk demand. Steady prices were realized for the bulk of the 3,081 bales of South Americans included in the offerings. Withdrawals were frequent among inferior crossbreds.

Spotlight Turns On Surpluses Of World Crops

(Associated Press.)

Governmental efforts to bolster an availing economic system are bringing into the spotlight world crop surpluses.

World utilization of wheat, the one big general crop, has been about normal. Consumption has not increased in the usual ratio with the growth of population, but it has held fairly constant over a number of years. The acreage in surplus-producing countries actually has declined.

The crux of the situation is the remarkable degree to which deficit areas have been successful in becoming self-sufficing through Governmental stimulation and protection of domestic production. Imports into formerly heavy buying countries of Europe are running near the record lows for the last ten years.

Europe's Wheat Yield.

Europe's wheat production, outside Russia, amounted to only 900,000,000 bushels in 1919-20, whereas, it rose to 1,500,000,000 bushels in 1932-33. Charts by the Department of Agriculture show France, Italy and Germany are practically feeding themselves behind towering tariff walls and regulations requiring almost 100 per cent use of native grain in milling mixtures.

The German import duty of $1.62 a bushel on wheat is more than four times higher than the relatively steep prewar tariff, the Italian tariff of $1.07 is roughly three times prewar and the French minimun duty is more than double.

These and other extraordinary measures exist in Europe largely because of intensified economic nationalism, currency instability accompanying acute difficulties in balancing international payments and national budgets, falling prices and pressing revenue needs. To some degree they are due to European fears of rising bread prices in 1929, when the United States and Canada launched mammoth withholding movements to force up the world price of wheat.

Surplus in United States.

The result has been to back up 594,000,000 bushels of excess wheat in the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia, whereas 270,000,000 bushels was considered a normal surplus 10 years ago.

At the lowest levels in 10 years, world wheat shipments totaled only 479,000,000 bushels for the current season to May 24, compared with 601,000,000 the previous season. United States exports for the period July, 1932, through March, 1933, amounted to but 20,700,000 bushels, against 73,800,000 for the same time last year.

The following table discloses the very definite drying up of American export outlet by major customer countries:

Trade in Flour.

This country's foreign trade in flour for the current season through May has been less than one-half that for the same time a year ago, only 3,400,000 barrels compared with 7,100,000 barrels.

Cotton prices are not held to have been affected appreciably by foreign subsidies intended to encourage production outside the United States. Rather, the low level of values has tended to nullify efforts to aid foreign growers and to leave this country still the world's foremost source of supply.

It is held by many observers that cotton prices as well as those of hog products, tobacco and dairy products have been injured by a gradual tightening up of foreign trade barriers. Tobacco exports have been displaced by 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 pounds since 1920.

Foreign markets for lard have been severely penalized. Fruit exports have held up well, but prices have suffered. In the main, the dairy industry is on a domestic basis.

Interest in Default On German Bonds

New York, July 19 (AP).—Interest payments on bonds of three German corporations, due last Saturday, was defaulted, it was announced today, and these issues now are being traded flat on the New York Stock Exchange. The defaulting issues were the General Electric Co. of Germany 7s of 1945, German Central Agricultural Bank 6s of 1960 and Consolidated Hydro-Electric Works of Upper Wuerttemberg 7s of 1956.

Holders of the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovene 8 per cent bonds of 1962 were notified by the City Bank Farmers Trust Co. that it appeared improbable sufficient funds would be received for full interest payments on this issue, due November 1, 1932, and that $7 on each $40 coupon would be paid from money on hand.

In the case of the Upper Wuerttemberg bonds, holders were informed that the corporation had deposited reichsmarks with the Conversion Bank for Foreign Debts in Germany equivalent to the interest due on July 15, and that governmental permission had been requested to make full dollar payments. In the event this permission is not granted, it was hoped future payments could be made at the rate of 50 per cent in dollars and the remainder in reichsmark checks on the Conversion Bank.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

Football Yarn Bought Before Its Serial Run

By Nelson B. Bell.

The day when the motion picture studio was the last to come into possession of the story rights to fiction works of importance, other than those written on order expressly for picturization, seems definitely to have passed.

In fact, the procedure apparently is now exactly reversed. The film makers get the story first, and its serialization, novelization or whatnot may follow along as best they can.

For instance, picture rights to Lucian Cary's newest story, "Saturday's Millions," scheduled for serial publication in the Saturday Evening Post in September, have just been legally acquired by Universal Pictures Corporation, and the yarn will serve as that company's annual football drama, following such earlier gridiron successes by the same studio as "The Spirit of Notre Dame" and "The All American."

Production has already begun on this seasonable opus, and it will be released in October at the height of public interest in football and the big college games.

Dale Van Every, it appears, has taken time by the forelock and has been working on his adaptation of the tale for a considerable period, in anticipation of its formal acquisition by Universal.

One of the principal roles in "Saturday's Millions" will be filled by Lucille Lund, winner of the Universal-College Humor contest to select a representative "all American co-ed."

Miss Lund, the choice of a committee of judges consisting of Stanley Gibson, Russell Patterson, Jefferson Machamer, Larry Reid, and Carl Laemmle, jr., arrived at Universal City from Chicago little more than a week ago to begin rehearsals for her part.

The romantic leads are played by Robert Young and Leila Hymans, with Andy Devine, Johnny Mack Brown, Grant Mitchell, Joe Sauers, Richard Tucker and Herbert Corthell in support. Devine also appeared promently in "The Spirit of Notre Dame" and "The All American."

A friend of his told a friend of hers, who told a friend of mine, who told me that there is no foundation whatever in fact for the many rumors that are flying around concerning a violent attachment between June Gale, of the Quadruplet Gales, of George White's "Scandals," vaudeville, pictures and biological fame, and Hoot Gibson, of the Sally Eilders Gibsons, once removed.

Indeed, it comes much straighter than that, in a letter from June to her lifelong—or thereabouts—friend, Maxine Doyle, mistress of ceremonies at the Earle Theater, Belle Islander and big dramatic actress, that there is no flaming romance in the friendship existing between Cowboy-Aviator Gibson and one of the most charming fourths of the multiple Gales.

How all those pictures in the hospital happened to be taken was that on the day he cracked up at the air races in Los Angeles, Mr. Gibson had invited Miss Gale to attend the aerial circus as his guest. Naturally, when he crashed, she followed to the hospital and was a frequent caller thereafter.

And there the matter rests. There it rests—that is, except for all the gossip about a love affair and impending marriage. These items, Miss Gale insists are a little of the old malarkey.

As for Mr. Gibson, he probably feels, now that he is convalescing, that it is an ill Gale that blows nobody good!

And Lieut. Leon Brusiloff, F. M. C. R.—I didn't know, either, but it seems that means Fleet Marine Corps Reserve—formerly musical director at Loew's Clumbia Theater and Fox's Fox, and more recently an impressario of the air, calls up to say that from August 6 to 16, as conductor of the Sixth Reserve Marine Brigade Band, he will be in charge of a bunch youngsters ambitious to toot for Uncle Sam, down at Quantico.

After the ten days in camp, the boys will march back to Washington, just by way of determining how they stand the gaff. It is more than likely that on this jaunt they will all want to play cymbals to save wear and tear on the old lung power, if any!

Today at Seaside Park, down at Chesapeake Beach, Md., it is the expectation that some 8,000 or more visitors will participate in the Farmers' Picnic of the Maryland Tobacco Growers' Association. A program of entertainment that will continue from early morning until late at night has been arranged.

Roy Atwell, who comes to the Earle tomorrow as headliner of the stage program, will be recalled by those fortunate enough to have attended the recent "Lambs' Gambol," on a Sunday night in late spring at the National, as the amusing gentleman who poured a mess of hopelessly scrambled wordage into a dummy microphone in an hilarious impersonation of a radio announcer suffering from a touch of "mike fever."

It is a marvel to all who hear him how Mr. Atwell, one of our more effective comedians, ever manages to keep all of his crooked English straight!

The midsummer week beginning tomorrow in the downtown picture houses will be notable for the return to a normally first-run screen of a musical hit of Inauguration week and an extension of the engagement of a delightful domestic drama through a second week on Fifteenth street—both unusual events for this time of year.

The complete roster of attractions for the new week will be approximately as follows: Earle, Cary Grant and Benita Hume in "Gambling Ship," and Roy Atwell headlining the vaudeville bill; Loew's Fox, Helen Twelvetrees and Ken Murray in "Disgraced," and Richard Gordon in "Sherlock Holmes," radio feature, headlining the vaudeville; RKO-Keith's, Ann Harding and William Powell in "Double Harness," second week; Palace, Charles Ruggles, Mary Boland and Lilyan Tashman in "Mama Loves Papa;" special recovery reel, "Inflation," and Ted Healy in "Nertsery Rhymes;" Metropolitan, Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell, Warner Baxter, Bebe Daniels and Ginger Rogers in "42nd Street," return engagement; Columbia, "Skeets" Gallagher and Noel Francis in "Reform Girl," opening Monday.

It is perhaps worthy of passing comment that Vittorio Podrecca's "The Piccoli," which closes a week's engagement at Loew's Fox tonight, is not the only marionette show that has intrigued the fancy of American theatergoers of late.

Out in Chicago, records for the first six weeks of the World's Fair indicate that almost half the people who have attended the Century of Progress Exposition have witnessed the performances of the A. & P. Marionettes, designed and operated under the personal supervision of that patriarch of American puppeteers, Tony Sarg.

The interest in the puppet show, as it is known to European audiences, was given its first impetus as a factor in modern American entertainment back in 1916 when Winthrop Ames, one of the most scholarly of American producers, invited the renowned Papa Schmidt, of Munich, to bring his marionettes to America.

This country, up to that time, had rarely, if ever, seen a puppet—that is, since the Indians, who made extensive use of them in their ceremonials, had been started on the road to virtual extermination.

Schmidt could not leave Germany because of the war, so Ames transferred the commission to Sarg, who was in London.

And that, my little ones, is how the American theater came to be all dolled up!

The Spice of Many a Film Bill!

Ginger Rogers, young singing comedienne of torrid talents, who returns to the Metropolitan screen in "42nd Street" tomorrow and, following "Double Harness," will be seen with Lew Ayres at RKO-Keith's in "Don't Bet on Love." Ginger is winning many rooters. Ginger rooters, that would be!

Dancers, Army Band Starred On Sylvan Bill

Sixth Summer Program of Community Center Wins Applause of 6,000.

Six thousand admiring, loudly applauding persons thronged the National Sylvan Theater last evening as the United States Army Band, under the direction of Capt. William J. Stannard, and the Lester Shafer-Marian Chace Dance Group presented the sixth Summer Festival program, this one sponsored by Senator and Mrs. William H. King and under the auspices of the Community Center Department.

Playing before the largest crowd to assemble at one of these functions, the Army Band responded with a program designed to fit the most exacting taste. Opening with the "Coronation March," from Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete," the band went into the "Rienzi" overture (Wagner). "The Sevillan Festival" (Tavan), composed of four dances—bolero, jota, sevillanas, march of the toreadors—formed a perfect transition to "Invitation to the Dance" (Weber) which, in turn, introduced the Shafer-Chace Dancers.

Solo Well Done.

No band concert is complete without at least one solo, and with Musician Charles W. Barnes' playing of Sir Arthur Sullivan's "The Lost Chord," no other solos were necessary. But Musician Barnes did respond with "Miramo Asi" (de Fuentes), a sparkling Cuban dance.

The band, too, was generous with its encores, of which John Philip Sousa's first great march—"The Washington Post March"—headed the list, with Latin America furnishing "Cantarer de Elina" (Bustemanto) and Galimany's Panamanian dance, "Fuerza y Luz," as the other numbers.

The Shafer-Chace dance group has appeared frequently on programs of the Community Center, but it is safe to say that a more colorful or one of more studied perfection has not been offered. Outstanding on this portion was Lester Shafer's interpretation of Quetzecoatl, the plumed serpent of the Aztecs, in a dance of the same name, with music arranged by Starr Preston, who accompanied most of the dances at the piano.

Mayan Dance Praised.

All the color and ceremony of the ancient Mayan civilization were recreated by Mr. Shafer, a performance which ranks with Marion Chace's "Salome," to Strauss' music, as the finest bits of terpsichorean art seen on the Sylvan stage. In depicting the siren of old, Miss Chace went in more for moods than motion, the "veils" this time being Pride, Hatred, Seduction, Purity of Love, Decadence, Frailty and Passion.

The ensemble numbers of the dance group proper and of the junior group were beautifully staged and executed.

Among those taking part were:

Bound and Robbed

Mrs. Martin Sommers, who was gagged, bound and robbed by two men and a woman late yesterday.

3 Rob Woman Of $85, Rings, Watch in Hoax

Trio Looking for Rooms Use Gun and Bind and Gag Mrs. Sommers.

A 38-year-old woman was bound, gagged and robbed of $85, two diamond rings worth $150 and a valuable watch by two men and a woman who called at her home to inspect lodgings yesterday afternoon. The woman is Mrs. Mabel Sommers, of 1122 Thirteenth street northwest.

The trio rang Mrs. Sommers' doorbell shortly after 4:30 p. m. They were guests at a downtown hotel, they said, but wanted permanent quarters in a rooming house.

Mrs. Sommers took one of the men and the woman upstairs to look at a room. One of the men remained downstairs, seated on a hall seat.

When she had finished demonstrating the room, said Mrs. Sommers, she came downstairs and, having a premonition of something wrong, looked in her pocketbook.

Discovering her money gone, Mrs. Sommers began a protest. She was silenced with a gun held by the man who had stayed downstairs.

Forcing Mrs. Sommers into a back room, the three bound and gagged her. She struggled loose in a few moments. Rushing to the street, she notified police.

Irish Again Put Up Shilalah to Hit John Bull

Chicago, July 19 (AP)—Irish-Americans here for the biennial convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians took up the shilalah today in an ancient fight—that against Great Britain.

Michael W. Delaney, of Chicago, giving his report as president of the order, said, "We will never be satisfied until the entire island is free to work out its own destiny."

His report said the order opposed any clemency in the matter of international debts, and criticized "those who beg remission of their debts when they would not accord to Ireland what they are asking here."

The president's fist was also waved at the Carnegie and Sulgrave Foundations, along with the British-American Union and Cecil Rhodes Scholarships. They were termed "more interested in the welfare of another country than of their own."

Solemn requiem high mass in St. Patrick's Church opened the day, the business session heard reports from John J. O'Connor, of New York, national vice president; Lo Kelly, of Pittsburgh, secretary; Thomas Kiernans, of Montreal, Canadian official; Representative Michael Donohoe, of Pennsylvania; Representative Martin L. Sweeney, of Cleveland, and Thomas J. Finnegan, treasurer, of Massachusetts.

In answer to a telegram sent President Roosevelt yesterday, the convention today received a message from Marvin W. McIntyre, one of the President's secretaries, expressing President Rosevelt's "personal and grateful thanks."

Nats' Rally Beats Browns, 8-7, as Yanks Bow; Regain Tie for Lead

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

THAT was a nice ball game for the Nats to win yesterday, what with the Yankees being tripped by the White Sox, and it was quite a gloom-chaser, too, if I read aright the four-ply smile that etched a ruddy wreath around the Celtic countenance of Joseph Francis Cronin in the locker room after the game.

The world's a great place to live in right now, Cronin will tell you. Those 14 hits his ball club made yesterday were both nectar and ambrosia to the Nats' young manager. Especially at a time when the team hadn't been hitting the weight of Mascot Jimmy Mahorney.

"We looked great up there at the plate, didn't we?" Cronin beamed. "I knew we'd snap out of it. Getting the runs when we needed 'em, the way we used to; that's what I liked about it. And on a day when our pitching wasn't so good. We're not licked, I tell you."

Not a Bad Position.

Allowing a bit for Cronin's exuberance, it seems that things are indeed looking up for the Nats. Back in a tie with the Yankees and showing signs of recovering their batting eyes. A tie for the league lead is not a bad position for any club at this stage of the race and the Nats have rid themselves of a lot of bad baseball.

The 12 remaining hand-to-hand clashes with the Yankees hold the fate of the Nats this season, an encouraging factor inasmuch as Washington has walloped New York in 7 of the 10 games between the clubs thus far this season.

Both clubs have now had their slumps and it's strictly a two-team race from now to October 1. As the Colorado River said to the Grand Canyon, time will tell.

Hadley Changes Style.

Irving (Bump) Hadley, the reformed Nat who found a haven for his wildness in St. Louis and proceeded to pitch some nice baseball for the Browns, holding the Nats to four hits last Sunday among other things, isn't the pitcher he used to be.

"They used to tell me I had a fast ball," said Hadley yesterday, "and I believed 'em. I used to let it fly at the batter and pray that it would be somewhere near the plate. But all I succeeded in doing was hang up a new American League record for walks.

"I'm mixing 'em up this year. When I was with Washington, Walter Johnson used to tell me I could slip a fast ball by the batters. But it can't be done. I'm mixing 'em up this year. But which paper was it said I was a slow ball pitcher like Walter Stewart?"

Not guilty.

Levey Recalls Grid Game.

Griffith Stadium was familiar terrain to another member of the St. Louis cast. There Shortstop Jim Levey used to gallop up and down the chalk-marked field for the Quantico Marines' football teams.

He was reminiscing yesterday.

"The Marines weren't so good after Frank Goettge left 'em," said Levey. "It was a lot of work out there carrying the ball with some of the lines they had. I remember one game against Georgetown. I've still got the clippings telling where I gained 438 yards myself that afternoon, and we never came close to a touchdown."

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.—July 19 (U. P.).—Barney Welsh, of Washington, D. C., today advanced to the fourth round of the West Virginia State open championship by defeating Bill Williams, of Charleston, W. Va., in the men's singles, 6—0, 6—4.

Peacock Tops Maryland Golfers

Indian Spring Star Has 144 After Subpar 69 in Morning.

Four in Tie for Second 2 Strokes Behind; 67 Compete.

By Dave Herman.

PLAYING true to predictions, Roger Peacock, District titleholder and heavily-backed favorite from the host club, posted a 36-hole total of 144 yesterday at Indian Spring to win the qualifying prize from a field of 67 golfers in the Maryland State amateur championship.

Peacock's sensational sub-par morning round of 69, and his 75 of the afternoon enabled him to nose ahead of four of his closest rivals by two strokes, each. In hot pursued followed Harry Pitt, of Manor, with 72-74; J. W. Harvey, jr., of Indian Spring, with 75-71; Louis Fuchs, also of Indian Spring, with 74-72, and Dave Crook, the blond Middle Atlantic champion, of Rolling Road, with 70-76.

Blasting par in his morning jaunt, Peacock led his Baltimore adversary, Crook, who had 32 on the first nine, by one shot, at the half-way mark. The Indian Spring star was in fine fettle on the opening nine, which he negotiated in 31 strokes—four below par and a new all-time record for the course.

Peacock Starts Well.

It was a great nine that included 5 par and 4 birdies, and saw Peacock the complete master of every shot in his bag. He wes never off line during that 9, and chipped in form off green for a deuce on the ninth hole. Peacock appeared headed for a new District 18-hole mark, but folded up on the stretch and took a 38, after a bad drive on the tenth and two poor niblick shots in traps on the thirteenth and sixteenth put a dent in his score.

Bracing in the afternoon, Peacock rounded the turn with an even par 35.

However, his last nine was as poorly played as was his opening nine brilliant. Yet, for the 36 holes Peacock was only two over par.

The man who set the pace in the afternoon was the lanky J. W. Harvey, jr., whose 34 on the first nine of that round was the big factor in enabling him to pound out a 71. Louis Fuchs, also of the home club, posted the next best, a 72.

With two rounds of match play slated this morning Washington finds 14 of its golfers in the championship flight, with Baltimore grabbing the lion's share with 18. Only 23 District golfers were entered in the tournament.

All of the local favorites made the grade, but it remained for the Indian Spring's golfers to carry off the most places. So tight was the battle for the 32 positions that late in the evening Jack Jester and Maury Fitzgerald, both of Kenwood; John Jankowski, of Indian Spring; A. M. Reid, of Sparrows Point, and Willis Hurd, jr., of the home club, had to play off for the last four places.

Killefer Quits as Browns' Manager

Reported Dissension on Club Precedes Resignation of Veteran.

THE management of the St. Louis Browns provided big league baseball with a choice bit of speculation yesterday when Manager William (Bill) Killefer came to the parting of the ways with his eighth-place ball team.

Leaving his team in Washington yesterday for an unannounced destination, after telegraphing his resignation to Owner Phil Ball in St. Louis, Killefer broke the tenseness of a widening rift between himself and the proprietor of the Browns.

Acting under telegraphic orders from Owner Ball, Coach Alan Sothoron took over the acting management of the St. Louis club yesterday, and the permanence of his duties is a subject of speculation. Clashing with the belief that Sothoron would direct the club for the remainder of the season were the reports that Ball would appoint either Second Baseman Oscar Melillo or Catcher Muddy Ruel as the new manager of the team.

Coincident with Killefer's resignation was the presence in Washington yesterday of L. C. McEvoy, vice president of the St. Louis club, who was sent to the Capital to investigate dissension between Killefer and his ball players, according to the Associated Press.

Under Killefer Three Years.

The Browns, a hopeless last-place club from the outset of the season, were under Killefer's management for three years, always far down in the second division. Killefer entered big league baseball in 1912 as a catcher and battery mate for Grover Alexander with the Phillies. For a short time, after being traded to the Cubs, he managed the team.

Sothoron was instructed by Owner Ball to take charge of the team only for the remainder of the trip, which ends next week; thus giving rise to the belief that the club owner intends to make a permanent selection soon.

Hornsby's name was among those mentioned as the new manager of the Browns, but last month in St. Louis he definitely rejected an offer to pilot the club in 1934. Melillo, the veteran second baseman, is known to rate high in the esteem of Owner Ball.

Post Mortems . . .

Until yesterday, Luke Sewell had not driven home a Washington run since the Nats returned home early this month . . . but his blows sent two over the plate in the finale with the Browns . . . if Joe Turner wants to pack 'em in the Stadium, he might book Tigah Nelson and Frank Speers for the villian title . . . it would be worth double admission to see these boys working on each other . . . Joe Hauser, the former Mackman, is at it again . . . he poled out six homers for Minneapolis last week . . . this brought his total to 41, 18 more than credited to Buzz Arlett, his nearest minor league competitor . . . Hauser, by the way, is only batting at a .461 clip.

"Smoky" Joe Wood, former Boston hurler, who is remembered for his pitching duels with Walter Johnson, is now baseball coach at Yale . . . his son, who attends New Haven High School, pitches for their team . . . he recently attended pitching practice garbed in a suit his father had worn in a world series . . . incidentally, speaking of Old Eli, why do so many of their football players become lawyers? . . . three former captains are now attending the Yale Law School . . . Bob Martin, former A. E. F. heavyweight champion, who fought several times in the French capital while overseas, now lives in Paris . . . Iowa . . . Heinie Manush has gone hitless for two days . . . so Al Simmons is now tied with him for record number of hits in the major leagues . . . but Simmons is way ahead of Heinie in the number of runs batted in.

Pirates, Giants Divide Before 22,000 Fans

French Victor in First, 4-1; Hubbell Takes 2d, 7-3; Near Riot Quelled.

PITTSBURGH, July 19 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates got nowhere in their drive for the top of the National League standing today, splitting a double-header with the pace-setting New York Giants to end the opening skirmish of the important six-game series still in third place, four games back of the Giants and a half-game to the rear of the Cubs, who were idle.

The opening contest, in which French outpointed Fred Fitzsimmons, was marked by a wild scene in the fourth inning after Freddy Lindstrom had made a diving one-hand catch of Fitzsimmons' liner. Umpire Barr ruled a fair catch, but the Giants protested and Umpires Moran and Reardon reversed the decision, saying that Lindstrom had trapped the ball.

The contest was delayed a quarter of an hour while the fans milled around the stands and the players angrily swarmed upon the field. Police kept the fans in the stands while the debate on the field raged.

Lead Is Overcome.

The last ruling stood and gave the Giants a one-run lead which the Corsairs overcame in the late innings when they bunched seven of their nine hits.

Chisox Snap New York Streak

Score 7 Runs in Seventh After Ruth Drops Fly to Win, 8 to 4.

Walker Hits 10th Home Run; Jones Pitches Steady Game.

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox today broke through the New York Yankees' defense for seven runs in the seventh inning and then went on to an 8-to-4 victory, a triumph that broke the world champions' successive winning streak at nine games and once again knotted the American League leadership as the Senators turned back the Browns.

A muff of an easy fly by Babe Ruth started the Sox away on the rally, before Wilcy Moore, who relieved Walter Brown on the mound, forced Frank Grube to send a fly to Dixie Walker for the third out, Tony Lazzeri fumbled Swanson's grounder to allow the first run to cross the plate, and Red Kress cleared the loaded sacks with a triple.

Brown Starts Well.

For six innings, Brown held the Pale Hose away from the plate with only two hits, while his teammates, thanks to Dixie Walker for his tenth home run of the season, had scored two runs and apparently were headed for their tenth straight victory.

After Walker's circuit drive, which was hit with one on, Sam Jones held the Yanks in check until the ninth, when they scored two runs on Eddie Farrell's single, Earl Combs' pinch double, a wild pitch and Walker's infield out.

From the third to the sixth innings the veteran hurler set the champions down without a hit. They got one, a single by Crosetti, in the seventh and two more in the eighth, when Joe Sewell connected with his fourth hit of the game and Ben Chapman dropped a one-bagger into left field.

Devens Shows Form.

Charlie Devens, former Harvard mound ace, made his first appearance at the Yankee Stadium and would not have been scored upon in the two innings he pitched except for Lou Gehrig's error in the eighth.

Tigers Arrive Today for 4 Games

Crowder and Frasier Are Likely to Be Opposing Mound Choices.

By Frank H. Young.

BUCKY HARRIS and his Detroit Tigers open a four-game series here this afternoon as the last of the Western invaders make their appearance. Although Detroit is in the second flight, the Nats rate it as one of the best teams of the Western sector, not even excluding the White Sox. As a matter of fact, Cronin's charges have been able to win but five of the nine played with the Bengals this season.

Although "General" Al Crowder was still complaining of the sore first finger on his pitching hand yesterday, he is expected to be ready to take the mound today, while Vic Frasier likely will oppose him on the hill.

Al Sothoron, appointed acting manager of the Browns, had little to say yesterday with respect to his new berth. "We have a small squad, well below the player-limit

Luke Sewell Gets Triple in Eighth

Brings in Joe Kuhel and Later Crosses Plate, Providing Margin

Myer Hits 3-Bagger to Score Three; Thomas Stars in Relief.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

IT might have been the heat, or it might have been the humility of Ed Wells' pitching, but be that as it may, the Nats went slugnutty once more yesterday as the joyous ring of the base hit was heard again at Griffith Stadium.

To the tune of lumber colliding against hoss-hide with that old familiar tempo they carried so well in the West, the Nats took possession of an 8-7 ball game against the pesky Browns and, what is more than that, wedged themselves into another tie with the Yankees for the league lead.

For that latter item, they are indebted to the Chicago White Sox, who brought the Yanks' nine-game winning streak to a grinding stop up in the Bronx. Just about the time the Sox's seven-run rally was posted on the Griffith Stadium scoreboard, the Nats were locked in a 6-6 tie with the Browns, whereupon they took heart and went out and won the ball game.

Myer Brings in Trio.

Flashing above the roar of the 14-hit barrage the Nats laid down against the left-handed Wells were two blows that struck home—both triples—one a prodigious poke to center by Buddy Myer in the fourth inning that evacuated three runners from the bases, and the other an equally potent smack by Luke Sewell to left field in the eighth inning that sealed and delivered the victory.

Thus it was early in the young big league managerial career of Alan Sothoron, if not sooner, that the Browns' coach learned to accept the adversity of a one-run defeat, for he was boss out there yesterday, what with Manager Bill Killifer having quit the job in the morning.

It was fortunate that the Nats were in a hitting mood, for Walter Stewart was no puzzle to the Browns, and the success of Al Thomas' relief shift was seriously menaced by the outfield antics of the water-logged Goose Goslin, the noted speedboat enthusiast. Goslin dropped one ball, booted another, and Thomas was forced into extreme good pitching to avoid disaster in both the sixth and seventh.

Take Lead in Third.

Sammy West launched the Browns on a one-run lead in the first inning when he banged a triple to center, a run the Nats got back quickly following singles by Myer and Manush. Then Walter Stewart surprised all and sundry with a triple to left that gave the Nats a 2-to-1 lead in the third.

But their advantage lasted no longer than the Browns' next turn at bat, when it became 3-to-2 in their favor following consecutive pokes into center field by Campbell, Burns and Shea.

Buddy Myer found one run already over and the bases jammed

Whitney Ace Scores by a Neck

Comes From Nowhere to Beat Out Easy Sailing at Wire.

ARLINGTON PARK, Ill., July 19 (AP).—Jockey A. (Sonny) Workman, star rider for the C. V. Whitney establishment of New York, showed the lads from the West how to put up a spectacular finish when he triumphed with Elf Lock here today in the fourth event at 5½ furlongs.

It was the brilliant horsemanship on the part of the Eastern rider that snatched victory away from the Kershaw Stable's Easy Sailing. At the head of the stretch the Whitney horse appeared hopelessly out of it.

Cloud D'Ore the early pace maker, which finished third, had a long lead on Elf Lock. Workman, however, was not dismayed. He booted, whipped and hand rode the 2-year-old daughter of Chiclewendy until he caught up with the leaders and then as a finishing touch put it on Gilbert Elston, who was aboard Easy Sailing. A neck separated the two on the post.

Elf Lock was the public choice, ran the distance in 1:05 3-5 and paid $3.60 in the $2 straight mutuels.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hertz, of Chicago, were elated when they saw their racing colors triumph in the opening dash. Contessa, their home-bred daughter of Reigh Count, was the first of that progeny to win in the 1933 racing season. Later they scored with Pairbypair.

Cruz Loses Apprenticeship.

Empire City Race Track, New York, July 19 (AP).—Howard Cruz, the lad who has earned the distinction of being the most sensational apprentice rider of the Eastern season, today piloted two winners to reach the 40 mark, and thereby lost his apprenticeship in New York. The Southern flash became a full-fledged jockey under rules of the Jockey Club when he guided G. M. Odom's Irene's Bob to an easy triumph in the featured Brevoort Claiming Handicap of about 6 furlongs.

The winner was a 7-to-5 favorvorite and passed the pagoda pole four lengths clear of McKinley Bryant's Mexico, while the latter easily saved the place by three lengths from H. T. Archibald's Westy Junior. Irene's Bob covered the distance in the fast time of 1:08 2-5 without ever being threatened. Fretwork was disposed of in quick order, and Mexico assumed the runner-up's task, but the flying leader never faltered. Condescend, well played, failed to run his best race and was fourth.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

AN electric motor, by a strange law of electrokinetics, uses less electricity the faster it runs—other conditions being equal. The motor is run, of course, by electricity applied from an outside source. However, in the motor there is developed what is known as a counter electromotive force—generated by the armature revolving in the magnetic field.

This force varies with the speed of the motor—being zero when the motor is stalled, and increasing as the speed of the motor increases, approaching but never equaling the force applied.

When a motor is running with little or no load it operates at a high speed and, consequently, the counter electromotive force is high—allowing but a little current through the coils. When a load is applied the speed is cut, and the counter electromotive force is lowered, allowing more electricity to be used.

Bad pitching as well as good batting gave Tip O'Neill, of St. Louis AA, his all time high of .492 at bat. In those days a base on balls was considered a hit. High under revised rules goes to Hugh Duffy, of the Boston Braves, who in 124 games in 1924, batted .433.

The so-called American quail was erroneously named by early settlers who believed it to be the same species of bird found in Europe by that name. In America quail has been applied to numerous birds.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Arlington Park, July 19.

Well, you rascal you, if you haven't got your share of the big dough tonight you'll have to complain up some other alley. It is no fault of your Uncle Bennings. Yes, sir, Mrs. Bennings' lovely son had four winners. Louie Dear, Elf Lock, Pairbypair and Battling On all stepped down the pay line. And we took two beatings by nose decisions. However, having a guarantee that tomorrow is another day, we shall say no more. Mike, my boy friend, showed up today. He was just in time to jinx Haramzada in the final—my only top horse that ran out of the money.

BILL.

First race—Even Play is assigned top weight in this dash, but his works are so encouraging that I'm going to put him on top of the heap. Bicolor is the one I'm afraid of. Bramble Broom is well bred and should be in the money.

Second race—Alcorah failed to run to expectations the last out, but did not get much of a break. Might take it all in a truly run race tomorrow. Fighting Bob for the place. Peedeeque is still awaiting that spot. However, the short distance may be against him here.

Third race—I'm going to put this one over yet. I mean Doctor Klein. Gets away from the barrier like the wind, and I'm told that a purse is not far off. Tomorrow may be the day. Big Red and Steppin High for the rest.

Fourth race—I've tried to make something here beat French Knight, but I'm forced to string along with the probable favorite. If he is forced to lower his colors in defeat, Her Elegance may be the one to turn the trick. Surety might awake to be troublesome.

Fifth Race—Sir Ten showed some fine closing speed here and, off that effort, I'm giving him the top position. Trey looks second best. The Whitney pair of Sainted and Trumpery to complete the money picture.

Sixth Race—Advising Anna was played heavily to beat Indian Runner but was unequal to the task. However, this is a different proposition. She should score here. Mr. Joe's real race would make the top one step to take the decision. Bold Lover for the show.

Seventh Race—Lamp Black gets in here light and gave a good account of himself in that last and may be the surprise package in this race. Beaver and Renewed for the rest. You can have Ultramarine.

Eighth Race—Rock Coventry is my longshot sleeper in the final. This is the spot. Pharahead and Englewood to do the chief chasing.

Experts Are Convinced American Netmen Will Beat British in Davis Cup Series

2-Hour Drill Is Held by U. S. Team

Vines' Work Gratifying; Lending Optimism to Outlook.

AUTEUIL, France, July 19 (U.P.).—America's Davis Cup players practiced more than two hours under a blazing sun at the Roland Garros Stadium today. Experts who watched them became firmly convinced they will defeat England in the interzone final series which starts on Friday.

The Americans used the same red clay courts today on which the winner of the interzone competition will meet France in the challenge round near the close of the month. The work of Ellsworth Vines, No. 1 singles man, was particularly gratifying to Capt. Bernon Prentice, who supervised the practice. Vines' service, which bothered him yesterday, was landing with beautiful accuracy and power today, and he was much steadier off his backhand.

British Also Practice.

The British team also held a workout, which was supervised by Capt. H. Roper Barrett, nonplaying captain, who competed in the first Davis Cup play in 1900. Capt. Barrett expressed satisfaction with the showing of his men.

Fred Perry, England's ranking player and the man that country is counting on to score two singles victories, was virtually recovered from a shoulder injury suffered in the match with Australia. Perry, it will be remembered, wrenched his playing arm, in defeating young Vivian McGrath.

May Play in Doubles.

Perry's recovery probably means that he will not only play singles but will team with George Patrick Hughes in the doubles. In case his arm refused to stand the strain of three successive days of play, Hughes will use H. G. N. Lee as a partner.

Jean Borotra, just back from a flying business trip to England, said today that he meant what he said when he announced months ago that he would not compete in singles this year.

Nats Nose Out Browns, 8 to 7

in the fourth, due to Levey's wild heave after a fine stop on Stewart's grounder, and he solved the situation by driving the first pitch on a bee-line between West and Campbell for three bases and three more runs, that gave the Nats a 6-to-3 margin.

It didn't last. West doubled, Reynolds walked, Burns doubled and Shea looped a single to center, and the score was tied again at 6-to-6 in the fifth. Stewart had long since departed.

It remained thus until the eighth despite Goslin's two-base muff of Scharein's fly in the sixth with none out and his drop-kick of Campbell's single in the seventh with none out. Thomas' cause was further endangered in the seventh when Ossie Bluege bowed out of the way of a pop fly over third base to give Burns a cheap hit. But, happily, Thomas mastered the situations.

Sewell Scores Kuhel.

Joe Kuhel singled to right in the eighth, was sacrificed to second, and then Sewell put on the clincher. He slammed a whistling wallop to the far corner in left for three bases to score Kuhel and trot home on Thomas' single that followed.

The Browns came up with one too few in the ninth. Campbell led off with a single and took third on Mellilo's single that put the tying run on base. He scored on Pinch Hitter Garms' fly to Goslin for the second out as the fans gave the Goose a large but left-handed hand. There was a distinct sigh of relief when Gullic's fly for the third out floated into left field.

Katherine Rawls Defends Four Titles in Events Starting Today.

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP).—With 15-year-old Katherine Rawls, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., defending four titles, more than 50 of the country's greatest girl swimmers, including 11 Olympic team members, tomorrow will open the four-day aquatic meet at Jones Beach for the National A. A. U. championships.

Miss Rawls will defend one championship each day, the springboard dive tomorrow, the 220-yard breast stroke Friday, the 300-meter medley Saturday and the 880-yard free style Sunday.

Eleanor Holm, who has come from Hollywood to defend her 220-yard backstroke crown, should not fail to repeat if she approaches her universal long-course record of 2:57 4-5.

of 23, and there is little I can do with respect to making any changes at this time. I'll simply try to get the most out of the material at hand and see if I can't get the Browns in the winning habit. This thing came on me so suddenly that there's hardly anything I can say."

"I do want it understood," he concluded, "that Killefer and I are close friends and that I had nothing to do with his leaving; in fact, I'm mighty sorry to see him go. As far as I know now, I'm just carrying on for the time being and I'll do the best I can."

L. C. McEvoy, vice president of the Browns, showed up here yesterday morning, but he declares that his visit had nothing to do with Killefer's resignation. "He sent it direct to President Phil Ball by telegraph," said McEvoy, "packed up his things, and left. I don't even know where he went. I had been called to Philadelphia on legal business and my visit here at this time was a mere coincidence."

That was a pretty one-handed grab Manush made at West's expense in the third. The big outfielder robbed West of at least a double.

Detroit Wins Second To Divide With Macks

O'Shocker Due Mat Test Tonight

THIS guy, Pat O'Shocker, seems to think he is some pumpkins in the rassling game and tonight at Griffith Stadium, he gets a chance to prove it when he takes on Ray Steele in the feature bout of what promises to be an interesting card.

Until he recently returned to the Capital after an extended absence, the sorrel-thatched behemoth was rated merely as a big, willing worker of the truck-horse variety, but since, he has caused considerable eye-brow lifting among the cash customers by victories over Abe Coleman, Fred Grobmier and Dick Raines and by holding Gino Garibaldi to a draw.

O'Shocker Ambitious.

But he is going up a step higher in taking on Steele and whether or not he is successful remains to be seen. O'Shocker asked for tonight's bout, so he has no one to plame but himself if Steele takes him for a ride. The reputed crown prince to King Jimmy Londos likely will do this very thing, but the fans should get some enjoyable entertainment while he is doing so.

Steele is not the only first flight matman scheduled to toil tonight, as Dick Shilkat, from whom Londos won the crown; Gino Garibaldi, Abe Coleman and Everett Marshall all are listed to do their stuff.

Shikat meets Garibaldi in the 45-minute semifinal, Coleman will do battle with young Karl Davis, Marshall will wrestle Frank Speers, and the curtain will go up with a Swede Olsen-Lou Plummer bout.

Women's Golf Honors to Kenwood

14-1 Victory Accounts for Title in Final Match; Washington Second.

WITH a glorious finish, quite comparable to the one staged by Columbia's first team champions this past Monday, Kenwood's women made a daring comeback yesterday on their home course to pull up from third place to first and win the District second team championship in the final matches of the season.

A smashing 14-1 victory over Beaver Dam enabled the Kenwood second team to overtake both Chevy Chase and Washington and finish with a winning total of 91 points. Kenwood entered the matches 4½ points behind Chevy Chase with Washington in second.

Chevy Chase slipped yesterday, losing to Washington by 10½ to 4½, but despite the latter's victory, it failed to pile up enough points, and ended its season with an 89 total for second place. Chevy Chase trailed Washington by two.

Dougan Will Fight Von Reeden Again

Le Roy Dougan and Charley Von Reeden, a pair of show-stealing featherweights, who performed nobly against each other at Twin City a few weeks ago, will be given another chance to please the customers Tuesday in the same ring.

In the eight-round semifinal, Ray Bowen, who decisioned Arthur De Beve this week, will again be faced with the task of protecting his rather fragile chin from Roy Manley's snappy shock punch. The last time these two climbed into the ring together, Bowen failed to do this, and was counted out in less than a minute.

Mike Oliveri Eliminates Brother Andy in City Play

MIKE OLIVERI, who created a furore by eliminating the favored star, John Connelly, in his opening match, scored another upset yesterday by defeating his more experienced brother, Andrew, 3 and 2, at Rock Creek, to advance to the semifinals of the District public links golf championship.

Over at East Potomac the favorites, including the medalist, Harlan Will, came through their opening tests successfully. Will crushed E. S. Loveless, 6 and 4. John Downey, East Potomac spring champion, had a narrow escape in his duel with J. C. Williams, finally winning, 1 up.

Burrows Wins Easily.

Bradley Burrows, the former public links champion, walloped B. N. Hallock, 6 and 5, and Harold Bowers put out W. H. Madison, 3 and 2.

Joe Kamish won the closest match of the day in the championship flight when he went 20 holes before beating V. Smith.

Mike Oliveri is the only man in the two championship flights who has stolen a march on the field. He may prove the "dark horse" of the tournament.

All first-round matches must be finished today at both courses, it was announced last night.

U. S. Amateur Golf Entries Close Tonight

District golfers who have failed to send in their entries for the national amateur championship are given until 6 o'clock tonight to do so, if they hope to participate in the sectional amateur trials at Columbia Country Club on Tuesday, August 8.

Already a goodly number of District and Baltimore golfers have filed their entries, although several of the local topnotchers yesterday indicated that they planned to enter today.

Jury to Get Strong's $250,000 Suit Today

Detroit, Mich., July 19 (AP).—A jury in Federal court tomorrow is expected to begin its deliberations in the $250,000 damage suit of Kenneth Strong, star football and baseball player, against a doctor who, the athlete charges, removed the wrong bone from his right wrist in an operation, ending his athletic career.

Midshipmen Beaten.

Annapolis, Md., July 19 (Special). The Baltimore Athletic Club defeated the nine of the Second Class Midshipmen in a snappy exhibition game here today, 1 to 0. It was the fourth straight defeat for the Tars since the summer schedule was inaugurated.

Southwest Market Routs Northeasts

The Southwest Market tossers defeated their perrenial rivals, the Northeast Market, by an overwhelming 13-to-0 score at Marshall Hall, yesterday. Faced by one of the strongest teams that the Northeasters had ever thrown in action against them, the Southwest Marketeers were conceded very little chance.

Record Balks Lovelock in Canada

HAMILTON, Ontario, July 19 (AP). Jack Lovelock, Oxford track ace from New Zealand, who made the amazing time of 4 minutes 7.6 seconds for the mile at Princeton last week, failed in his attack on the Canadian mark of 4 minutes 14 seconds in a dual meet between the Oxford-Cambridge team and the Hamilton Olympic Club. Running on a track wet by a heavy rain after the meet started and without a good pace-setter, Lovelock was clocked in 4 minutes 17.4 seconds.

Most of Lovelock's competition came from his teammate, F. T. Horan, of Cambridge, who finished second. Jack Palmer, of Hamilton, was third.

The Hamilton Club won the meet easily, 7 first places to 4, as Phil Edwards, Bert Pearson and Art Ravensdale won 2 races each. Edwards, the real star of the meet, captured the 880, first event on the program, by a good 7 yards from Pen Hallowell, of Oxford, in 1 minute 55.8 seconds, then came back to win the 440 in 50 seconds and to clinch Hamilton's victory with the sixth triumph of the meet.

Two Canadian Records Fall.

Two Canadian records fell as Ravensdale did the 220-yard low hurdles in 24 4-10 seconds, a fifth of a second faster than the old mark, and Cyril Mabey, of Oxford, ran the 2 miles in 9 minutes 24 1-10 seconds, completely wrecking the Canadian standard of 9:33 4-10 established by J. M. Humphrey, of the Oxford-Cambridge team that defeated Hamilton here four years ago.

Lovelock, lacking a real pace-setter to help him to the record heights that appeared nearly impossible after the wetting the track received earlier in the evening, took things easy for the first three-quarters. He finished with a brilliant burst of speed on the last 440, but was more than 3 seconds behind the Canadian record.

The meet was the last of the English team's tour. The athletes are scheduled to sail from Montreal tomorrow.

Insurance Men To Spurn U. S. Realty Loans

Building Associations Also Expected to Refuse to Accept Bonds.

Leading insurance companies and building and loan associations will refuse the bonds of the Home Owners Loan Corporation in exchange for mortgages, it was learned by The Washington Post from reliable sources yesterday.

Real estate concerns representing the insurance companies are expected to be given specific instructions this week to advise their clients that the bonds will not be accepted.

Acceptance of bonds, which guarantee only 4½ per cent interest, and no principal, would not be fair to policy holders and members of the building and loan associations, in the opinion of heads of the concerns.

If the bonds are placed on the market and given a par value, the mortgage-holding concerns will change their policy, it was said.

Prefer Slow Payments.

Individual note holders are said to be taking the same attitude. They are reported to prefer taking chances on getting slow payments from property owners rather than accept the bonds.

Hundreds of notices of consent sent out by the Home Owners Loan Corporation are being returned unsigned by insurance companies and building and loan associations.

The opinion is reported to have prevailed among District home owners that mortgage holders were prepared to accept the bonds, and that little trouble would be entailed in refinancing the homes. As the situation now stands, home owners will have considerable trouble in obtaining aid through the Home Owners Loan Corporation, it was observed.

President Roosevelt and members of the board of the Home Owners Loan Corporation are understood to be aware of this situation and are studying methods of remedying the condition and restoring confidence.

Promise to Cooperate.

Despite this gloomy outlook, Charles A. Jones, manager of the local office of the corporation, is determined to do all in his power to aid distressed District home owners. He has been given the assurance of realtors that they will cooperate with him in every way possible.

Mr. Jones did not receive instructions relative to the opening of his office from the corporation board because of the absence from the city of William F. Stevenson, chairman of the board. He expects to appear before the board this morning.

Fight to Save Home Up in Court Today

An injunction suit to prevent foreclosure on the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Michaels, 1013 East Capitol street, will be heard today before Justice Oscar R. Luhring in the District Supreme Court.

The property has already been foreclosed, but there is still a possibility of saving the home, if it can be refinanced by the new Home Loan Corporation. The injunction was sought on the ground that application for refinancing the home is about to be made to the Home Loan Corporation.

The attorney who bid in the Michaels house at the foreclosure sale has informed Charles A. Jones, manager of the new local home loan agency, that he will raise no objection if the refinancing can be accomplished.

"All the mortgage holder wants is his money, not the property," said Mr. Jones.

Bank Thefts Alleged In Walden Indictment

Charges of robbing two branches of the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank were placed against Spencer Walden, 29 years old, of Philadelphia, Pa., yesterday, when the District grand jury made its return to Justice Oscar R. Luhring, in the District Supreme Court.

Walden, who was brought here following his capture in the Quaker City, is charged with participation in the robbing of the Ninth and East Capitol street and the 3608 Georgia avenues branches of the bank.

Only Penthouse Baby in City Has Flagpole as Best Buddy

Joel Hart, 7 Months Old, Gurgles While Albee Theater Flag Flies.

Of course "Mom" and "Pop" count a lot, but Donald Joel Hart's best buddy is the flagpole on top of the Albee Building.

By way of introduction, Donald is Washington's only penthouse baby. He and his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Hart, live in a penthouse atop the well-known office building.

Donald is as brown as a professional fancy diver and as happy as Pollyanna. He is 7½ months old. His father, two months ago, came here as manager of the Albee Building. That opened the gateway to infant paradise for the baby.

"Fwag!" he gurgles, and waves at the Stars and Stripes.

The penthouse playground and home of Donald, incidentally, is rather a famous place. For years it was the roof garden of the National Press Club and was the scene of many gatherings familiar to newspapermen.

Mr. Hart was sent here by the RKO interests after serving as secretary to Harold B. Franklin, president of RKO theaters.

Restaurant Union Seeking Alliances

Aid of National Women's Party Sought in Equal Pay for Women.

Alliance with the National Woman's Party will be sought by the Hotel and Restaurant Employes International Union to obtain equal pay for women employes of hotels and restaurants, who do equal work with male employes, it was announced yesterday by Charles E. Sands, secretary of the Washington branch of the union.

Edward Flore, general president of the union, will visit this city during a tour of the Eastern section of the country to compile data on the conditions under which employes are working.

Little or no salaries are being paid workers in hotels, clubs and restaurants, it was found in a survey of wage scales. The survey is being conducted so that a fair scale of pay can be compiled and cut-throat competition minimized.

Hamilton Bank Opening Meets Another Delay

Wording of Letters to Be Agreed on Before Further Action.

Issuance of letters of introduction to depositors in eight restricted banks forming the proposed Hamilton National Bank of Washington, informing them how to obtain part of their money when this prospective bank opens, again has been delayed because of a 5 per cent withdrawal permitted by certain component banks prior to the national bank holiday and origination of the Hamilton Bank plan.

Distribution of these instructions, which has been expected for two weeks, originally was deferred pending conferences between Treasury Department officials and legal counsel representing component banks of the Hamilton plan, with regard to their wording.

A second delay has been caused because certain component banks in the Hamilton plan had limited withdrawals of deposits to 5 per cent prior to the national bank holiday. Under the Hamilton plan, it is expected to release 50 per cent of the deposits of all component banks on the opening of Hamilton National Bank.

The question now to be settled by the Treasury Department and organizers of the Hamilton Bank is whether withdrawals made by depositors in component banks which had a 5 per cent limitation, should be deducted from their 50 per cent allotment available upon the opening of the Hamilton Bank.

In other words, shall a depositor who has withdrawn 5 per cent of his deposits from a component bank permitting this prior to the national bank holiday, be restricted to a withdrawal of but 45 per cent of his deposits when the Hamilton Bank opens for business?

The possible restriction, however, will not apply to depositors of component banks permitting a 5 per cent withdrawal prior to the banking holiday, who did not avail themselves of permission to make such a withdrawal.

Final reorganization of loans between the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and member banks in the Hamilton plan is now expected within a few days.

Row Threatens Long Delay in Starting Bridge

Architects and Engineers Unable to Agree on Design and Type.

By J. D. Secrest.

A controversy between Washington architects and District government engineers threatens to delay construction of the new Calvert Street Bridge at least six months in the face of mounting costs for material and labor.

A hearing yesterday in the office of Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals revealed that neither the engineers nor the architects intend to give ground. The whole matter will be thrashed out at a joint meeting of the Fine Arts Commission and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission on July 28.

There are two questions to be decided before construction of the bridge can be started: First, whether the bridge is to be of steel or masonry, and, second, whether it is to have one or five arches.

Indications are that the Fine Arts Commission will take sides with the architects, who, for the most part, favor masonry against the Engineer Commissioner and the Park and Planning Commission, who favor the steel arch design for reasons of economy and utility as well as esthetic considerations.

Favors Single Span.

The Fine Arts Commission has, however, apparently turned about face as to the question of how many arches are necessary and now favors the single span instead of the five arches designed by Maj. George Oakley Totten, jr. Should it adhere to this decision, the issue narrows to whether a single masonry arch or a single steel arch is to be constructed.

That the controversy has gathered momentum within recent weeks was indicated yesterday by the presence at the hearing of representatives of the Board of Trade, the Washington Chamber of Commerce, and the Federation of Citizens Associations. All expressed deep interest in the problem, though the majority leaned heavily toward the masonry structure without specifying the number of arches.

Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, likewise expressed his preference for a masonry design even in the face of an estimated $380,000 additional cost.

"Why, I'm sure that Congress would be willing to appropriate the extra money," he predicted, despite the record of the District's long battle for the present $1,250,000 authorization.

Maj. Gotwals set forth three major reasons for building the steel arch bridge in a report to his colleagues yesterday. This report, incidentally, has not yet been approved by the whole board, which consists only of one other Commissioner, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, as Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby is on leave. Should Dr. Reichelderfer fail to approve the report, action would be indefinitely postponed.

Costs $250,000 Less.

Maj. Gotwals stated that the steel arch would cost $250,000 less than the multiple arch concrete bridge and $380,000 less than the single arch masonry bridge; working plans have been drafted so that the contract could be let as soon as the budget bureau approves the initial appropriation; and the bridge could be built within much less time and with less interference to traffic than either of the masonry spans.

He contended further that the steel arch design would be more serviceable and is best suited to the location as a single steel arch would keep clear a view of the Rock Creek Valley from the park roads. He submitted a report prepared by Modjeski, Masters & Chase, consulting engineers, of Philadelphia, who drafted the steel arch plan previously adopted by the Commissioners, corroborating his statement.

Maj. Totten, who designed his multiple arch masonry plan in 1917, likewise set forth in some detail a defense of the design. He further answered criticism by stating that he at his own expense had working plans drafted, that a local builder had estimated that the bridge could be built within the $1,250,000 authorization, and that it could be completed within a year from this August.

A masonry design would require that most material and all labor be local, he said, while a steel bridge would be built by outsiders with nonlocal material. He explained a plan for building the bridge so as not to interfere with traffic, but Maj. Gotwals and Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, said it would not work. They further attacked his cost estimate as not including anticipated street paving and engineering supervision, all of which would cost about $150,000.

Would Honor Jefferson.

Finally, Maj. Totten proposed naming the bridge in honor of Thomas Jefferson, and suggested that he could depict in low bas relief events in the life of Jefferson on panels under the arches.

Much of the discussion centered about the question of which bridge would be the best compliment to the Taft Bridge. Here again there was a wide difference. Maj. Gotwals said that a multiple arch Calvert Bridge would overshadow the handsome Taft span, and that would not be desirable.

About the only feasible plan which arose from the hearing was that alternate bids might be asked on the masonry and the steel designs for the single span bridge, and that working plans could be drawn later should the contract be awarded for the masonry work.

Meanwhile, prices are mounting. District officials point out, and the bids on the bridge next winter might jump several hundred thousands of dollars should it be necessary to wait for an additional appropriation.

Arson Charged To Two Youths In Frat Blaze

Police Say They're Unable to Ascribe Motive for Conflagration.

Although they have placed arson charges against two members of the local chapter of Sigma Chi Fraternity in connection with the recent chapter house fire, police yesterday could not ascribe a definite motive for the alleged crime.

The two held are Albert H. Smith, 26, of Humphreys, Mo., and Edward J. Parlton, 22, of Derby, Conn.

Detective W. F. Sager, of the Second Precinct, and Fire Inspector Raymond C. Roberts, said they found gasoline had been sprayed around the house and oil soaked rags spread on the stairs.

15 Lives Endangered.

The blaze endangered the lives of 15 members of the fraternity at 1312 N street northwest. They were trapped in the upper floors and were forced to make their escape through windows.

Smith and Parlton told police that they were out of town when the fire occurred. They were questioned, police said, because apparently a separate blaze had been set in their fourth floor room.

Fire inspectors claim that the youths have been identified by a garage man as the purchasers of a can of gasoline which later was found empty in the house.

Another employe of the garage, according to police, identified one of the suspects' automobile as the car into which the can of gasoline was placed.

Find Door Locked.

Police said that the front door of the house, which had not been locked for several years, was locked and had to be broken by firemen.

Partland, investigators stated, was on a probationary status in the organization.

Inquest Is Scheduled In Death of U. S. Aid

An inquest will be held today in the death of William Marshall, 59, 1715 K street northwest, who died early yesterday in Providence Hospital from injuries suffered in a fall at the Bureau of Internal Revenue on June 27. His hip was broken in the fall and he contracted pneumonia.

Mr. Marshall was an attorney in the office of the general counsel of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Gun Ends All

Aged Library Reader, in Fear of Blindness, Suicide.

Police last night were trying to reach the brother of William J. Bone, 83-year-old man who ended a lonely life yesterday with a pistol shot.

Approaching blindness which would take from him the only solace of his old age, reading, was the reason for his act.

His landlady, Mrs. Ethel M. Paris, of 1023 Eghth street northwest, told police that he had a brother, Charles S. Bone, at Gibson, Neb.

Pending hearing from the brother, Mrs. Paris has taken charge of burial preparations. The body is at Hysong's funeral parlor.

Railway Given Alternative of Accepting Plan to Be Offered Buses.

Alternative courses, one of which will be establishment of a 5-cent service on the Washington Railway & Electric Company's Fourteenth street loop, will be set forth in a brief to be submitted today to the Public Utilities Commission by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride.

Should the recommendation of counsel be accepted, the commission would give the Washington Railway an opportunty to establish the 5-cent fare, with no transfer privileges, for the convenience particularly of Federal Government employes stationed in the southwest on or near Fourteenth street.

If the street car company refuses to adopt the low fare, the commission might then grant the applications of the Alexandria-Barcroft-Washington Rapid Transit and the Arlington & Fairfax Motor Transportation Co. to pick up and discharge passengers in the District for 5 cents as they did formerly until stopped by the commission.

G. P. O. Worker Ousted for Aid In Wage Fight

Carter Says 12 Charges Against Man Upheld by Investigators.

Another suspension in connection with the alleged campaign to fight wage losses in the Government Printing Office was made last night by George H. Carter, public printer, who ordered James E. Rennie, a proofreader, dismissed.

Frank S. Lerch, the assistant foreman, who was suspended with Rennie several weeks ago, will confer with Mr. Carter this morning. Only Rennie's case was disposed of yesterday. Carter said he wished to consider Lerch's written reply. A decision is likely today, following the interview which the assistant foreman requested.

The linotype operator suspended yesterday admitted collaborating in the plan to seek restoration of $954,000 in earned leave lost under the economy act, according to Mr. Carter.

Twelve charges placed against Rennie were sustained by Department of Justice investigators, Carter said. The G. P. O. employe is said to have admitted hiring an attorney to represent subscribers to the "pool."

In a statement filed with the district attorney, Frank Gardner is said to have admitted accepting about $900 from funds collected, but defended his part in the enterprise.

Renie last night declared he proposed immediately to take the proper course for restorement to the position from which he maintained he had been dismissed without just cause.

Closed Banks Escape Taxes By Bride Rule

Corporation Counsel Urges District to Abandon Effort to Collect.

The District government will abandon its efforts to collect taxes from insolvent Washington banks, if the opinion of Corportaion Counsel William W. Bride is adopted.

After considerable correspondence with the Comptroller of the Currency, it was learned yesterday, Mr. Bride has advised the commissioners to abandon "the controversy and efforts to collect the taxes." This opinion was advanced despite the belief of the corporation counsel that the Comptroller General is legally wrong, the brief discloses.

The Comptroller General, Mr. Bride said, will not instruct the receivers of the closed banks to make returns or pay the taxes asked by the District tax assessor, nor will he submit the matter to the courts for adjudication.

"We have arrived at an impasse," Mr. Bride wrote. "I see nothing to be gained by a prolonged discussion."

The corporation counsel previously had suggested to the comptroller that "if the banks, on account of insolvency, had no earnings for the previous year (meaning the last fiscal year), that fact be shown in a return. As the tax is based on the gross earnings, there could be no tax if there were no earnings."

The opinion was rendered after a protest had been made by John Poole, conservator of the Federal-American National Bank and Trust Co., against a request from the assessor for a return.

Indictment Accuses Chauffeur of Thefts

Indictments charging him with embezzlement and grand larceny were returned against Frank H. Van Buren, colored, who for 15 years has been a chauffeur for George D. Horning, Inc.

One indictment charges him with stealing approximately $2,000 from a strong box he was supposed to deliver, and the other alleges he took $1,115 from a box belonging to William E. Burke, of South Washington, Va., who had delivered it to the Horning Co. at South Washington.

The District Commissioners yesterday sent forward to the Federal Emergency Relief Administration a request for $173,353 for unemployment relief in Washington.

Expenditures for relief during the last three months of the fiscal year, which ended June 30, were set forth in detail in the application, whereas the previous grant of $140,000 was obtained with scarcely no detailed explanation.
